SPECIAL COLOR SECTION

FIVE CENTS — ATLANTA, GA., SUNDAY MORNING, MAY 30, 1915 — FIVE CENTS

AN especially attractive suit for country wear is the Norfolk suit whether it be of pique, linen, or cloth. Illustrated at the right is a very smart model in tan colored gabardine with a coat box-pleated but beltless and a circular skirt that is perfectly plain buttoned down the front and finished with a corded hem.

THE frock at the left buttoned from neck to hem with blue buttons is of white tussore with a blue and white silk girdle. The latter, however, only appears on the sides as there is a panel back as well as front. The sleeves button nearly to the elbow and neck and sleeves are frilled with white organdie. Pleats on the sides give ample fullness to the skirt.

THE blue and white striped frock is of linen with collar and cuffs of white handkerchief linen finished with pleated frills. The skirt is pleated and has an overskirt cut so that the stripes run crosswise. It is longer on the sides and in the back than in the front and is pleated over the hips. The girdle is of plain blue silk.

SOUTH'S BATTLE ABBEY OPEN TO THE VETERANS

Visitors to Richmond Will Be Allowed to Inspect Memorial Structure.

Richmond, Va., May 29.—The Confederate Memorial institute, known as the Battle Abbey, has been opened for inspection in connection with the United Confederate Veteran's reunion, which is to be held here June 1 to 3. The institute forms an interesting part of the collection of permanent memorials of the civil war, its promoters having had in mind the memorializing of the part played by the south in the great war events of fifty years ago.

The building, completion of which awaits the return of the artist, Charles Hoffbauer, from the European war, stands in the western part of Richmond, in the center of a five-acre park, a gift from the state of Virginia. Ground for the structure was broken January 1, 1912, and the cornerstone was laid the following May. The building is located on a raised terrace, a broad flight of stone steps flanked on either side by a balustrade, leading from the entrance to the lower levels of the terrace.

Description of Structure.

The structure, which is faced throughout with Indiana limestone, consists of a central pavilion, with a wing on each side, the total length being 150 feet and the height from the terrace level to the top of the parapet being 44 feet. At the main entrance is a portico of four stone columns of Roman-Ionic design, 25 feet in height. The two wings on the outside are divided into panels by means of pilasters of a slight projection and below the cornice are large stones, which, it is planned, will be transformed into carved panels to serve as memorials of some of the great events which the building is designed to commemorate.

The hall in the south wing will be known as the memorial room, for the decoration of which Thomas P. Otis, of New York and Virginia, contributed a large sum. Mr. Hoffbauer has been engaged to decorate the walls of this room with paintings illustrative of the civil war, but has not completed his work. The north wing of the institute will be used as a library. On one side will hang a large painting of Thomas Jefferson and his cabinet, as well as the portraits of all the war governors. The association intends to make the collection of pictures and books in the library of great historic value.

Treatment of the park surrounding the institute to make the grounds as essentially a part of the memorial as the building itself is planned by those in charge of the work. The design of the court of honor includes a central panel of turf with recesses for statues at the sides and ends, this being outlined by a box border between which will be a ground cover of ivy, leading to double rows of magnolias, the foliage of which will make the great frame for the side of the court.

Credit to Rouss.

To Charles Broadway Rouss is attributed the credit for having conceived the idea of the Confederate Memorial institute. At the veterans' reunion in Houston, Texas, in 1896, Mr. Rouss offered to give $100,000 for the erection of a memorial hall if the southern people would contribute an equal amount. The offer was accepted, a committee appointed and the committee made its report at the reunion in Richmond in 1896. The following veterans, many of whom since have died, were appointed charter members and trustees of the memorial association: Colonel John B. Carter, Virginia; Colonel Robert White, West Virginia; Colonel Thomas S. Kenan, North Carolina; Colonel B. H. Teague, South Carolina; General J. B. Briggs, Kentucky; General Clement A. Evans, Georgia; J. S. Chaleron, Louisiana; J. B. McIntosh, Mississippi; John O. Casteel, Oklahoma; General W. H. H. Jackson, Tennessee; Captain John H. Mickey, Washington, D. C.; Colonel W. D. Chipley, Florida; General John Gill Maryland; S. S. Asbury, Missouri; William P. Campbell, Arkansas; L. S. Ross, Texas; D. M. Hailey, Indian Territory; Colonel W. C. Dickinson, New Mexico.

The charter obtained from the state of Mississippi in August, 1898, provided that the institute should be operated under auspices of the United Confederate Veterans. Richmond was selected as the location for the memorial in 1897.

UNDER THE HAMMER MAY GO WAYCROSS Y. M. C. A. FOR DEBTS

Waycross, Ga., May 29.—(Special.)—Unless assistance other than what can be rendered in Waycross is forthcoming before July 1, the handsome local home of the Young Men's Christian association will be sold to the highest bidder to pay off pressing debts.

Judge J. L. Sweat, representing the Waycross Savings and Trust company, trustee for the association's property here, after conferences with directors, has found that the association is unable to make any payments on the pressing bills, nor even pay interest on the mortgage under which the property will be sold. The association owes approximately $44,000. Most of this is due local banks and is fully protected by a first mortgage. Of the debt, $5,000 is to the city sinking fund, and this amount is also regarded as safe.

Next week the property, which is variously estimated at from $75,000 to $100,000, will be advertised for sale at the public sale the first Tuesday in July. During the month steps may be taken to save the home. There may be some way whereby aid will come from the national association, but this is as yet unknown.

BRICK PAVEMENTS FOR STREETS OF WAYCROSS

Waycross, Ga., May 29.—(Special.)—Taking advantage of present conditions, the city administration is going to arrange, without further delay, for the paving of Tebeau and Gilmore streets, main thoroughfares of Waycross, with brick. Mayor Scott Beaton and Alderman W. W. Sharpe, Jr., have investigated the paving question recently, and find that the city, during the next month or two, will be able to make much more favorable contracts than ever before, at a price lower than brick paving has been done here in the past.

The total cost of the improvements contemplated in the new paving program will be in the neighborhood of $30,000. This expenditure can be cared for out of two annual budgets, without the issuance of bonds. Permanent street paving has never been attempted in Waycross before without a bond issue.

HIGH COURTS TO TEST FOOD LAW OF WAYCROSS

Waycross, Ga., May 29.—(Special.)—High courts are going to be asked to pass upon the conviction of Dan T. Cowart in recorder's court on the charge of violating the city pure food ordinance. He was fined $15, but refused to pay the fine. It is understood now that the case will be appealed to superior court, and if adverse action is the result may go higher to test the city ordinance. Cowart's troubles with the city pure food ordinance have occupied much time in recent sessions of recorder's court and have attracted much interest.

Germany Tries to Dodge Lusitania Horror But the United States Will Press Demands

Leo M. Frank Is Innocent And Jim Conley Is Guilty, Asserts Hooper Alexander

United States District Attorney Analyzes Testimony of Negro on Stand and His Three Affidavits.

HIS STORY WAS INSPIRED BY GRILLING, HE SAYS

Murder Notes Prepared by Conley in Basement, and Without Dictation by Anyone, Declares Attorney.

The innocence of Leo M. Frank and the guilt of Jim Conley of the murder of Mary Phagan are asserted in a lengthy analysis of the case, which has just been prepared by Hooper Alexander, United States district attorney, and submitted to the prison commission.

Mr. Alexander declares he has undertaken this onerous task at the request of a number of members of the bar, who knew of his stand on this case, that he does it as a service to justice, and without the slightest hope of reward.

"Conley's testimony is the one central overmastering fact from which it is impossible for the prosecution to escape," he says. "Conley's story is the most terrific piece of circumstantial evidence in this case, and it is a piece of circumstantial evidence that cannot be put aside or ignored."

ALEXANDER'S LETTER.

Mr. Alexander's letter to the prison commission is, in part, as follows:

"If it cannot be shown that Conley's testimony was the most impudent fabrication that ever gulled a community, I shall ask for nothing. They cannot escape from Conley's story. Upon that story I challenge the attention of all who love truth and justice. I go further than that. Until I prove it I shall not call a single witness for the defense or state a single fact that depends upon the testimony for the defense. There were not less than twenty reputable witnesses for the defense who testified to facts, any one of which, if true, makes Conley's story impossible.

"Surely, this case presents some of the most remarkable features in judicial annals. Conley, confessedly to save his own life, tells the most improbable and unreasonable story.

The Case Against Conley.

"The notes were written by a short, thick-set negro, who, by his own admissions, has been in prison seven or eight times, known to be of lustful and drunken proclivities, and who was at the time of the murder employed about the factory, and of unsavory repute. Undeniably, the notes point to the writer as the murderer, unless he can offer some reasonable, credible and consistent explanation.

Why Public and Police Were Deceived.

"If, in spite of the tremendous force of these circumstances, the public and the police did believe Conley, the natural inquiry is why it was so.

"The murder was peculiarly aggravated. Innocent people were arrested both in and out of Atlanta upon the bare assertions of the most irresponsible people. To whomsoever the slightest rumor pointed as the murderer, the bearers of reports believed that guilt attached. As a specimen of the recklessness of credulity, when Newt Lee was the object of suspicion, experienced experts in penmanship testified most positively that the notes were in Lee's handwriting.

"During all this time Frank, who was the last person known to have seen the victim, and Lee, who had discovered her body, were the most probable objects of suspicion. Suspicion gradually ripened into conviction. Many of the stories told that pointed to Frank, though utterly untrue, have never yet been corrected by the police, who knew them to be false.

"The public began to lose patience with the police, and charged them with a lack of zeal. Conscious that they were indeed drawing upon their utmost energies in a sincere purpose to detect the murderer, the police were sensible of the utter injustice of the attitude toward them.

Facts That Are Known.

"I have undertaken to demonstrate

DORSEY TELLS WHY HE OPPOSES PLEA FOR COMMUTATION

His Letter to State Prison Commission and That of Mary Phagan's Mother Are Made Public.

PROMINENT ATLANTANS MAKE PLEA FOR FRANK

FRANK DEVELOPMENTS.

Solicitor's letter to prison commission opposing commutation, made public.

Mrs. J. W. Coleman, mother of Mary Phagan, sends letter to board protesting clemency.

Columbus to send delegation to Atlanta to make plea for prisoner.

Gwinnett delegation visits solicitor's office to protest change in sentence.

Mass meeting called in Marietta to protest against clemency.

A delegation of citizens from Gwinnett county, who visited Solicitor General Hugh M. Dorsey Saturday afternoon to deliver a petition from residents of their community protesting against the plea for commutation for Leo M. Frank, occasioned the following statement from Mr. Dorsey:

"Thousands of names have been sent to me in protest. The country would be surprised at the number of Georgia people who oppose commutation."

Mr. Dorsey Saturday made public the reply he sent to R. E. Davison, chairman of the state prison commission, in which he urged that the law be allowed to take its course. Saturday afternoon he was in conference with Detectives John Starnes and Pat Campbell, investigators on the Frank case, and the officials named in the indictments as "prosecutors of Leo Frank.

DORSEY NONCOMMITTAL.

Asked if he was planning some new move in the case, he replied:

"I have nothing to say—at present."

The delegation from Gwinnett was headed by H. M. Lively, a merchant of Norcross, and T. F. Walker, a manufacturer of that place. The petition presented to the solicitor general had been circulated in and around Norcross and contained 165 names of residents, some of them women.

The name of O. O. Simpson, mayor of Norcross, and one of Gwinnett's influential residents, was signed to the petition. Mr. Lively informed the solicitor that a petition pleading for commutation, circulated in Norcross, had only six names.

Another address of acknowledgment was made by Dorsey to the delegation, in which he said that he appreciated the attitude of the Gwinnett people "in upholding the law's course," and in "protest against a move to obstruct the course of the law."

Mr. Dorsey, when questioned by reporters, refused to give out other petitions that have come to him from various parts of the state. It happened that a reporter was in the anteroom of his office at the time the delegation from Gwinnett appeared.

"The others will be made public at the opportune moment," was his only statement.

DORSEY'S LETTER.

Mr. Dorsey's letter to the prison commission is as follows:

"Atlanta, Ga., May 22, 1915.—Mr. R. E. Davison, chairman prison commission of Georgia.—Dear Sir: In re: Application of Leo M. Frank for commutation of death sentence.

"In acknowledging receipt of notice of the pending application for executive clemency in behalf of the above stated party, convicted of murder at the July, 1913, term of Fulton superior court, and in reply to your communication on the same subject dated May 17, 1915, I beg to say that I have no objection to the date assigned by you for the hearing of the application.

"As rule 5 of the 'joint rules established by the governor and the prison commission governing applications for executive clemency' requires the papers submitted to your board to include expressions of opinion as to the merits of the application from the judge or solicitor general who tried

PEACE FOR MEXICO IF UNITED STATES HAS TO INTERVENE

President Wilson to Warn Warring Factions, and if They Do Not Heed He Proposes to Act.

Washington, May 29.—Announcement that President Wilson would demand a settlement of the Mexican problem by the warring factions themselves within a short time and failing that, adopt some means, not defined as yet, to bring about peace, has developed acute interest in official and diplomatic quarters as to the prospective action of the United States.

The president's appeal for funds and supplies to relieve the starving population of Mexico, the preparation at the white house of a statement to be communicated to all military leaders in Mexico next Tuesday and arrangements of the American Red Cross for a huge relief scheme are the first steps in a policy which, it became known today, President Wilson had had under consideration for some time with the object of restoring peace in Mexico.

The text of the president's forthcoming statement is an official secret but from those who advised with him prior to its preparation it is understood Mr. Wilson will address not only the military leaders in Mexico, but the Mexican people and at the same time the people of the United States. He will review in detail the course of events in Mexico since the assassination of Madero and Suarez and the usurpation of the presidency by Huerta.

Forecast of Pronouncement.

The pronouncement, it is said, will call attention to the fact that the United States government, by refusing to recognize Huerta, assisted in driving him out of power and expected from the victorious constitutionalists the re-establishment of government in Mexico. Nearly a year has passed since Huerta was compelled to resign but the constitutionalists, the statement will say, have failed in the meantime to restore order, conditions growing worse daily and with no fac-

Russians Are Battling To Keep Teuton Armies From Przemysl Fortress

Struggle for the Post Recently Captured by Czar's Forces Remains the Outstanding Feature of War.

London, May 29.—The battle for the fortress of Przemysl, in middle Galicia, remains the war's outstanding feature.

There has been heavy fighting north of Arras, where the French continue to progress, the Germans admitting tonight their evacuation of Ablain. But this is a small affair compared with what is going on around Przemysl.

The Germans and Austrians, with an enormous weight of artillery, continue to fight desperately in an effort to encircle the fortress, which is already reported to be under bombardment. Their armies on the San, north of Przemysl, have, however, apparently, received a check. The Russians, after driving them back across the San near Sieniawa, have now turned their attention to forces which crossed the river north and south of Jaroslau, and have been delivering furious attacks. All of these the Austrians and Germans claim to have repulsed.

TEUTON PROGRESS NOT SO RAPID.

Southeast of Przemysl the Teutonic allies are meeting with more success, but their progress is not so rapid as it was recently, and communications to Lemberg, which were reported to have been severed, remain intact.

At the other end of the line in the Baltic provinces, heavy fighting continues, with the fortunes ebbing and flowing, neither side being able to make any important advance. These operations, originally classed as a raid by Russian military critics, are being more seriously considered, and larger forces are going to meet the German invaders.

Except for their admission of the evacuation of Ablain, which they say was carried out without the knowledge of the French, the Germans claim to have repulsed all attacks along the western line. As the same claim is made by the French, who also state

TOO MANY OFFICIALS AND NO WORK TO DO

This Description of Construction Department Given by Chairman Renfroe.

That a shakeup in the city construction department is imminent became known Saturday when Chairman J. W. Renfroe, of the council street committee, declared that he would begin at once an investigation of the department and would get an opinion from the city attorney relative to certain acts of officials.

Mayor Woodward agreed with the head of the street committee that "something is radically wrong with the department and it should be rectified." He admitted it would be a hard problem to solve, but said a general investigation and revision of the department should be made.

Chairman Renfroe announced that he favored the election of the chief of construction by general council instead of by the people, as now obtains, and he intimated that he would take steps to bring about this change. This could be done only by charter amendment.

"Have Nothing to Do."

"There appear to be too many officials and employees in the department with nothing to do," said Mr. Renfroe. "They keep hanging on and it appears that some of them are kept in the city's employ for political reasons."

Mr. Renfroe said that in electing the chief by the people it made possible an opening for keeping men on the payrolls for their political influence. A remedy for this, he said, would be to make the chief elective by general council.

He also complained that in his work as chairman of the street committee it had been difficult to secure co-operation from the department when certain contractors secured work from the city. He intimated that when a contractor not in sympathy with the construction department is given work he finds it hard to get their co-operation and make a profit on the job.

In this connection he stated that a contractor who was putting up a stone wall on the new improvement work on Mitchell street had been forced to waste considerable time and lose much of his possible profits on the contract, because the construction department

Regrets Expressed for "The Unintentional Attacks" on the Cushing and the Gulflight, But the Reply as to the Lusitania Is Entirely Evasive—Germany Contends That It Is Impossible to Discuss the Lusitania Tragedy Until Certain Facts Are Agreed Upon—Germany Claims Lusitania Was Auxiliary Cruiser and Carried Guns—American Demands for Disavowal of Intent to Sink Lusitania and Discontinuance of Submarine Warfare on Merchant Ships Not Mentioned.

Berlin, May 29.—(Via London.)—The German reply to the American note on the sinking of the Lusitania was signed by Herr von Jagow, the foreign minister, at 11 o'clock last night and delivered to Ambassador Gerard this morning for transmission to Washington.

The note expresses Germany's regret for injuries sustained by Americans as a result of submarine and aeroplane attacks, and offers compensation in cases in which Germany is found to be in the wrong.

As indicated previously in these dispatches, the note defers a direct answer to the questions raised by President Wilson, pending a further exchange of views. Germany desires to establish whether the Lusitania was a defenseless merchant ship or was being used for the transportation of war munitions and soldiers, on which unsuspecting passengers were permitted to take passage to safeguard the war materials.

REPLY OF GERMANY NOT SATISFACTORY TO UNITED STATES

Washington Is Prepared to Controvert Every One of the Points Mentioned in Summary of German Position.

Washington, May 29.—Until the official text of the German reply to the American note concerning violations of neutral rights in the war zone is received, probably tomorrow, President Wilson will reserve comment. This came from the white house tonight after press dispatches outlining the German note were received.

It is known, however, that the United States government is prepared to controvert every one of the points mentioned in the summary of the German position as published here. The press outline conforms with Ambassador Gerard's dispatches of the last few days forecasting the nature of the German reply.

NO GUNS CARRIED BY LUSITANIA.

Evidence of an indisputable character was gathered from the Washington government prior to sending the note on May 3 to prove that the Lusitania carried no guns, either mounted or unmounted, that she carried no explosives within the meaning of American statutes and that no British vessels have cleared from American ports for several months carrying guns of any character.

The British ambassador here is preparing to transmit assurances from the British government that the Lusitania was not armed, and that she could not be carried on the naval lists as an auxiliary cruiser unless she was armed and commissioned, the latter change from a peaceful merchantman to an auxiliary cruiser being possible, according to British practice, only in home ports.

The United States, moreover, holds that the carrying of arms and ammunition and other contraband or a few unarmed individuals who might be prospective soldiers does not destroy the right under international law and humanity of the belligerent merchantman to be visited and searched before being destroyed and the neutral or non-combatant passengers transferred to a place of safety.

PESSIMISTIC FEELING IN MANY QUARTERS.

While the exact phraseology of the German reply is awaited with much interest, there was a feeling of pessimism in many quarters over the reported evasion of President Wilson's demands for reparation for the loss of

The American representations regarding the torpedoing of the British steamer Falaba, in which an American citizen lost his life are answered with the statement that it was intended to offer ample time for the passengers and crew to leave the ship. The action of the captain in attempting to escape, however, necessitated more summary action. Even then the commander of the submarine granted ten minutes for those on board to leave the vessel, and subsequently extended the time to twenty-three minutes before sinking the ship.

REGRETS EXPRESSED

Germany expresses regrets for "the unintentional attacks" on the American steamer Cushing and the Gulflight. The Cushing was attacked by German airmen in the North sea and the Gulflight was torpedoed off Scilly islands. Germany disavows any intention to attack harmless neutral craft. She offers to pay compensation wherever she is found to be in the wrong, and to refer doubtful cases to The Hague for a decision.

The passages in the American note concerning a possible disavowal by Germany of intent to sink the Lusitania and the discontinuance of her present practices of submarine warfare are not mentioned specifically in the reply.

The note states that pending the reply of the American government to the German assumptions of fact regarding the real character of the Lusitania and her cargo, no attempt will be made to answer the demands contained in the American communication.

FACTS ASSUMED BY GERMANY.

These assumptions of fact are as follows:

The Lusitania was built as an auxil-

GA. BANKERS TABOO WINE AT BANQUETS

F. S. Etheridge Is Elected President--Macon Gets the Next Convention — Three Interesting Addresses.

Savannah, Ga., May 29.—(Special.)—With the election of officers and the selection of Macon as the next meeting place, the twenty-fourth annual convention of the Georgia Bankers' association adjourned today.

At no previous convention has so much business been transacted, nor so many forward movements started for the advancement of the banking interests of the state. Prominent bankers who attended declared the meeting was one of the most profitable the association has ever held.

No changes were made in the slate of officers as submitted by the committee on nominations. The new officers follow:

President, F. S. Etheridge, Jackson; first vice president, Charles B. Lewis, Macon; second vice president, Rufus H. Brown, Augusta; third vice president, Joseph W. Heffernan, Savannah; fourth vice president, T. R. Turner, Haddock; fifth vice president, H. Warner Martin, Atlanta; secretary, Hayne McFadden, Atlanta; treasurer, E. C. Smith, Griffin; general counsel, Orville A. Park, Macon.

New Executive Council.

The new executive council is composed of F. S. Etheridge, of Jackson; C. B. Lewis, of Macon; C. H. Sheldon, of Brunswick; L. S. Radford, of Winder; J. T. Duncan, of Douglasville; R. L. Saville, of Dawson; J. H. Arnall, of Tennille; E. C. Smith, of Griffin, and Haynes McFadden, of Atlanta. The executive council met after the convention adjourned and elected Mr. Sheldon chairman.

Hereafter the banquets of the Georgia Bankers' association will be dry affairs.

At the closing session of the convention today a resolution was unanimously adopted making it a rule of the association that no wines or intoxicating liquors of any kind are to be served at any functions that may be held.

Wine and cocktails were served at the annual banquet last night, and it is understood that some of the visiting bankers strongly disapproved, some did not, however.

Unanimity of Opinion.

At any rate, there appeared to be considerable unanimity of opinion on the subject when Z. H. Clark, of Moultrie, brought it up in the convention. In offering the resolution he stated that while some doubtless did not object, there were others to whom the serving of liquors at the banquets were obnoxious. Mr. Clark contended that inasmuch as Georgia is a prohibition state it does not become the bankers' association to have the law violated.

In seconding the resolution, Charles B. Lewis facetiously referred to the fact that he had seen L. P. Hillyer, another prominent Macon banker, apparently enjoying himself at the banquet. Mr. Hillyer joined in the laughter that followed. But when John W. Walker, of Sparta, also laughingly mentioned Mr. Hillyer in connection with the banquet, the Macon banker turned and exclaimed, "I want it understood that I was not drunk." This sent the convention into an uproar.

Mr. Walker quoted two Savannah bankers as saying that they hoped the association would go on record as opposing the serving of intoxicants at the dinners.

Loan Fund for Students.

To spread the doctrine of scientific farming the bankers' association set aside a loan fund of $1,500 to be used in aiding worthy students in taking courses at the state college of agriculture.

This fund is in addition to an appropriation which the executive council probably will make for the purpose of donating short term scholarships in the agricultural college. Last year the association gave thirty-two scholarships in the institution.

Two cities invited the association next year, Macon and Americus. Mr. Lewis extended the invitation to meet in Macon. A number of telegrams from Americus were read. The decision to accept Macon's invitation was unanimous, although the thanks of the association were extended to Americus for the invitation to meet in that city.

Three Interesting Speeches.

Three interesting addresses were listened to. Thomas M. McAdams, of Richmond, entertained the bankers with a talk that was out of the ordinary. His subject was "Colored Glass." Why he selected it was as much of a puzzle to his hearers as to himself. His talk was optimistic and cheerful, tinged with humor. It was intended to be a message of encouragement to the bankers and it was.

W. B. Harrison, secretary of the Oklahoma Bankers' association, delivered an address on "Building Bank Deposits by Reducing the Cotton Acreage." He told of what had been done in Oklahoma toward reducing cotton acreage and of the increase in the production of other crops. Grain and other food crops are now being grown in the heart of the cotton belt of the state and the farmers are enriching themselves as a result, he said. Mr. Harrison touched on the "back to the farm movement," pointing out that the best incentive to take the people back to the farms is for farming to be made more profitable and more desirable as an occupation. Scientific cultivation will accomplish that result, he said.

Some valuable suggestions for improving the methods of check collections in Georgia were contained in the address of Thomas C. Dunlap, of Athens, whose subject was "Kinks in Check Collection."

DAWSON SCHOOL BOARD ELECTS NEW TEACHERS

Dawson, Ga., May 29.—(Special.)—The school board today elected the following members of the faculty for the fall term: First grade, Miss Bessie Pye; second grade, Miss Lula B. Marshall; third grade, Miss Mae Tweedy; fourth grade, Miss Marian Wallace; fifth grade, Miss Bessie Glasgow; sixth grade, Miss Maude Young; seventh grade, Miss Wright; music, Miss Chap Saville; associate principals and teachers in high school, J. C. Dixon and Miss Janie Bush. The other members of the faculty are to be elected at the next meeting of the board on June 4. Professor J. C. Dukes was re-elected superintendent some weeks ago.

BISHOP COLLINS DENNY TO SPEAK AT WESLEYAN

Macon, Ga., May 29.—(Special.)—Bishop Collins Denny will tomorrow preach the annual commencement sermon at Wesleyan Female college. The Methodist churches of the city have called off their services in honor of the event.

Tomorrow night the sacred cantata "The Light Everlasting," composed jointly by Professor James R. Gillette and President C. R. Jenkins, of Wesleyan, will be rendered.

The senior graded party Monday afternoon, followed by the graduating exercises, will bring the commencement to a close.

ELEVENTH INSTALLMENT

SYNOPSIS.

Sanford Quest, master criminologist of the world, finds that in bringing to justice Macdougal, the murderer of Lord Ashleigh's daughter, he has but just begun a life-and-death struggle with a mysterious master criminal. In a hidden hut in Professor Ashleigh's garden he has seen an anthropoid ape skeleton and a living inhuman creature, half monkey, half man, destroyed by fire. In his rooms have appeared from nowhere black boxes containing sarcastic, threatening notes, signed by a pair of armless hands. Laura and Lenora, his assistants, suspect Craig, the professor's servant, of a double murder. The black boxes continue to appear in uncanny fashion. Craig is trapped by Quest, but escapes to England, where Quest, Lenora and the professor follow him. Lord Ashleigh is murdered by the Hands. Lenora is abducted in London and rescued. Craig is captured and escapes to Port Said, where Quest and his party also go, and beyond into the desert.

IN THE DESERT

CHAPTER XXIII.

Quest was the first the next morning to open his eyes, to grope his way through the tent opening and stand for a moment alone, watching the alabaster skies. He turned lazily around, meaning to summon the Arab who had volunteered to take Hassan's place. His arms—he had been in the act of stretching—fell to his sides. He stared at the spot where the camels had been tethered, incredulously. There were no camels, no drivers, no Arabs. There was not a soul nor an object in sight except the stark body of Hassan, which they had dragged half out of sight behind a slight knoll. High up in the sky above were two little black specks, wheeling lower and lower. Quest shivered as he suddenly realized that for the first time in his life he was looking upon the winged ghouls of the desert. Lower and lower they came. He turned away with a shiver.

The professor was still sleeping when Quest reentered the tent. He woke him up and beckoned him to come outside.

Quest pointed to the little sandy knoll with its sparse covering of grass, deserted—with scarcely a sign, even, that it had been the resting place of the little caravan. The professor gave vent to a little exclamation.

"Our guides!" he demanded. "And the camels! What has become of them?"

The professor hurried off towards the spot where the encampment had been made. Suddenly he stood still and pointed with his finger. In the clearer, almost crystalline light of the coming day, they saw the track of the camels in one long, unbroken line stretching away northwards.

He glanced around a little helplessly. Quest took a cigar from his case and lit it.

"No good worrying," Quest sighed. "The question is how best to get out of the mess. What's the next move, anyway?"

The professor glanced towards the sun and took a small compass from his pocket. He pointed across the desert.

"That's exactly our route," he said, "but I reckon we still must be two days from the Mongars, and how we are going to get there ourselves, much more get the women there, without camels, I don't know. There are no wells, and I don't believe those fellows have left us a single tin of water."

Laura put her head out of the tent in which the two women had slept.

They turned and approached her silently. The two girls, fully dressed, came out of the tent as they approached.

"Young ladies," the professor announced, "I regret to say that a misfortune has befallen us, a misfortune which we shall be able, without a doubt, to surmount, but which will mean a day of hardship and much inconvenience."

"Where are the camels?" Lenora asked breathlessly.

"Gone!" Quest replied.

"And the Arabs?"

"Gone with them—we are left high and dry," Quest explained.

"And what is worse," the professor added, with a groan, "they have taken with them all our stores, our rifles and our water."

"How far are we from the Mongar camp?" Lenora asked.

"About a day's tramp," Quest replied, quickly. "We may reach there by nightfall."

"Then let's start walking at once, before it gets any hotter," Lenora suggested.

Quest patted her on the back. They made a close search of the tents, but found that the Arabs had taken everything in the way of food and drink, except a single half-filled tin of drinking water.

They started bravely enough, but by midday their little stock of water was gone, and their feet were sorely blistered. No one complained, however, and the professor especially did his best to revive their spirits.

"We have come farther than I had dared to hope, in the time," he announced. "Fortunately, I know the exact direction we must take. Keep up your spirits, young ladies. At any time we may see signs of our destination."

They struggled on once more. Night came and brought with it a half-soothing, half-torturing coolness. That vain straining of the eyes upon the horizon at any rate was spared to them. They slept in a fashion but soon after dawn they were on their feet again. Suddenly Quest, who had gone a little out of his way to mount a low range of sand-hills, waved his arm furiously. He was holding his field-glasses to his eyes. It was wonderful how that ray of hope transformed them. They hurried to where he was. He passed the glasses to the professor.

"A caravan!" he exclaimed. "I can see the camels, and horses!"

The professor almost snatched the glasses.

"It is quite true," he agreed. "It is a caravan crossing at right angles to our direction. Come! They will see us before long."

Presently three or four horsemen detached themselves from the main body and came galloping towards them. The eyes of the little party glistened as they saw that the foremost had a water-bottle slung around his neck. He came dashing up, waving his arms.

"You lost, people?" he asked. "Want water?"

They almost snatched the bottle from him. It was like pouring life into their veins. They all, at the professor's instigation, drank sparingly. Quest, with a great sigh of relief, lit a cigar.

"Some adventure, this!" he declared.

The professor, who had been talking to the men in their own language, turned back towards the two girls.

"It is a caravan," he explained, "of peaceful merchants on their way to Jaffa. They are halting for us, and we shall be able, without a doubt, to arrange for water and food and a camel or two horses. The man here asks if the ladies will take the horses and ride?"

They started off gayly to where the caravan had come to a standstill. They had scarcely traversed a hundred yards, however, before the Arab who was leading Lenora's horse came to a sudden standstill. He pointed with his arm and commenced to talk in an excited fashion to his two companions. From across the desert, facing them, came a little company of horsemen, galloping fast and with the sunlight flashing upon their rifles.

"The Mongars!" the Arab cried, pointing wildly. "They attack the caravan!"

The three Arabs talked together for a moment in an excited fashion. Then, without excuse or warning, they swung the two women to the ground, leaped on their horses, and, turning northwards, galloped away.

"I am not at all sure," said the professor in an undertone to Quest, "about our position with the Mongars. Craig has a peculiar hold upon them, but as a rule they hate white men, and their blood will be up. . . . See! the fight is all over. Those fellows were no match for the Mongars. Most of them have fled and left the caravan."

The fight was indeed over. Four of the Mongars had galloped away in pursuit of the Arabs who had been the temporary escort of Quest and his companions. They passed about a hundred yards away, waving their arms and shouting furiously. One of them even fired a shot, which missed Quest by only a few inches.

1—"If You Value Your Lives, You Will Do as You Are Bidden."

2—Quest—"I'll Be Careful, Lenora. Don't Worry."

3—Abandoned in the Desert.

"They say they are coming back," the professor muttered. "Who's this? It's the chief and—"

"Our search is over, at any rate," Quest interrupted. "It's Craig!"

They came galloping up, Craig in white linen clothes and an Arab's cloak; the chief by his side—a fine, upright man with long, gray beard; behind, three Mongars, their rifles already to their shoulders. The chief wheeled up his horse as he came within twenty paces of the little party.

"White! English!" he shouted. "Why do you seek death here?"

He waited for no reply, but turned to his men. Three of them dashed forward, their rifles, which were fitted with an odd sort of bayonet, drawn back for the plunge. Suddenly Craig, who had been a little in the rear, galloped, shouting, into the line of fire.

"Stop!" he ordered. "Chief, these people are my friends. Chief, the word!"

The chief raised his arm promptly. The men lowered their rifles. Craig galloped back to his host's side. The chief listened to him and nodded gravely. Presently he rode up to the little party. He saluted the professor gravely and talked to him in his own language. The professor turned to the others.

"The chief apologizes for not recognizing me," he announced. "It seems that Craig had told him that he had come to the desert for shelter, and he imagined at once, when he gave the order for the attack upon us, that we were his enemies. He says that we are welcome to go with him to his encampment."

Craig turned slowly towards them. It was a strange meeting.

"It is necessary," he told them, "that you should pretend to be my friends. The chief has ordered two of his men to dismount. Their ponies are for the young ladies. There will be horses for you among the captured ones from the caravan yonder."

They all turned towards the chief, who remained a little on the outside of the circle. The professor raised his hat and spoke a few words in his own language, then he turned to the others.

"I have accepted the invitation of the chief," he announced. "We had better start."

* * * * * * * * *

"This may not be Delmonico's," Laura remarked, a few hours later, with a little sigh of contentment, "but believe me that goat-stew and sherbet tasted better than any chicken and champagne I ever tasted."

They moved to the opening of the tent and sat looking out across the silent desert. Laura took the flap of the canvas in her hand.

"What do all these marks mean?" she asked.

"They are cabalistic signs," the professor replied, "part of the language of the tribe. They indicate that this is the guest tent, and there are a few little maxims traced upon it, extolling the virtues of hospitality."

Lenora leaned forward to where a little group of Mongars were talking together.

"I wish that beautiful girl would come and let us see her again," she murmured.

"And from the way she looks at him," Laura observed, "I should say she hadn't forgotten it, either."

The professor held up a warning finger. The girl herself had glided to their side out of the shadows. She faced the professor. The rest of the party she seemed to ignore. She spoke slowly and in halting English.

"My father wishes to know that you are satisfied?" she said. "You have no further wants?"

"None," the professor assured her. "We are very grateful for his hospitality, Feerda."

"Won't you talk to us for a little time?" Lenora begged, leaning forward.

The girl turned suddenly to the professor and spoke to him in her own language. She pointed to the signs upon the tent, drew her finger along one of the sentences, flashed a fierce glance at them all and disappeared.

"Seems to me we are not exactly popular with the young lady," Quest remarked. "What was she saying, professor?"

"She suspects us," the professor said slowly, "of wishing to bring evil to Craig. She pointed to a sentence upon the tent. Roughly it means 'Gratitude is the debt of hospitality.' I am very much afraid that the young lady must have been listening to our conversation."

The professor suddenly leaned forward. There was a queer change in his face. From somewhere on the other side of that soft bank of violet darkness came what seemed to be the clear, low cry of some animal.

"It is the Mongar cry of warning," he said hoarsely. "Something is going to happen."

Quest glanced cautiously around. They were surrounded by thick vegetation, but they were only a very short distance from the camp.

"Seems to me," he continued, "we shall have to try it some day or other and I'm all for trying it soon. Even if they caught us, I don't believe they'd dare to kill us, with the English soldiers so close behind. I am going to get hold of two or three rifles and some ammunition. That's easy, because they leave them about all the time. And what you girls want to do is to hide some food and get a bottle of water."

"What about Craig?" the professor asked.

"We are going to take him along," Quest declared, grimly. "He's had the devil's own luck so far but, it can't last forever. I'll see to that part of the business, if you others get ready and wait for me to give the signal. . . . What's that?"

They all looked around. There had been a little rustling amongst the canopy of bushes. Quest peered through and returned, frowning.

"Feerda again," he muttered. "She hangs around all the time, trying to listen to what we are saying. She couldn't have heard this time, though. Now, girls, remember. When the food is about this evening, see how much you can get hold of. I know just where to find the guns and the horses."

They dispersed in various directions. It was not until late in the evening, when the Mongars had withdrawn a little to indulge in their customary orgy of crooning songs, that they were absolutely alone. Quest looked out of the tent in which they had been sitting and came back again.

"Well?"

"Lenora and I have pinned up our petticoats," she announced. "We've got plenty of food and a bottle of water."

Quest threw open the white Arab cloak which he had been wearing. He had three rifles strapped around him.

"The professor's got the ammunition," he said, "and we've five horses tethered a hundred paces along the track we came by, just behind the second tree turning to the left. I want you all to go there now at once and take the rifles. There isn't a soul in the camp and you can carry them wrapped in this cloak. I'll join you in ten minutes."

"What about Craig?" the professor inquired.

"I am seeing to him," Quest replied.

Lenora hesitated.

"Isn't it rather a risk?" she whispered fearfully. Quest's face was suddenly stern.

"Craig is going back with us," he said. "I'll be careful, Lenora. Don't worry."

He strolled out of the tent and came back again.

"The coast's clear," he announced. "Off you go. . . . One moment," he added, "there are some papers in this little box of mine which one of you might take care of."

He bent hastily over the little wallet, which never left him. Suddenly a little exclamation broke from his lips. The professor peered over his shoulder.

"What is it?"

Quest never said a word. From one of the spaces of the wallet he drew out a small black box, removed the lid and held out the card. They read it together:

Fools, all of you! The cunning of the ages defeats your puny efforts at every turn.—The Hands.

Even the professor's lips blanched a little as he read. Quest, however, seemed suddenly furious. He tore the card and the box to pieces, flung them into a corner of the tent and drew a revolver from his pocket.

"This time," he exclaimed, "we are going to make an end of The Hands! Out you go now, girls. You can leave me to finish things up."

One by one they stole along the path. Quest came out and watched them disappear. Then he gripped his revolver firmly in his hand and turned towards Craig's tent. Then, from the thick growth by the side of the clearing, he saw a dark shape steal out and vanish in the direction of Craig's tent. He came to a standstill, puzzled. There had been rumors of lions all day, but the professor had been incredulous. Then the still, heavy air was suddenly rent by a wild scream of horror. Across the narrow opening the creature had reappeared, carrying something in its mouth, something which gave vent all the time to the most awful yells. Quest fired his revolver on chance and broke into a run. Already the Mongars, disturbed in their evening amusement, were breaking into the undergrowth in chase. Quest came to a standstill. It was from Craig's tent that the beast had issued!

He retraced his steps. When he reached the meeting place, he found the professor standing at the corner with the rest. His face showed signs of the most lively curiosity.

"From the commotion," he announced, "I believe that, after all, a lion has visited the camp. The cries which we have heard were distinctly the cries of a native."

Quest shook his head.

"A lion's been here all right," he said, "and he has finished our little job for us. That was Craig. I saw him come out of Craig's tent."

The professor was dubious.

"You see that tree that looks like a dwarfed aloe?"

"What about it?"

"Craig was lying there ten minutes ago. He sprang up when he heard the yells from the encampment, but I believe he is there now."

"Got the horses all right?" Quest inquired.

"Everything is waiting," the professor replied.

"I'll have one more try, then," Quest declared.

He made his way slowly through the undergrowth to the spot which the professor had indicated. Close to the trunk of a tree Craig was standing. Feerda was on her knees before him. She was speaking in broken English.

"Dear master, you shall listen to your slave. These people are your enemies. It would be all over in a few minutes. You have but to say the word. My father is eager for it. No one would ever know."

Craig patted her head. His tone was filled with the deepest despondency.

"It is impossible, Feerda," he said. "You do not understand. I cannot tell you everything. Sometimes I almost think that the best thing I could do would be to return with them to the countries you know nothing of."

"That's what you are going to do, anyway," Quest declared, suddenly making his appearance. "Hands up!"

He covered Craig with his revolver, but his arm was scarcely extended before Feerda sprang at him like a little wildcat. He gripped her with his left arm and held her away with difficulty.

"Craig," he continued, "you're coming with us. You know the way to Port Said and we want you—you know why. Untie that sash from your waist. Quickly!"

Craig obeyed. He had the stupefied air of a man who has lost for the time his volition.

"Tie it to the tree," Quest ordered. "Leave room enough."

Craig did as he was told. Then he turned and held the loose ends up. Quest lowered his revolver for a moment as he pushed Feerda towards it. Craig, with a wonderful spring, reached his side and kicked the revolver away. Before Quest could even stoop to recover it he saw the glitter of the other's knife pressed against his chest.

"Listen," Craig declared. "I've made up my mind I won't go back to America. I've had enough of being hunted all over the world. This time I think I'll rid myself of one of you, at any rate."

"Will you?"

The interruption was so unexpected that Craig lost his nerve. Through an opening in the trees, only a few feet away, Lenora had suddenly appeared. She, too, held a revolver, her hand was as steady as a rock.

"Drop your knife" she ordered Craig.

He obeyed without hesitation.

"Now, tie the sash around the girl."

He obeyed mechanically. Quest took Craig by the collar and led him to the spot where the others were waiting. They hoisted him on to a horse. Already behind them they could see the flare of the torches from the returning Mongars.

"You know the way to Port Said," Quest whispered. "See that you lead us there. There will be trouble, mind, if you don't."

Craig made no reply. He rode off in front of the little troop, covered all the time by Quest's revolver.

"So far as my instinct tell me" the professor agreed, "I believe that we are heading in precisely the right direction."

They galloped steadily on. The moon rose higher and higher until it became as light as day. Often the professor raised himself in his saddle and peered forward.

"This column of soldiers would march at night," he remarked. "I am hoping all the time that we may meet them."

Quest fell a little behind to his side, although he never left off watching Craig.

"Look behind you, professor," he whispered.

In the far distance were a number of little black specks, growing every moment larger. Even at that moment they heard the low, long call of the Mongars.

"They are gaining on us," Quest muttered.

The two girls, white though they were, bent over their horses.

"We'll stick to it till the last moment," Quest continued, "then we'll turn and let them have it."

They raced on for another mile or more. A bullet whistled over their heads. Quest tightened his reins.

"No good," he sighed. "We'd better stay and fight it out, professor. Stick close to me, Lenora."

They drew up and hastily dismounted. The Mongars closed in around them. A cloud had drifted in front of the moon, and in the darkness it was almost impossible to see their whereabouts. They heard the chief's voice.

"Shoot first that dog of a Craig!"

There was a shriek. Suddenly Feerda, breaking loose from the others, raced across the little division. She flung herself from her horse.

"Tell my father that you were not faithless," she pleaded. "They shall not kill you!"

She clung to Craig's neck. The bullets were beginning to whistle around them now. All of a sudden she threw up her arms. Craig, in a fury, turned around and fired into the darkness. Then suddenly, as though on the bidding of some unspoken word, there was a queer silence. Everyone was distinctly conscious of an alien sound—the soft thud of many horses' feet galloping from the right; then a sharp, English voice of command.

"Hold your fire, men. Close in to the left there. Steady!"

The cloud suddenly rolled away from the moon. A long line of horsemen were immediately visible. The officer in front rode forward.

"Drop your arms and surrender," he ordered, sternly.

The Mongars, who were outnumbered by twenty to one, obeyed without hesitation. Their chief seemed unconscious, even, of what had happened. He was on his knees, bending over the body of Feerda, half supported in Craig's arms. The officer turned to Quest.

"Are you the party who left Port Said for the Mongar camp?" he asked.

Quest nodded.

"They took us into the jungle—just escaped. They'd caught us here, though, and I'm afaid we were about finished if you hadn't come along. We are not English—we're American."

"Same thing," the officer replied, as he held out his hand. "Stack up their arms, men," he ordered, turning around. "Tie them in twos. Dennis, take the young ladies back to the commissariat camels."

The professor drew a little sigh.

"Commissariat!" he murmured. "That sounds most inviting."

IN COUNCIL'S KEEPING.

Perhaps in no single instance within recent years has the good name of Atlanta been so thoroughly and directly in the keeping of the city council as it is today in connection with the problem of what is to be done regarding the city's schools.

There is neither exaggeration nor overzealousness in this statement. Proof of the truth of it is at hand; and it is a well-known fact that The Constitution has, if anything, understated the extent of the deplorable conditions in the city school system.

But let us see what others are saying about us, for we have been the subject of frequent critical comment in the outside press, relative to our failure properly to care for this most important municipal institution. There has been nothing vicious about it; it is offered in a kindly spirit, but it is a case of the truth that hurts. Here, for example, is what The Memphis News-Scimitar says about us in this connection:

> Atlanta is a hustling and progressive city, and she has any number of skyscrapers and manufacturing enterprises. Her people recently spent $48,000 for a short season of grand opera, and one of her citizens paid three and a half million dollars for an issue of state bonds. Evidently there is much wealth in Atlanta, but in the meantime her school facilities are neglected. She has not the accommodations for as many children as desire to enter school, and she has no money with which to pay her teachers. The Constitution is urging the powers that be to take action. It insists that money must be raised to equip the schools properly and to pay the teachers.

And so it goes! Our once wonderful school system, that did so much to advertise Atlanta, now the subject of adverse criticism at home and abroad—just because it has been allowed to congest, as the result of municipal neglect.

It is gratifying to note that the members of council are manifesting, in emphatic manner, a disposition to fully meet the emergency. The finance committee has gone at the problem in the evident determination to marshal every possible dollar obtainable for school improvement. In the search for resources no promising spot is being overlooked. And what is more satisfying still is the fact that this search is being rewarded and, little by little, the needed funds are being brought into sight.

It may be necessary to cut or withhold appropriations from other departments; there is hardly a doubt that this will be one of the essential steps. It may be necessary, too, to anticipate city income in somewhat greater measure than has been customary in the making of recent budgets. But Atlanta can well afford to do these things where it cannot afford to neglect the schools or permit further deterioration in the system.

The present aim of finance committee and council for the September opening should be—and they should go to whatever extent is necessary to meet it—

That done, and we feel confident that council will do no less than that, we can wait for the moment upon the proposed bond issue to provide the new schoolhouses needed. They must come and come without undue delay, but in the meantime there are things that cannot be permitted to wait, and Atlanta, which demands them, is fortunate in having a council apparently so well in accord.

CUPID AND COOKERY.

It seems that any old or new excuse will answer now in some of the divorce courts.

Recently, in New Jersey, a woman sued to be separated from her husband because he refused to include turkey in the bill of fare on days when that bird is presumed to grace the feast.

Following this was the grievance of a husband, who complained of "too much kidney stew."

Last of all came a man with a seemingly real cause for claiming his quarrel just: "My wife," he said, "cooked my pork chops in soap!"

SUBMARINE OUR SAFEGUARD.

The one great development of the European war from scientific, mechanical or death-dealing standpoint, as one chooses to characterize it, has been the submarine as a fighting implement. As a weapon of offense and defense its prowess has been established and its possibilities are beyond the stretch of ordinary imagination.

The submarine is a weapon against which no successful defense has yet been devised. Manipulators of aircraft may battle 5,000 feet above the earth's surface and send each other crashing to death. But a combat between submarines is impossible ten feet below the surface of the ocean. Through the water the eye is useless, and there is no fighting without sight. The submarine's only effective enemies today are chance ramming or collision and their own imperfections. The first is almost negligible; the second, experience and science will, in large measure at least, ultimately remedy.

Science, too, may evolve a potent enemy of this seawolf, but that is, as yet, a doubtful evolution of the future. For the present we must accept it for what it is, for what it has accomplished in the English channel and the Dardanelles; we must accept it as the most efficient, most powerful and most destructive weapon of modern warfare.

This important fact comes home to the United States with more force, perhaps, than to any other nation of the world. We of all other powers should, and doubtless will, appreciate the lesson and apply it. There will probably never come a time when we will need the submarine as a weapon of offense; but for defense, for preparedness in case of attack, its value in efficiency and moderate cost must appeal strongly to every one who has given a moment's thought to its achievements in the European conflict.

Isolated as we are by hundreds of miles of water on each side, our defense involves only sufficient fortification of that isolation against foreign invasion. The secret of England's prowess is that few miles of water which have never yet been bridged, between Dover and Calais. It is conceded that should the English channel fill up tomorrow and afford a dry land passage, England's power would be seriously threatened.

Separated from us, not by a narrow channel, but by a wide expanse of deep sea, invasion can be made not only difficult, but impossible through the use of the submarine. Men-of war and troop ships alike go down at the sting of this rattlesnake of the sea; and these must land before an invasion can be begun.

Interesting and important, next to efficiency, is the moderate cost of this modern fighting machine. Forty of them can be built at the price of a single dreadnaught; two dreadnaughts have gone down before one of them in the Dardanelles this week. Submarines strung out along the Atlantic and Pacific coasts at every possible point of attack would be the best protection this government could devise. Bold would be the convoy fleet with troop ship flotilla that would poke its nose into such a hornet's nest.

We need not consider here the questionable ethics which the use of the submarine has introduced into recent warfare. The United States has no need to arm itself against or make war upon innocents, neutrals and non-combatants, nor will it ever have. Regardless of war ethics, the point is that the submarine has proven itself the most potent engine of modern warfare, and the United States is in position to become the foremost beneficiary of this recently-acquired knowledge.

Our absolute safety lies in our adequate protection, and we have learned now whence that protection may come at an expense almost incomparably small by the side of that involved in the modern naval fleet.

WOMAN'S CIVIC WORK.

The bill which the Atlanta Woman's Club will present to the forthcoming legislature, asking that the city charter of Atlanta be so revised as to make women eligible to hold membership on certain municipal boards, is timely and logical.

Laying aside the hackneyed theme of the political rights of women, which is being handled by men and women in their own way according to their own reasoning, the matter of woman's participation in municipal affairs is one which should be removed from politics entirely. It is a matter involving common sense, and economy—not only the economy of funds, but that of time and energy—which, under the present system, is being wasted by both men and women.

That the participation of women is needed in the development of civic life has been proven in Atlanta more conclusively than in any other city in the south, striking events of the last ten years furnishing the proof, though for fifty years Atlanta women are on record as factors in the city's growth.

It was the demand that the city has made upon women in civic matters which has led to their organizations into effective working bodies covering every phase of civic activity.

When the Woman's club organized nineteen years ago, there was a committee appointed to represent every department of the city's government, and every need of a city's constructive life; these committees coming under the head of education, industry, civics, art, public recreation, philanthropy and public health.

When there was need for school betterment the educational committee co-operated with all their might. So efficient was their effort that a progressive city administration, seeing the value of woman's investigative talents, her attention to details, and her patience, went so far as to create a committee in connection with the board of education known as the woman's visiting committee of the board, this committee composed largely of the Woman's club members.

Subsequently, women worked just as diligently for the organization of the juvenile and probation court, for more parks, better playgrounds and public recreation; for better health facilities, better housing of people, white and black. To help sanitation and to make for the city beautiful, they organized their ward clubs, organized cleaning-up days, offered prizes for flower and vegetable gardens. Women organized the forces, and collected the funds which went into the children's ward of the Grady hospital and into the maternity ward. Through their efforts the Home for the Friendless was built; also the Home for the Incurables, and similar institutions absolutely necessary in the program of a large city.

Recently women have been the ones to bring on the revival which will result in Atlanta's having a school system commensurate with the city's size and importance, and they have been asked to co-operate with the Chamber of Commerce in a survey of every department of the city, with the view of arousing people at large to the city's life and prosperity.

It is right that the women should be asked to participate in these civic responsibilities. It is a part of their responsibility as women, and as the mothers of citizens. They have proved their willingness to respond. But why, when it comes to the administering of the affairs of the city's big house with its inside and outside keeping, are the women denied participation? Why are they treated as uncompensated employees of the municipality when they are called upon to do their part of the construction?

The old argument can no longer hold that the participation of women in public or municipal activities would take them away from the individual home and its keeping, for not only in Atlanta, but in every progressive city, women have been called to work for and in every phase of civic progress. And the call was a rational one, for their principal worth has been in the department of schools, hospitals, public health; these and many other departments directly related to the home.

There can be no reasonable objection that the women of Atlanta, who have so eloquently proven their ability and patriotism as co-workers in the city's growth, should get, through a revised charter, the membership they ask on certain municipal boards; and in view of the large number of taxpayers there are among women, there is no reason why their demands should be limited to "certain boards." They should be made eligible to all boards.

THE NIGHT-RAIDER.

Among remarkable war photographs is one of a Zeppelin leaving its base at sunset for war duty. The ominous shadow of the Night-Raider, relieved by one gleam of light, falls on a placid lake, bordered by dark woods—dark as its mission of death over the sleeping lands.

What war means today is in that dread shadow, mingling with shadows of approaching night. Paris may make a holiday to greet the raiders of the light, in wild expectancy of battles in the air; and London may mark their morning flight with but a passing thrill as the English airships give chase; but when night falls it is different.

For these winged instruments of death have made night awful. Sleep is no more "the death of each day's life." To sleep is to dream of them; people shiver at their shadows, and the burden of their prayer is: "God send the light!"

Cities are darkened; home lights are dimmed; after early nightfall there is death-like stillness in streets of populous towns, for there has been warning of the Night Raiders.

They have been called "The Evil Spirits of the Dark."

They may be spoken of as the most picturesque and awful shadows of a war whose shadow falls on the whole world.

THE AUTO ON THE FARM.

The campaign reference to "the poor, downtrodden farmer" has been largely eliminated from the stump speeches of sympathetic candidates. This item alone, from a financial paper, bears evidence that times have changed, and things are coming the farmers' way:

> It is estimated that 50 per cent of the 1,750,000 automobiles in use in the United States are owned by farmers and the percentage is increasing each year. It is estimated that 60 per cent of the 1915 output will go to the farming communities.

There was a time when the ambitious officeseeker would not have risked making his rounds in an autocar, but now, if he cannot afford that up-to-date method of campaigning the friendly farmer may come to the rescue and lend him one.

And in common with good laws for the benefit of farmers, good roads have contributed to this increased prosperity.

The Holland Letter

When President Wilson was in New York and was receiving tributes as enthusiastic and as many as those which greeted Colonel Roosevelt upon his return from Africa, a democrat, who is a man of influence and is an admirer of the president and a warm supporter of his administration, said to one of the executive officers of the United States Steel corporation, "I am thanking heaven now that the United States has the Steel corporation and other very great industries. For I realize that if this Lusitania incident should be followed by grievous emergencies then this country is admirably situated so far as speedy and abundant manufacture of supplies is concerned."

It is known that the managers of the Steel corporation and of other great manufacturing industries are confident that should there come a sudden and very great demand for commodities available in preparation for war or for defense it would be possible to meet that demand within a very short time. George W. Perkins was frank to say the other day that the great plants of the Steel corporation would be instantly available in case extraordinary demand came, and others, speaking for various industries, are convinced that the unification of industries has made possible early and satisfactory meeting of extraordinary demands, in case the emergency was so great as to make demands of this kind inevitable.

Peaceful Demands.

It has been observed recently that prevailing sentiment in business circles here and in other parts of the United States reflects a feeling that before the end of this year we shall be occupied as never before, either relatively or absolutely, have we been driven by domestic demands. We are likely to have greatly increased exports of commodities used in time of peace to other nations. We are going to lose in Australia a certain export trade—steel rails—not from any fault of our own, but by reason of the skill and ability with which Australia has developed her home industries. The late Norman H. Ream, in speaking in August last of trade conditions, said that Germany had been gaining very great trade in the Far East and in Australia. The German manufacturers and their representatives were steadily beating even the English manufacturers, and the United States, particularly in certain lines of trade in Australia. Now the United States would have excellent opportunity to gain what Germany has lost, but Mr. Ream did not think that we or any other nation would export hereafter steel rails in any quantity to Australia. We shall undoubtedly send steel rails in enormous amounts to Russia during the war, but Australia has now perfected its steel home industry. It has been able to do this because an excellent quantity of iron ore and a very large amount of it is now being obtained in Australian mines and in the neighborhood of limestone deposits. Australia is building, Mr. Ream said, a railroad running from its eastern coast to its western, which when completed will be as long as some of the larger lines in the United States. At least a third of the entire distance remains to be completed and the completed portion is equipped chiefly with steel rails which were bought in the United States. Now Australia is in position to manufacture all the steel rails she may need. The steel industry of the United States, however, will continue to export various commodities even though it may lose our steel rail trade with Australia.

Rumania as a Customer.

Some time in midwinter, Rumania sent to the United States a commission which as a whole represented the very best commercial and industrial activities of that kingdom. The principal object of the visit was to test the American market for the purpose of finding out whether we could within a specified time and for a reasonable price supply Rumania with a large amount of war material. Some of the members of this commission were personal friends of Horace G. Knowles, who in President Roosevelt's administration represented the United States as minister to Rumania. The particular purpose of the mission of the Rumanians failed because it was found that the American industries were not willing to enter into contracts to deliver the commodities within a specified time. There were, however, many conversations respecting our commercial relations with Rumania after the war closes, and it was said by members of the commission that Rumania should become a very large customer of the United States.

When Mr. Knowles was minister to Rumania, he called the attention of the authorities to certain features of the agricultural industry which might be easily and profitably adopted by Rumania, which is a great agricultural country. For instance, no part of continental Europe excepting Russia has ever produced American Indian corn, and the inhabitants are familiar with it as a food only in its preserved or canned form.

Russia does grow sweet corn, and it is as popular a vegetable in those parts of Russia where it is grown as it is in the United States. Mr. Knowles was persuaded that certain sections of Rumania possessed just the kind of climate and soil which are necessary for the perfect cultivation of sweet corn. Rumania accepted his advice and is now cultivating this delicious summer food. Rumania is a great wheat-growing country and last summer, just a year before the Rumanian farmers had many thousand tons of wheat at the Hungarian boundary ready for delivery to those in Hungary and Austria who had bought it. At the same time, Rumania had purchased a large amount of rifles of Austrian manufacture. But as war had just begun, Austria did not deliver the rifles, although demanding wheat. The Rumanian government informed Austria that the wheat would not be delivered and the rifles came. In a few days the rifles were delivered and Austria at once received a very large consignment of wheat.

There are good reasons for presuming that as soon as the war ends Rumania will make very large purchases in the United States. That is the view taken by Mr. Knowles, and no doubt he obtained, inferentially, at least, his opinion from his conversation with the Rumanian commission. Rumania has sometimes been called the "Belgium of the Balkans," but the country is very much larger than Belgium, being in area about three times equal to New York state. How great Germany and Austria's loss in trade with Rumania is on account of the war may be by the statistics whose figures are about seventy millions money value of the imports into Rumania from Germany and Austria, whereas, this "Belgium of the Balkans" bought in the United States only about three millions in commodities. Now there is no trade with Germany and Austria to speak of, and the United States is beginning to realize what the opportunity in Rumania is. Provided our merchants and manufacturers can make satisfactory accommodations with respect to payments, we should be shipping within a few months a very large amount of commodities to Rumania. Rumania and Australia now furnish good examples of what we may expect in the way of foreign trade as soon as the war is ended.

HOLLAND.

American Accent.

(From The London Chronicle.)

"Speaking with a strong American accent," a navy man has returned as a deserter for service here after seven years across the Atlantic. Seven years! Why, seven weeks will do the trick. What is known as the 'American accent'—and differs as widely as the American continent—is the most infectious in the world. A couple of months, as I know personally, is sufficient to alter the pitch of voice, and no man comes back from America without being detected in his speech, which has unconsciously caught the pitch. He gets over it in time. But Britain has never succeeded in imposing its lingual pitch on America.

"The Song of Hate"

By FRANK L. STANTON.

I.

As the nations move where the war-wolves wait
They are singing the song—the song of Hate,
While the chill stars stare at a world beneath
With red plains sown with dragon-teeth!
Singing the song of Hate that knows
Only a world of flame-wreathed foes.
How they cry their anger to Heaven's Gate—
War-wolves, howling their song of Hate!

II.

These are the nations for whom the Might
Of God flashed the Message: "Let there be Light!"
And world on world in the darkness heard
And leapt to Light at the Living Word!
These are the nations in Light upspringing,
That heard the Stars of Morning singing—
Fallen far from the Light's estate
To the dark, unholy deeps of Hate.

III.

They sing that song of Hate, yet know
In dragon-wilds Love's roses grow;
That Love a living world shall wreathe
Even when their bleeding swords they sheathe!
They are the maddened "Fools of Fate"
To dream there is a song of Hate!
Hate is the Lie of an Age grim:
Over its ashes Love chants her hymn.

IV.

Yet they sing, and wave their dripping blades
To the war-rent hills and grave-strewn glades;
To trampled deserts of death-red sod,
And, over their anger, the Eye of God!
But banished Love to the world will cling,
And the song of Hate dies while they sing!
A new-born earth Love's scepter owns
Over the death and dust of thrones.

American Universities — Yale.

By GEORGE FITCH,
Author of "At Good Old Siwash!"

Yale is the university which made football famous. It also put New Haven on the map and has presided at both ends of ex-President Taft's career.

Yale was founded by old Eli Yale in 1701, which makes it the third oldest university in the country. Its principal output has been championships, college yells, picturesque customs and members of "Who's Who." Its principal aim has been to make students of Harvard sorry for the fact. In this it succeeded impressively up to the last few years, when Harvard stopped playing family trees in her line-up.

Yale's duty to the country has been to supply it with high-grade college graduates and local color for magazine stories. In both it has succeeded admirably. It has produced more graduates than any college except Michigan and enough stories have been written about it to use up the entire enrollment twice as characters.

Yale is the best advertised university in the world. Not many of its faculty are more than ordinary famous, but its football heroes and crew men are known wherever there is a sporting page to be read. A man can gain more fame by stroking the crew at Yale than he could be running for vice president. This is partly because Yale was on hand when college athletics first broke into the magazines. The early bird always gets the calcium light.

Yale is no longer noted for its size. It has only a little over 3,000 students and there are twenty-four institutions in this country with a larger attendance. But only seven have a larger faculty and no other school has an ex-president on its staff. Yale also has the largest dining hall in the world, not excepting King Cole's celebrated dish. It holds 75,000, and during the last football game had to be hailed out four times.

Yale also has 900,000 books in its library—more than any of the ancient universities of Europe. Very few of the students have read this library through, though it is free to all.

"No other schools has an ex-president on its staff."

Yale is celebrated for its fine, ivy-covered buildings, its "Yale" fit, its fighting spirit and its "tombs," full of exceedingly live ones. Its motto is "Git there Eli," its favorite flower is the bulldog and its color is blue—varying from very light to an intense shade according to the score. Its saints are Dwight, Taft, Hinkey and Walter Camp, and it believes in a personal devil since Haughton has been coaching at Harvard.

RIPPLING RHYMES

By WALT MASON.

HARD LUCK.

Little Willie's pulling weeds, and his gentle bosom bleeds, for the fish are fairly thick 'way down yonder in the creek. So he thinks his fate is hard as he sweats around the yard, and his eye with moisture blurs while he pulls the cockleburs. Gentle Willie, slay the weeds, ere the blamed things go to seeds; while the other fellows fish, let your sickle go swish-swish; pull them, hack them with your knife—for that sort of thing is Life. All of us who earn our hay thus are toiling, day by day; doing things that break our hearts, in the workshops or the marts, at the loom or at the plow, earning bread with streaming brow. All of us profoundly wish we might quit our work and fish; but in vain we long and yearn, for the call of Life is stern; we must to the burden bend, we must strive until the end. What's the answer, Willie asks. Let's pretend we like our tasks. Let us to our comrades say, "You go fishing—we will stay pulling these delightful weeds! That's the fun my system needs!" Let us make our work a joy; that's the answer, Willie boy.

SAVING NATIVE ARTS.

(From the Popular Science Monthly.)

Perhaps the saddest mistake that has been made in the universal attempt to introduce our civilization among the simpler races has been the destruction of almost all that once was theirs, in the hope that things of our own creation might arise. Instead, the natives have lost much and gained but little. Under friendly direction the wonderful wood carving of the Maoris might have been preserved and modified to find a profit-producing market for the natives. The embroidered mats of the Marshall Islanders were the admiration of all who beheld them, so beautiful were their designs and soft their texture. Even so low a race as that of Australia can produce basket-work of superior quality, which if honestly encouraged could provide a means of attaining affluence from the native standpoint. The salvation of their very souls lies in the maintenance of their respect as self-supporting men and women. Yet even while we preach morality, we permit their only means of maintaining it to dwindle through our own neglect to find a market for the fruits of their labor and invention. Yet, happily, a ray of hope has come, and on the island of Badu, in Torres straits, a laudable attempt is being made by the incorporated English company, under the direction of the Rev. F. W. Walker, to teach the natives money-making arts and trades, and, above all, how to procure and develop a market for their wares. No surer road to the attainment of civilization and Christianity could be found, and these is a most significant contrast between the industrious, happy natives of Badu, whose faces are alive with intelligence and hope, and their listless cousins of the islands in Torres straits.

BRITISH LOSSES AT SEA.

(From The Boston Transcript.)

The British naval casualty list of the war is remarkable from the fact that the number killed is greatly in excess of that of the wounded. The tale heretofore has been that four or five seamen were wounded to one slain, but owing to the use of explosive shells the ratio is the old-time proportion. The official statement of Premier Asquith puts the number of commissioned officers killed up to April 24 at 332, to 640 wounded. The proportion of killed to wounded among the seamen and warrant officers is even greater, the former being numbered 4,981, to 640 wounded. To this astonishing total the sinking of three cruisers, the Hawke, Cressy and Hogue, adds a terrible contribution. The totals of the French navy must be very similar in proportion, for it has sustained most of its casualties by the blowing up of the Bouvet and the Leon Gambetta, both of which vessels carried down most of their officers and men. What the explosive has done to add to the horrors of maritime warfare is evident when it is stated that the 27 British ships engaged at Trafalgar lost but 1,690 killed and wounded.

HORSE HAS OLD HOME DAY.

(From The New York World.)

The World correspondent at Metuchen, N. J., who says he is not connected in any way with the Winsted, Conn., School of Journalism, vouches for the following:

Bob Clushman is a raiser of horses and cabbages and is a politician down in Franklin Park. About two years ago one of his colts was sold to a New Brunswick person. Though the horse had always thought a good deal of Bob entirely forgot the horse until a few days ago, when the animal came ambling into his front yard, minus harness, saddle or driver.

As well as he could express himself the horse said this was the first opportunity he had found to visit his old home. Bob said he was glad to see him, and drove him 5 miles back to his legal owner.

MARVEL OF TRANSPORTATION.

(From Tid-Bits.)

A railroad feat that will probably without parallel in the whole history of railroading was accomplished in the transportation of England's expeditionary force to the coast at the outbreak of the war, according to a report that has just been published. Four days after the war began the government requisitioned 250 trains of 20 cars each to be ready within 60 hours, but the railroads met the situation so promptly that the trains were all ready within 48 hours. During the departure of the expeditionary force, 72 trains were handled daily for a period of three weeks within the space of 14 hours a day. Almost without exception the trains came in on time, and landed with the troops with their ammunition, guns and horses at the boat's side without a hitch.

FATHER OF THIRTY-ONE.

(Milan Correspondence London Chronicle.)

Anastasio Cheloti, a news vendor of Savonia, recently celebrated the birth of his thirty-first child, on whom he bestowed the name of Candido.

Cheloti, who is just turned 60, remarked at the christening:

"At 21 years of age I married a girl of 19, who made me an annual present of a boy baby for nineteen years running. Then she died.

"Before I was out of my fortieth year I married again, and my second wife added another dozen to the family.

"I have nineteen sons living, all healthy and strong. The twentieth fell fighting in the Libyan desert with the words, 'Viva Savoia,' on his lips. Eight of my boys are married and have married children of their own."

For Visitors.

The luncheon at which Mrs. Fred Sawyer entertained Thursday at her home on North Boulevard was a beautiful affair, and one of many parties given in honor of Mrs. Virginia Chalmers and Mrs. Joseph Richard Wofford, the guest of Mrs. Charlie Collins.

The table with covers for eight had as a centerpiece a large bowl of field daisies. The candle shades were yellow, and the place cards were hand-painted in daisies.

Bridge was enjoyed in the afternoon.

The guest were Miss Chalmers, Mrs. Wofford, Mrs. W. S. Morrison, Mrs. Charlie Collins, Mrs. R. A. Williams, Mrs. Tully Brooks, Mrs. Joe Collins, Miss Dorothy Henson.

Reid-Byrd.

A wedding of interest to a wide circle of friends took place Tuesday noon, May 25, at Enterprise, Ala., when Miss Olivia Reid, of Madison, Ga., became the bride of Mr. Wyatt Byrd, of Enterprise, Ala.

Due to the illness in the bride's family, only the relatives and friends at Enterprise witnessed the ceremony at the home of Mr. and Mrs. R. O. Fleming, where the bride has resided for the past year.

The home was beautifully decorated, a color scheme being carried out in pink, green and white. The bridal party entered to Lohengrin's wedding march played by Miss Hazel Young, of Columbus, Ga.

At the improvised altar of green and white flowers the bride, with her maid of honor, Miss Eunice Jolly, of Marshallville, Ga., was met by the groom and his best man, Mr. H. O. Fleming, of Enterprise. Rev. Tally officiated.

The bride wore a becoming travelling suit and a hat of blue, and carried a shower bouquet of bride's roses and lilies of the valley. Miss Jolly wore cream marquisette and lace, and a picture hat of pink and cream. She carried Killarney roses.

Immediately after the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Byrd left for a visit to the bride's former home and other points.

Psychological Society.

The Atlanta Psychological society meets Sunday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock in the convention hall of Ansley hotel. The subject is "Psychology and Efficiency." There will be several short talks on this subject. All interested are cordially invited to attend.

FROHSIN'S Fifty Whitehall Street

tary cruiser, subsidized and carried on the navy lists as such. She carried, according to German information, two guns mounted and concealed below decks.

British steamers sailing from New York, according to information received from passengers and other sources, repeatedly carried soldiers, artillery, war supplies and contraband to England, the Lusitania on this trip carrying specifically 5,400 cases of ammunition in addition to other war supplies, and Canadian troops en route to the front.

Reference is here made to the fact that carrying explosives on passenger steamers is contrary to American law. It is intimated that the German government would be glad to receive information as to how it happened that ammunition was permitted to be shipped on the Lusitania, a vessel crowded with passengers. Strong phrases are used regarding what is considered as apparently the deliberate policy of British shipping companies to protect war shipments by embarking American passengers on the same ships.

QUESTIONS TO BE SETTLED.

Germany contends it is impossible to settle the question whether proper opportunity was given to place the passengers and crew in safety until it is determined whether the regulations adopted after the sinking of the Titanic, regarding a proper supply of boats and water-tight bulkheads, which are now a part of the American law, were observed in the case of the Lusitania.

Finally, the American mediatory proposals designed to end submarine warfare and the throttling of food supplies and other conditional contraband for Germany are recalled. The government expresses the desire to know what steps, if any, have been taken to indice Great Britain to embark on negotiations to this end, after Germany indicated her willingness to discuss a settlement on this general basis.

The delivery of the note to Ambassador Gerard was not attended by any special ceremony. A functionary of the foreign office carried it across the sultan to the American embassy, where it was placed in the hands of the ambassador. The embassy staff immediately began coding the message and transmitting it to Washington, Mr. Gerard, in the meantime, called at the foreign office.

DEFIANCE FOR AMERICA.

London, May 29.—The Daily Telegraph's Rotterdam correspondent says that Count von Reventlow's organ, The Deutschese Zeitung, under the caption, "The American Call to German Pearls," publishes an amazing article which breathes defiance to the United States in every line, and declares that Germany's submarine warfare will be continued, regardless of any consideration.

The article declares that Germany is not frightened by any threat of war by the United States, according to the correspondent, and adds:

"The compiled cutting off of negotiations would leave us cold. America would only be able to damage us by wrecking the trading ships left in her harbors and much other German property. Further dangerous deeds of war by America against Germany are not to be feared because they are not possible. Also we do not forget certain interior difficulties in America. That is another side of the business."

The article is then reported to argue that it is impossible to give submarine commanders any instructions to discriminate in their actions without nullifying the whole value of the submarine warfare against England and to declare that Germany never will do that. Germany, it says, cannot be frightened by big words.

"The only German answer to the American note worthy of our empire," the article is declared to conclude, "is that the submarine war against British trade must be carried out by all means, and without consideration. America may then do or not do what she likes. We neither care for her bluff nor for her deeds."

WHEN YOU DROOP IN THE MORNING

It Means an Afternoon Headache and an Evening of Misery.

There is no necessity for it. The morning droop means the afternoon headache, the evening of misery. It means inefficiency in the office or in the store—that you are worth less to yourself or your employer.

You know what causes that droop. If you don't, you ought to: It is the injudicious eating or drinking or both; or it may come from irregularity of habit or lack of exercise. Any one of these may cause constipation and create toxic poisons which attack and injure the vital organs.

Stop it now. You can do it and prevent it in future. When you get up in the morning take Jacobs Liver Salt.

Just a small dose of it—one to two teaspoonfuls—in a generous glass of water. You will find it a bubbling, sparkling, pleasant drink, and you can go to work with a quick step and a keen, active mind; whereas,

If you take calomel, it will take you a day to get over it. There is a day lost in addition to the undermining effect of this dangerous and powerful drug which soon must have serious and deleterious effect upon the system.

Jacobs Liver Salt will do what most needs to be done, and in the most gentle and delightful way—no pain or griping. 25c, at Jacobs and druggists generally. (Advt.)

SUBMARINE FIRED AT THE NEBRASKAN

Lieut. Towers Reports That Examination Shows the American Ship Was Shattered by Torpedo.

Washington, May 29.—Evidence forwarded by Ambassador Page to the state department today, gathered by Lieutenant John H. Towers, naval attache at the American embassy at London, indicates that the American steamer Nebraskan was torpedoed.

Lieutenant Towers made a technical examination of the Nebraskan on her arrival at Liverpool, and took statements and affidavits from Captain Greene and members of the crew. The chief engineer stated he saw the wake of a torpedo just before the vessel was attacked.

Features of the Report.

The detailed evidence is being sent by mail, but this summary of the main features of the cable report was given out:

The American ambassador in London informed the state department that the investigation of the Nebraskan incident by Lieutenant Towers brings out the facts as follows:

That the Nebraskan had left Liverpool bound for the Delaware Breakwater on the afternoon of May 24, and was in water ballast. The words Nebraskan, New York, were painted on each side amidships in letters six feet high and she flew the American flag continuously up to approximately 8:10 p. m., May 26, at which time the ship was about 40 miles southwest of Fastnet.

The flag was then hauled down because the sun had set and the ship was considered at sea. The chief engineer of the ship at 8:24 p. m. observed a white streak in the water perpendicular to the ship on the starboard side, and a severe shock was almost instantly felt, followed by a violent explosion at coal hold No. 1.

Great Damage Done.

"Hatch covers No. 1 were blown off, also cargo booms above the same, and the air was filled with oil and debris, the double bottom compartments below hold No. 1 having been used for tanks for fuel oil. Bottom plating and pieces of the side were blown up through two decks. The ship settled immediately by the head and officers and crew took to the boats. After remaining off the ship about one hour, they returned and headed the ship for Liverpool. Under orders of the British admiralty a British naval trawler came up at midnight and remained with the Nebraskan until she reached the mouth of the Mersey.

"No one was seriously injured. The ambassador is sending by mail a detailed report of Lieutenant Towers and depositions of three of the ships officers, taken by the consul at Liverpool."

Officials who read the report closely said it contained all the evidence of an attack by torpedo. There had been some doubt whether it was not a mine.

Nebraskan in Dry Dock.

Liverpool, May 29.—(12:34 a. m.)—The American steamer Nebraskan was placed in dry dock yesterday at Birkenhead, in the presence of the American naval attache, Lieutenant John H. Towers; British naval officers and other experts.

The vessel showed a huge gap forward on the starboard side, twenty feet long and twelve feet deep, at the bottom of the ship, which at this point had been blown away. All the plates surrounding this gap were curved inward.

None of the officials would say anything about the nature of the explosion.

REPLY OF GERMANY NOT SATISFACTORY

more than 100 American lives and guarantees that submarine warfare will be so conducted in the future as to safeguard American lives and vessels.

A grave factor has been added to the situation by the finding of the American commission appointed by Ambassador Page that the American steamer Nebraskan was torpedoed without warning by a submarine. In German quarters the claim was persistent that the vessel must have struck a mine.

Lieutenant John H. Towers, naval attache, and Naval Constructor Lewis B. McBride, of the American embassy, and Consul Washington at Liverpool have reported through Ambassador Page that after a technical examination of the vessel and on the testimony of the chief engineer of the Nebraskan that he saw the wake of a torpedo, they had no doubt that the ship was attacked by a submarine.

Inasmuch as submarines of the allied powers have not attacked merchantmen, the presumption of officials is similar to that reached after an investigation of the attack on the Gulflight—that a German submarine was responsible—and an inquiry to the German foreign office may be made on the case is expected to go forward within a day or two.

The preponderance of evidence showing an attack on the Nebraskan after it was believed that submarine attacks on neutral vessels would cease, at least while the negotiations were in progress, admittedly increased the tension in relations with Germany.

EXCUSING ATTACK ON NEBRASKAN.

In German quarters it was suggested that if the ship was attacked by a German submarine the commander may have been aware from the wireless not to learn of the new developments and the precautions to be taken with respect to neutral ships. The fact that the Nebraskan had hauled down the flag at dark was also mentioned as a possible reason for suspecting that she was an enemy vessel, although Captain Greene, in his affidavit, declares the name of his ship was painted on her sides in letters six feet high, and that no possible ruse by a submarine commander to see them.

Incidentally the state department received from Berlin today a copy of a circular issued by the German government warning neutral vessels to keep their names illuminated at night and to bear as many distinguishing marks as possible because of the possibility of mistaken attacks.

Secretary Lansing refused to comment on the Nebraskan case, referring inquirers to an examination of the facts as given out in a formal statement issued today. He said also that he had received up to a late hour tonight no word as to when the German note would be received here, but on the assumption that it had been presented to Ambassador Gerard this forenoon, he estimated that with the time required for translation from German in Berlin and the enciphering of the communication, it might not reach Washington until late tomorrow. Messages have been delayed on an average of twenty-four hours in coming from Berlin to Washington via Copenhagen and London—the route which official messages are sent to the state department.

GERMANY'S NOTE NOT HARD TO ANSWER.

While officials did not care to comment on the German reply until they had read the text, the forecast of its contents was looked upon well-informed quarters as not difficult to answer because the American government had made a careful investigation of the facts in the case before sending its note.

The claim of Germany that the Lusitania was built as an auxiliary cruiser and was carried on the British navy lists as such is met with the statement that the British government never published the Lusitania on its navy list and that such action was necessary before it could be considered as an auxiliary cruiser. Also, the Lusitania carried no guns, either mounted or dismounted, according to the investigation by Collector Malone, of New York, before the vessel sailed. There has been a distinct understanding between the United States and Great Britain, it is stated, that none of her merchantmen sailing from the United States would be armed. The fact that a merchantman subsequently might become an auxiliary cruiser is recognized as a possibility, but the United States has always understood the British position to be that such a change could not be accomplished during a voyage and only in a home port.

The carrying of arms and ammunition is not contrary to American law as the German reports claim, federal statutes being directed against the transportation of self-exploding material, from which class official rulings many years ago excluded fixed ammunition.

GERMAN CONTENTION NOT RELEVANT.

Germany's contention that it is impossible to settle the question of whether proper opportunity was given the passengers to escape until it is determined whether the Lusitania was equipped with the lifeboats and appurtenances provided for in regulations adopted after the Titanic sank, was looked upon in official quarters as irrelevant because it was pointed out the torpedoing of the Lusitania without a moment's warning made it impossible to launch such life boats as the ship did carry.

From the brief outline, it was not believed that the German note went beyond the circular of May 11 which promised to express regrets and make reparation for mistaken attacks on neutral vessels.

In the American note of May 13, it was pointed out that such promises did not remove the dangers to which Americans and their vessels were subjected. The absence in the forthcoming note of any promises to safeguard American lives on unarmored merchantmen of any nationality and the failure to disavow intention to destroy American lives on the Lusitania produced a feeling of distinct disappointment in many quarters.

Speculation was widespread as to the Washington government's course. It was believed the German note would be promptly answered with a statement of facts as understood by the United States and a reiteration of the demand for reparation for past events and guarantees as to the future. This prediction was based, however, on no comment from the state department but on the general trend of comment among officials familiar with President Wilson's viewpoint as expressed on previous occasions.

GERMANY WARNS AMERICAN SHIPS.

Washington, May 29.—An urgent warning to American shipping against traversing the naval war zone incautiously and to have all neutral markings displayed as conspicuously as possible, including illumination at night, was communicated to the state department today by the German government through the American embassy at Berlin.

The German warning was announced in this statement by the state department:

"The American ambassador at Berlin has been informed by the German foreign office that, in view of the fact that during the past few weeks it has repeatedly occurred that neutral ships have been sunk in the waters designated as the waters of maritime war by the German admiralty on February 4, 1915, and especially in one case where it was established that the sinking was traceable to an attack by a German submarine, which took the neutral ship for an English vessel in the darkness, on account of the inadequate illumination of its neutral distinctive markings, it recommended that American shipping circles again be warned against traversing the area of maritime war incautiously, and also be urged to make the neutral markings as plain as possible, and especially to have them illuminated promptly and sufficiently at night."

TURKS ARE MASSING AT DARDANELLES

London, May 29.—The Turkish troops defending the Gallipoli peninsula against the landing forces of the allies number 80,000 men, according to the correspondent at Athens of the Reuter Telegram company.

The Turks are remaining on the defensive in the Caucasus, and are concentrating all their efforts on the Dardanelles, whither reinforcements are being brought from Syria. The supplies of ammunition, both for the infantry and the artillery, are reported to be decreasing rapidly, with no prospect of being replenished.

Reports reaching Athens from Sofia set forth that Bulgaria is holding to neutrality, but the leaders of the opposition party believe that if Rumania intervenes in the war Bulgaria will follow suit.

U. S. SHIP SCORPION SUBMARINE TARGET

Station Vessel at Constantinople Narrowly Escapes British Torpedo.

Washington, May 29.—The American station ship Scorpion narrowly escaped damage by a submarine on May 24. Ambassador Morgenthau reported to the state department today that the ship has been requested to shift her anchorage on account of possible danger also from fire of shore batteries.

The state department today issued this statement on the Scorpion incident:

"The department is advised by the ambassador in Constantinople that, on the afternoon of May 24, a submarine entered the Bosphorus from the Sea of Marmora and that several torpedoes were fired in the harbor, one of them seriously damaging a large transport anchored near the Scorpion. The town and shore batteries opened fire without result. The Scorpion has been requested by the port captain to shift anchorage on account of the possible danger of fire from shore batteries, and will go up to Bebek at once.

On May 27 the British admiralty issued a report from the vice consul of the fleet in the eastern Mediterranean, saying that the British submarine E-11, Lieutenant Commander Nasmith, had dashed into the Sea of Marmora and sunk a ship carrying a large cargo of ammunition and later, entering Constantinople harbor, discharged a torpedo at a transport. The latter shot evidently was the one which endangered the Scorpion.

The station ship Scorpion is a converted yacht, bought during the Spanish war. She is 212 feet long and has four 6-pounder rapid-firing guns.

BRAVERY OF BRITONS SHORTENING THE WAR

Sir John French Lauds Troops Who Have Kept Germans From Ypres.

London, May 29.—Field Marshal Sir John French, commander-in-chief of the British forces in France, in an address to the troops who fought in the second battle of Ypres, which he describes as one of the "most desperate fights of the war," declared that they had done much to shorten the war.

"You may have thought," he said, "that because you were not attacking the enemy that you were not helping to shorten the war. On the contrary, by your splendid endurance and bravery you have done a great deal to shorten the war.

"You have accomplished the most difficult task of withstanding a violent bombardment by heavy artillery by the fiercest artillery fire ever directed against troops, and you warded off the enemies' attacks with magnificent bravery."

GEN. BENNETT H. YOUNG WON'T ATTEND REUNION

Richmond, Va., May 29.—General Bennett H. Young, commander-in-chief of the United Confederate Veterans, will be unable to attend the reunion. This announcement was made today in a telegram dated Cleveland, Ohio, received here by General W. R. Freeman, commander of the first brigade, Virginia division, in which General Young declared his physicians had forbade his attendance. He announced that he had designated General George F. Harrison, of Opelika, Ala., commander-in-chief of the department of the Army of Tennessee, to preside at the convention of veterans, and expressed his deep regret over having to forego the pleasure of coming to the old capital of the confederacy.

BRITISH SHIP ETHIOPE SUNK BY A SUBMARINE

Crew Given Five Minutes to Leave the Elder-Dempster Liner.

Liverpool, May 29.—The Elder-Dempster Line steamer Ethiope has been torpedoed and sunk.

The chief officer and sixteen men of the Ethiope have been picked up. The rest of the crew is supposed to be in boats.

The Ethiope, 2,475 tons and 340 feet long, was owned in Liverpool. She last was reported arriving at Hull, England, April 22, from Lagos.

The Ethiope was bound from Hull to Liverpool. She was sunk by the German submarine U-24.

Falmouth, May 29.—The Saxonian brought into this port late last night Captain McDonald and fifteen members of the crew of the Ethiope. They were picked up while drifting in a small boat. Sixteen other members of the crew, in another boat, have not yet been heard from.

The submarine gave the Ethiope's men five minutes to take to the boats. Then she torpedoed the steamer, which sank in five minutes.

Lime Starvation Causes Tuberculosis

The Medical Record (New York) of December 18, 1909, contains an article on "The Treatment of Pulmonary Tuberculosis. Based on the Assumption That the Dietetic Cause of the Disease Is Lime Starvation," by the John F. Russell, who says: "The condition which is recognized as preceding the active development of tuberculosis in the adult may be considered as due to lime starvation. * * * Among inorganic substances lime salts appear to be of special physiological importance. * * * but if these salts are not in organic combination it is difficult to suppose that the cells can appropriate them for food."

Years of widespread use confirm us in the belief that the success of Eckman's Alterative in cases of pulmonary tuberculosis (consumption) and chronic throat and bronchial troubles is due in large measure to the content of lime, so combined with other ingredients as to be easily appropriated by the cells.

Doubtless this has had much to do with the results obtained in many cases of these affections, which appear to have yielded to Eckman's Alterative.

As it contains no opiates, narcotics or habit-forming drugs, it is safe to try. Your druggist will order it for you or you can send direct.

The Golf Links and Tennis Courts are Ready

At Battle Creek being happy is part of the business of getting well. All the good outdoor games are played there and played as they ought to be. The tennis courts and golf links are admirably kept.

The unique feature of the outdoor sports at Battle Creek is that they are not only for the proficient and the athletic.

The men and women who need outdoor sports most are those who have never learned to play or who have forgotten how to do it.

Here the true spirit of the game takes hold of them. They become ambitious to play more skilfully. In the exercise of physical effort they forget how they feel until some day in noticing an improved swimming stroke or a swifter tennis service, they find that they have achieved also stronger muscles and a sense of health and well-being.

At this season thousands of men and women are looking forward to the summer vacation as a source of definite physical benefit. They must not only have a good time, but they must make the vacation show a profit in health regained and strength accumulated.

At Battle Creek they are assisted in this effort by physicians of wide experience in the use of the great physiological means of health—exercise, diet and baths—and who have at their disposal the most perfect facilities in the world for this kind of treatment.

What Made Mary Mad.

"Dat 'oman kep' er borrerin',
Tuk ebberting I had,
Er 'ceptin' ob de baby—
An' dat's whut made me mad."

"Ef yer axes me whut made us fit, Ise here ter tell yer, Jedge Johnsing," exclaimed Marry Parsons, who was being tried with Mattie Hawkins for a hair-pulling match in Devil's Dip.

"Rattle it off," the recorder told her.

"Hit wus bekase dis 'oman, Mattie Hawkins, kep' er borrerin' an' eb borrerin' tell she clean got ebberting I had. I bornt her de ting she beknew her church 'oman an' wants ter be lak de Good Surmaritan. De onliest ting she lef' me, Jedge Johnsing, wus mer baby."

"That's remarkable," said the recorder. "The baby was alone and yet was not a loan. Shakespeare says, Mary, 'neither a borrower nor a lender be.' Borrow rhymes with sorrow."

"Yer haint axed nuttin'," sang out Mattie Hawkins.

"You can consider yourself axed," the recorder told her.

"Hit am de truf dat Ise been borrerin' a few t'ings from Sis Parsons," explained Mattie, "but I aimed ter git 'em back an' she jest crammed me out house and jumped on me an' I always take keer ob myse'f onder sech circumstances."

"Well, I will fine you each $5.75," announced the recorder, "and if you haven't the where-with-all you can spend a week at the stockade. You can't borrow or lend out there and you won't be loanly."

A Tribute to the Pup.

Hit wus de worstest fam'ly—
Er always cuttin' up—
De onliest t'ing behavin'
Wus jest de good bull-pup.

"Let the Walker family from Hell's Half Acre come to the front," called out the court bailiff, and fourteen prisoners appeared.

"This is the worst family in the Acre," stated the arresting officer. "They got into a fight last night and when we arrived there the old man, the old woman and the twelve children were either fighting or cursing one another. The only thing in the house that was decent and quiet was the bull-pup."

Old man Walker explained that he and his wife got into a dispute over religion, he being Baptist and she a Methodist.

"De chilluns," he said "am dervided half an' half an' when ebber us gits ter argufying 'bout religion, de chilluns takes hit up an' gits ter fittin'."

"I don't know what church the dog belongs to," remarked the recorder, "but I bet he is the best Christian in the bunch; I feel sure he does not quarrel over dog-mas."

"Dere am only one ting Ise got ergin dat dog," stated the old man, "an' dat am he likes de perlice an' won't bark at dem 'spite ob de trainin' I done gib him."

"I will fine old man Walker $5.75," said the recorder, "and the old woman and the children let the children go. I wish it was so I could present the dog with a chromo."

COUNCILMEN OF MACON MAY BANISH DISTRICT

Court Ruling Takes Authority to Enforce Laws From Commission.

Macon, Ga., May 29.—(Special.)—In the superior court this afternoon Judge H. A. Mathews handed the civil service comission, in charge of Macon's police and fire departments, a jolt from which they will probably be some time in recovering, when the court held that the commission has absolutely no authority to enforce laws, its duties being confined to hiring and firing members of the two departments under its control.

The commission some time ago issued orders to enforce the state laws relative to Sunday, the object being to give Macon a taste of the "semi-blue laws."

T. J. Lamar, whose ice cream parlor was closed by order of the commission, brought suit in the superior court to enjoin the commission from interfering with his business, Judge Mathews granting the injunction in an opinion in which he held that the commission had exceeded its authority.

The decision of the court also takes from under control of the commission the "red light" district of the city, and it is now predicted by many that the city council, which declined to abolish the district some time ago on the ground that the matter was under the jurisdiction of the commission, will take action looking to the doing away with the district.

MEIGS DEMANDS MORE LIGHT ON "WEE SMA'"

Thomasville, Ga., May 29.—(Special.)—Over in Meigs they have been waging a little internal warfare of late, the question at issue being whether or not the electric light current shall be cut off at midnight. In a meeting early in the month it was decided by council that, beginning May 15, there should be no current after 12 o'clock and belated citizens caught out after that hour had to depend upon pocket flashlights and matches to light them to their places of abode.

The citizens, however, decided that they wanted more light, as they have to pay for it, and, accordingly, about 15 per cent of them, headed by Mayor Wilkes, who did not agree with his council in the matter, signed a petition and presented it to council, which has come across and allowed as much light as is wanted on the subject and the streets.

ROME ROUTERS TO HOLD RALLY AT SUMMERVILLE

To Form Association for Co-operation Among Counties. Roads in Good Shape.

Summerville, Ga., May 29.—(Special.)—The thousand people are expected at the good roads rally and meeting for permanent organization of the counties on the Rome route of the Dixie highway to be held here Thursday, June 3.

An association will be formed for the purpose of co-operation between the counties Commissioners of Walker, Floyd, Bartow and Chattooga will be present as well as representatives of the Chattanooga Automobile club and Dixie highway executive board.

Work is already in progress on the Rome route. With a magnificent pavement-like running through Chickamauga park from Chattanooga and extending as far as LaFayette, Walker county has but seven miles to build to the Chattooga line. Chattooga is completing on June 1 a chert roadway from Summerville to the foot of Taylor's ridge and will continue the work across the ridge and to the Floyd line. Floyd's convict gang of sixty men are resurfacing the road from the Chattooga line to Rome, six miles being completed, and the remainder will be within three months. The roads to the Bartow line from Rome are in perfect condition, and a link of only three miles remains on the Bartow side, which will be done by September 1.

It has been unnecessary to call bond elections for any of this work, and money is being appropriated from the county treasuries for the permanent construction and maintenance of the entire route, which is now in good shape. It allows a speed of from twenty to thirty miles per hour for automobiles at all points and will be hard surfaced throughout before the wet weather of winter.

J. W. DAVIS ACQUITTED OF ASSAULT CHARGE

Valdosta, Ga., May 29.—(Special.)—J. W. Davis, charged with attempting to criminally assault a 12 1-2-year-old girl, was declared not guilty in the superior court here today. The jury was out about nineteen hours and a mistrial seemed probable.

Much interest was manifested in the case and the courtroom was crowded throughout the trial. The little girl, in short dresses, was the principal witness against Davis. Her testimony was not supported effectively by other witnesses for the state, and was contradicted by witnesses for the defense.

BLOODWORTH TO SPEAK AT GEORGIA EXERCISES

Athens, Ga., May 29.—(Special.)—Hon. O. H. B. Bloodworth, editor of The Monroe County Advertiser, Forsyth, Ga., has been selected to make the address on the occasion of the delivery of the sophomore cup, the debaters' medals and the junior orator's medal at the coming Georgia commencement. He is of the class of 1905—according to custom a member of the class which graduated just ten years previous being named for this honor. The delivery of these prizes is made on Alumni day. The classes of 1905 and 1910 also are planning reunions for the commencement week.

WAYCROSS FISH CASE WON BY R. B. HARRISON

Waycross, Ga., May 29.—(Special.)—Following a lengthy and rather sensational hearing before Judge O. J. Allen today, the warrant against R. B. Harrison, charging him with perjury, was dismissed.

Dan T. Cowart, leader in the Civic league activities in Waycross, was prosecutor. He alleged that Harrison's testimony before Recorder Andrew B. Estes was false. Harrison said he refused fish sent from Cowart's market because it was rotten. City Pure Food Inspector John Scully was the principal witness for the defense. The court's decision was announced early tonight.

POSTMASTER J. C. POWELL PASSES AWAY SUDDENLY

Mineral Bluff, Ga., May 29.—(Special.)—J. C. Powell, postmaster of Morgantown, Ga., died suddenly from an overdose of strychnine, it is thought, at his home this afternoon. He is survived by his wife and five children, his mother and a brother, Everett Powell, of Atlanta.

BOOK REVIEWS IN TABLOID

Miranda. A very interesting romance of the days when the heroines wore lace shawls, hoop-skirts, lace mits and poke bonnets, and when railroads were new, an event which greatly alarmed some and was given a big reception by others. Among the latter was David Spafford, Miranda's brother-in-law, and a man whose great heart was full of the milk of human kindness, who knew the true meaning of Christian charity, and whose brain was too active not to want to be the prime mover to forward the cause of civilization and progress. He is a rare character and one that is not always found in the realms of fiction. It is in this home that we find our heroine who is very happy in the life she is leading, though there is a longing in her heart for a home of her own and the love and protection of a man whom she rescued from a terrible fate many years before. Nathan Whitney had disappeared from the haunts of men and she had not heard from him since she told him goodby, but she felt sure that he would return some day and the dream of a home of her own would come true.

Miranda finally lifts the shadow over his years go by and still he does not come. But at last she finds him, how and where cannot be told here. It is for the hundreds or readers and admirers of this popular author to read her latest book and enjoy the thrilling scenes in Oregon territory, the struggle to make that great fertile country one of peace and shadow a part of the United States and not a far-off adjunct of the British empire. There are trips across the mountains in the dead of winter under the leadership of that gallant missionary, Dr. Whitman, whose Christian efforts brought no food for the bodies and strength for the souls of the far northwestern settlers. It is a story of optimism, of courage, of purpose, and the reader will feel better, stronger and gladder of life than ever before. It is very attractively illustrated by E. L. Henry.

GRACE L. H. LUTZ.

Famous Days and Deeds in Holland and Belgium. By Charles Morris. There is no country at the present time which provides better material for anyone who want interesting heroes and heroines than the country of Holland and the low-lying lands formerly known as The Netherlands. When King Alfred, in August last, determined to ask his people to support him in his battle with the Danish invaders of which he was but carrying out the tradition established by a long line of fighting kings. The famous historian, Charles Morris, has written in wonderful fashion an account of the deeds that have made the leaders and the rank and file of the Dutch and famous to the ends of the world for the undying grit and love of national liberty. Mr. Morris writes in a most interesting style and his book is sure to become a favorite. (J. B. Lippincott company, Philadelphia.)

G. P. PUTNAM'S SONS.

The Putnams published quite a number of interesting books during the past month, among them the prize-winning novel in a competition open to The Bookman, published in London. The novel is finally entitled "Three Gentlemen From New Caledonia," by Ernest Dawson, and Henry de Halsalle are the authors of the story, which was selected from 250 manuscripts.

The Jester. by Leslie Moore, author of "The Peacock Feather." A book containing a wonderful dream which has been very popular among the admirers of the author.

The Third Great War in Relation to Modern History. This is neither a history of the present war nor a recapitulation of its immediate causes, but a limited discussion of the allied campaign against the Hohenzollern in the light of former allied campaigns against the Bourbons and the Bonaparte.

Field Hospital and Flying Column. By Volletta Thurstan, an English nursing sister, who has written a record of her experiences in Belgium and in Russia, will shortly be published.

More than 200 confidential military dispatches of President Jefferson Davis, from the great southern chieftain. Robert E. Lee, are now to be given to the public for the first time, C. Wimberly Jones de Renne, of Wormsley, Georgia. These letters will be published in two volumes under the title, "Lee's Confidential Dispatches to Davis," and will be edited by a southern editor and historical student, Dr. Douglas Southall Freeman, of Richmond.

New Impressions have been printed of the following books by the Putnams: "The Keeper of the Door," by Ethel M. Dell; "In the Fifties," by Constance Smedley; "Patricia," by Edith Henrietta Fowler; "Practical Gardening," by Anna Caroline Maxwell; "Current Events," by Thomas Frederick and Amy Elizabeth Pope; "Mistress Fair," by Mary Ashley Ballington Fair; "On the Great American Plateau," by T. Mitchell Prudden.

MAGAZINES FOR JUNE.

St. Nicholas for June is full of interesting matter for boys and girls, one of the specially interesting articles for boys is "Boys of Old Santiago," by Francis Arnold Collins, illustrated with splendid photographs. "A Dream Made Solid" is another story which ought to appeal to minds. Pool," which ought to appeal to the whole family, is said of the small boy also for it tells you how you can make at small cost and effort an ice yacht. "Joseph the Little Dyer," is a picturesque story by Catherine D. Cather, of the Venetian childhood of the great painter, Tintoretto, who struggled so hard to become the rival of Titian. "The Art of Knitting" is an unusual baseball article by Billy Evans, etc.

The Nautilus has a list of the most popular writers of the day. Among them are: Edwin Markham, Orison Swett Marden, Dr. Horatio W. Dresser, Thomas Dreir, Robert Loveman, Paul Ellsworth, etc.

The June Red Book is called "the spice of life." There are three widely contrasting serials—Rupert Hughes' splendid story of the rich and poor in New York, "Empty Pockets, which is now published in book form; Mrs. Humphry Ward's well-told story of the wife of a genius, "A Great Success," and Gertrude Atherton Brady's exciting romance, "The Island of Surprise," which is a most interesting up-to-date serial. There are a number of bright and breezy short stories which should not be passed by. "The Engine of His Own Design" is a new story by a new writer. Ray Spright Long, and Arthur Stringer's "Mis' Jinny's Boy," thought pathetic, is a little gem.

Harper's for June has indeed a June Table of contents. Mary Roberts Rinehart, Harrison Rhodes, with attractive illustrations in the Howard Chandler Christy in War-time," a poem by E. Nesbitt. "Every Summer," a story by Kenneth Abbott, with illustrations by Wilfred Harnden Foster; "Southward From the Golden Gate," by Alice Gowdey, with illustrations by Walter Hale; "A May Flitting," a story by Frances A. Crozier. Illustrations by C. E. Chambers; "When I Go Walking in the Woods," a poem, and many other short stories and articles on more serious subjects than June.

The Woman's Home Companion for June is another very attractive magazine, and is called "The Bride's Number." It contains many articles and stories relating to weddings. Some of these articles are: "The Bride's New Home," by Charles E. Jefferson; "My Wedding Morn," by a bridegroom; "The Bride's Own Page," "The Bride's Cottage," "Handicraft Gifts for the Bride," "The June Bride and Her Attendants," "The Wedding Veil" and "The Bridal Shower."

There are a number of other articles on interesting subjects, especially moving pictures and fiction by many popular writers.

The American Magazine. The editors of this magazine say that the success of the magazine is to put the whole family, as far as possible, into the full enjoyment of it with the best thinkers, the greatest reporters and the most delightful entertainers of the day. Among the writers to this magazine whose contributions are so widely known, are such men and women as Walter Prichard Eaton, Sarah N. Cleghorn, Ellis Parker Butler, Ernest Poole, David Grayson, Ida M. Tarbell, Margaret Anglin, George Fitch, James Montgomery Flagg.

The Century Magazine. "Exit the Turk," with pictures and photographs, by Edwin M. Bacon; "The Moral Values of Efficiency," by Edwin Davies Schoonmaker; "Modern Tendencies in Art," a review of Modern Sculpture, by Ada Rainey; "The American Merchant Marine," by John Bassett Moore; "The Story of the failure of the ship purchase bill, and a great deal of other interesting articles and stories.

Young's Magazine for June has an interesting novelette, "The Blighter," by Forrest Halsey, as the opening feature. There are a number of other good stories in this number.

The Green Book for June continues the two exceptional series, "Dollars and Cents," by Albert Payson Terhune, and "The Foolish Virgin," by Thomas Dixon, which increases in interest. There are ten short stories by some of the most popular fiction writers of today. There are also some timely articles as "The Man Who Made Shakespeare," "Springtime in New York," "Spring Cleaning," an interesting article on "Mrs. Vernon Castle's Gowns," by Mrs. Vernon Castle, "Would We Laugh at Edwin Booth" which is an interesting interview with William H. Crane, dean of American comedians.

Everybody's has a new serial story entitled "The Real Adventure," by Henry Kitchell Webster, who it is said is at his super-best in his latest story. Illustrations by Edward L. Chase. "Making Money," by Owen Johnson, a serial story wherein "Bojo," the hero, finds that all is not plain sailing in love or Wall street. Illustrations by James Montgomery Flagg. "Too Much Pepper," a baseball story; "Going After Things," "The Amateur Lover," the adventures of an anxious little Irish boy who wanted to be a Jew, and many other interesting articles which should not be passed by.

LITERARY NOTES.

Dr. J. W. Griggs, formerly of Georgia but now of Mississippi, has turned over to his publishers quite an interesting modern love story, entitled "The Victorious Knight." The plot is laid in Louisiana—the "Creole State." Dr. Griggs is widely known in the south, especially in Georgia and Alabama, and we predict that his contribution will become very popular among the new books of 1915.

Marjaon Craig Wentworth, author of "War Brides," and Madame Nazimova, who is appearing with perhaps her greatest dramatic success in the play, joined forces in the cause of peace at a mass meeting held at Carnegie hall this month, under the auspices of the Woman's Peace party. The author appealed to the audience to rouse others to a living faith in the cause of peace, and Madame Nazimova, dressed in the peasant costume she wears in "War Brides," presented some of the most effective scenes of the play.

Miss Mabel Hyde Kittredge, whose text book, "A Second Course in Homemaking," which is to be published this month, was one of the women who sailed with Jane Addams on the "Noordam" as a delegate to the woman's conference at The Hague.

It is said that a member of the firm of J. Pierpont Morgan & Co. has bought a hundred copies of "The Gold Fish," by another anonymous author, to present to his friends. The book is said to be the confession of a rich New Yorker about himself, his family and his circle of friends and enemies.

Ruth Sawyer, a new author, will find many friends and admirers when her book, "The Primrose Ring," is published in May.

William Dean Howells has returned to New York from his southern trip, and is to write his impressions of Charleston and St. Augustine for Harper's.

Gertrude Atherton was not a very willing guest of the hospital to which he was forced to go. After spending a few days there she remarked to a friend, "I have always wanted to know from the inside what a hospital experience was like, so it is all right.

One of the most graceful dedications written in a long time is the following, which appears in the English edition of James Lane Allen's "Sword of Youth":

"The author desires
To dedicate the English edition of this story—a remembrance of the soldier youth of the American Civil War—to the soldier youth of England in this war of theirs."

GEORGIA EXCHANGE TO HANDLE FRUIT OF FOUR STATES

Probably the finest peach crop, in point of size, juiciness and flavor, that this state has ever known will go on the markets of the country during the coming week, according to announcement made Saturday at the offices of the Georgia Fruit Exchange. The general movement of the peach crop will be made the first of June. A few carloads of peaches were shipped out of the state last week, and these were received with the highest praise.

The prices received for these first shipments indicate that the markets are in position to take and pay as good prices for high-grade Georgia peaches this year as last year, provided they are marketed in normal quantities.

The problem now confronting the Georgia Fruit Exchange is that of distribution in order to prevent a glut on any one market, which would have a tendency to greatly reduce the prices of fruit in that market.

The exchange has just closed contracts with the leading independent growers and growers' associations in Alabama, Tennessee and South Carolina, to market the peach crop in those states, as well as in Georgia, which will still further enable the exchange to regualte the shipment of peaches, which will, it is believed, keep prevailing prices of peaches throughout the country such as to net a profit to the growers.

There was a meeting of the transportation officials and refrigerator car line officials held in Atlanta on Thursday, May 27, and in Macon on Friday, May 28 which were attended by General Manager B. J. Christman, and at which arrangements were perfected for handling the fruit crop with the same express-like service as last year.

The offices of the exchange represent a busy scene with the installation of additional long-distance telephones in place, a direct telegraph wire which will connect the exchange with the principal distributing points throughout the country, and put the exchange in direct communication with every grower of peaches in the state of Georgia.

COMMISSIONER PRICE ISSUES HANDSOME BOOK ON GEORGIA

J. D. Price, commissioner of agriculture, has just published a book on Georgia.

The booklet is one of the prettiest ever published. It is handsomely illustrated with beautiful scenes from Georgia farming and manufacturing industries and is gotten up in remarkably pleasing, artistic style.

The matter printed in the book gives a very clear and concise review of the industries, particularly agricultural, in Georgia. It shows the splendid work that is being done and the great possibilities of Georgia farm lands in most convincing manner.

Commissioner Price has been highly complimented by hundreds upon the success he has achieved in the publication of this little book.

ALLEGED INCENDIARY SKIPS $1,000 BOND

Captain W. R. Joyner, state fire inspector, returned from New York this morning, where he went to attend the trial of R. L. Shaddix, on a charge of burning the home of Leff Hall, as accomplice before the fact. He stated however, that the trial was not held on account of the fact that Shaddix had forfeited his bond of $1,000 and skipped out.

L. F. Taylor owned a shop and store, at Harrison, near Cowan, which was burned. It was charged that Shaddix, who was an employee of Taylor, had been engaged by Taylor to come to burn the building. Both men were arrested and released under $1,000 bond each.

Taylor waived preliminary hearing Saturday morning.

The sheriff is looking for Shaddix.

Professor C. H. Bruce, Macon; B. W. Fortson, Arlington; Dr. O. G. Simpson, Newcross; Ernest Camp, Monroe; Dr. John W. Simmons, Brunswick; Dr. J. B. Barnett, Dublin; H. C. Greene, Greenville; Dr. H. J. Read, Zebulon; Thomas E. Casey, St. Mary's; P. P. Pirkle, Hoschton.

SHRINER CASE HEARING IS SET FOR JUNE 7

The supreme court of Georgia has set the first Monday in June for the hearing of the appeal of the case of Folsom et al v. Forrest Adair et al.

The case was a petition for a permanent injunction brought by Forrest Adair, potentate of Yaarab temple, Ancient Arabic Order of Knights of the Mystic Shrine, and others, to prohibit Folsom and other negroes from the use of the name, "Ancient Egyptians Arabic Order of the Knights of the Mystic Shrine," as the name of a fraternal order. Mr. Adair won and the negroes appealed.

In the supreme court Justices Lumpkin, Atkinson and Hill are disqualified to sit and, at their request, Governor Slaton has designated the following judges to sit in their stead:

Judge J. B. Jones, of Gainesville; Judge W. E. Thomas, of Valdosta, and Judge E. E. Cox, of Camilla.

SUFFRAGE SCHOOL TO HEAR DR. KIME

At next Wednesday's session of the suffrage school that is being conducted by the Atlanta Equal Suffrage Association, Dr. H. R. Kime, president of the Law and Order league, will address the school on "Civic Efficiency and Good Citizenship."

This session of the school will be held on next Wednesday afternoon in the parlors of the Ansley hotel.

Dr. Belsham to Preach.

Dr. R. A. Belsham has returned from St. Louis, Mo., where he went to attend the Alliance convention. He will preach this morning at 11 o'clock and at 3 p. m. at the Christian and Missionary Alliance tabernacle, 79 Capitol avenue.

This Week in Atlanta Theaters

"Long Tack Sam," feature act at the Forsyth theater.

Keith Vaudeville.
(At the Forsyth.)

The success of last week's vaudeville program at the Forsyth will, it is believed, be eclipsed in brilliance and variety by this week's bill.

The headliner, Long Tack Sam, and his company of magicians, present an elaborate repertoire of stagcraft's most amazing feats of mystic science and legerdemain.

Atlanta has awaited Long Tack Sam for many months. Ever since the Forsyth first announced that this magician and his assistants were booked for the future hundreds of inquiries have poured into the Forsyth office.

The extra added attraction of the week is the celebrated team, Gene Hughes, supported by her husband and a splendid cast of all-star players, "Lady Gossip," a satirical dramatic oddity, is this season's vehicle for the illustrious actress, and it is said to be better than any other in which she has appeared in the past.

Atlanta is familiar with the talents of Mrs. Hughes and her husband. The city has oft laughed at her antics and she numbers her admirers in the city by the hundreds.

Musical comedy lovers who remember "The Honeymoon Express," that melange of song, music and beauty, will remember the impression registered by Marie Fenton, who will be one of the most attractive additions to the coming week's program.

She comes to the Forsyth this season with a repertoire containing four brand-new songs that are just out on Broadway, lavish costumes—a change for each song—and a rapid-fire outlay of chatter.

For many weeks Atlanta amusement lovers have been awaiting with keen interest the coming of the Ralph Dunbar troupe of artistic bell ringers, one of vaudeville's most pretentious offerings. The Dunbar aggregation carries 200 varied bells, ranging from 40 pounds, and possessing the sweetest tone of any bells the bell-smith's art has perfected.

Each bell was fashioned in Italy under supervision of Dunbar. The troupe includes Lloyd Garrett, the lovable boy soprano, who sings songs of former periods to the accompaniment of chimes, and Leon Falgar, the bass soloist, singing and manipulating giant bells.

Bob Warren, known as a rapid-fire monologuist, comes direct from Broadway, where he came near excelling Ruth Roye's famous record for bookings on the great "white way." He is well known to Atlanta audiences.

Interest is manifested in the Skipper and Kastrup team of renowned comedians, largely for the reputation that has preceded them to Atlanta, but also because of the fact that this will be their first Atlanta appearance. It will lso be the first Atlanta engagement of the noted Dainty English Trio, an act of three charming London beauties who have just come across to America after a triumphant tour of the big English concert halls.

The Pathe news and weekly reels will open and close the elaborate program.

Department of Home Gardens
EDITED BY
BEAUFORT MATTHEWS

Many Atlantans found health, recreation and financial profit from their gardens last year.

Why not make a fad of having a fine garden every year?

Why not raise as fine lettuce for your own table as is shipped from Sanford, Fla.

You can do it.

Others have.

Suppose you try it this year.

Plan your garden now. Plan it each month. Plant successively.

Peppers and eggplants are often omitted from the home garden.

They pay handsomely. Start early, as they require more care and time to mature than the other vegetable plants—even tomatoes.

Both peppers and eggplants are extreme heat lovers, and must have conditions approaching the tropical, or they will not produce anything. It is useless to set them out before the weather is thoroughly settled and warm. Transplant your plants two weeks after early tomatoes are set out.

A dozen pepper plants or eggplants and two dozen tomato plants will furnish an ample supply for the average sized family.

Buy your plants or plant some good variety in boxes for transplanting in May.

Plan a hot bed. Use it.

If you plant your own seed, be careful in selecting a good variety.

The Bull nose, or Bell and Sweet Mountain have fruits some three inches deep and two or more inches in diameter. The Ruby King is even larger and much milder. For a mild extra early sort, the newer Neapolitan Early is the largest and sweetest used by Atlanta Home Gardeners. The varieties of eggplants are few. Early Long Purple, Black Pekin, New York Improved Spineless and Black Beauty comprise the whole list of all the sorts known.

Black Beauty is said to be the best, and I have seen it grown successfully in middle Georgia. Early Long Purple will give extra early fruits to use before others are ready.

Planting.

Besides having the soil in good condition the plants should be set in rows about one foot apart. The peppers may be planted from fifteen to eighteen inches apart, and the eggplants from eighteen inches to two feet apart. Plant in hills, using barnyard manure as fertilizer.

A few hours before transplanting give a thorough watering, whether they are in pots, boxes or hot beds. If the garden soil is dry, as it often is early in June, water after planting.

Set the plants well into the soil, but do not cover the bud.

Unless irrigation or a hose can be used often, the eggplants should be mulched with light, spent manure or grass clippings.

Watering through a mulch will be doubly effective, and you will have a large yield.

The Atlanta Home Garden league has tried this, and we found it a good way to secure a fine yield of peppers and eggplants. Our tomatoes were the best in the city and we cleared money on our gardens, besides supplying some vegetables for home use. The collective force of the children of Atlanta should be used to maintain a home garden wherever children are interested.

Americans are interested in outdoor life.

Our climate and soil are both favorable for home gardens and beautiful lawns and flower gardens.

Landscape gardening should also hold our interest where it is possible.

FINE EXHIBIT IS MADE BY HOME GARDENERS

At a regular monthly meeting of the Atlanta Home Garden league Friday afternoon the children were invited to exhibit their flowers and vegetables at the suffragists' headquarters on Peachtree street.

Much enthusiasm and interest was evinced among the young gardeners in such terms as:

"Gee, but that's a cinch!"

"Do you get me? But they want to show something."

The consequence of the invitation was that the boys, especially, wished that their gardens were larger and their vegetables better.

LETTER BOX

My Dear Young Gardeners: You should see the Korean boys planting and gathering rice. The average salary for the Korean man per month is $6 in American money. Then home garden is a great acquisition to a Korean home, and the efforts of our boys and girls count toward the support of the family. Many of the boys and girls pay their tuition in school by bringing the amount of rice that they can afford. Some raise chickens and sell them for only ten cents per fryer, and are delighted when they make as much as 11 cents.

Many sell strings of eggs. These are woven in the rice straw, and ten eggs in each string. They sell them for 10 cents per string.

I am so glad to know that Atlanta boys and girls are interested in gardening.

Our garden season is very short in comparison with yours, but we raise all of our rice and a few vegetables during that time.

I hope to hear more of your garden work in the future, for I am interested in boys and girls all over the world. Write to me. Sincerely yours,

MARY D. MYERS.

Seoul, Korea.

My Dear Miss Mathews: I wish you could see my garden. I am going to raise all the radishes and lettuce that we use on our table for the next month. When I eat this up, I am going to set out tomato plants and plant beets. What else can I plant?

EDITH TORRENT.

Editor's Note.—Plant spinach now and transplant Bell pepper plants. I wish I could see your garden. Tell me more about it.

Dear Miss Mathews: You should see my onions and radishes. They are big enough to sell. I am going down on Peachtree street this week and see if anyone will buy them. Mine are as good as anyone's.

RICHARD FLORIED.

Editor's Note.—I like your letter. I am sure someone will buy all the radishes and onions you will raise. Your garden is fine for a boy of your age, and I like it because you've helped your own table first.

Plant tomato and pepper seed in boxes or transplant now for an early garden. Perhaps some of the children have plants to sell. Plant mustard for greens.

Beside to plant in boxes for sale and transplanting: 1, bell pepper; 2, tomato; 3, cabbage; 4, egg-plant; flowers; 1, petunias; 2, geranium cuttings; 2, cobias; 4, phlox.

Panama City, Fla., May 18, 1915.—Dear Miss Mathews: I read your letter box in Sunday's Constitution, and I wish somebody would begin a garden league in Panama City.

We have fine truck gardens all over Florida, and the finest orange groves I'll bet you ever saw. You could raise most anything in Panama City. The lettuce and celery fields in Sanford are the most beautiful in the world, and are owned by northern capitalists. You should see the pineries and grapefruit orchards. They are wonderful, and the men who own them certainly make a lot of money.

Plenty of flowers grow in Florida, too. Old Ponce de Leon and those Spanish fellows knew what they were talking about when they named the land a land of flowers.

My mother says you certainly must be having a hard time getting Atlanta children to get much out of Atlanta soil, for it is full of mica and is in the belt of hills. Papa says it is the poorest land in Georgia for good gardens, but that he bets the Atlanta Home Garden league makes it blossom out in spite of such drawbacks. He thinks Atlanta gets all she wants and if she wants good gardens she'll get them, too.

LALA SMITH.

Editor's Note.—The Atlanta Home Garden league is glad to hear from a boy who does things. We think there was a league in Panama City. There certainly should be. Can't you start one? Read our calendar and make one suitable for Panama City. Let us hear from you again.

Chattahoochee, Ga.—Dear Miss Mathews: I have a garden at home. It has lots of vegetables in it already. I've planted many of the things the Garden league boys and girls are planting. I have radishes, tomatoes, mustard, onions, peppers and green peas. The peas are blooming. They are growing mighty fast since it rained. You should see them.

I am going to plant some garlic and beans tomorrow.

I have watermelons and squashes. I forgot to tell you that. Could I join the league.

KATE BOWLER.

Editor's Note.—You certainly can join the league. We want all the boys and girls who live in the country around Atlanta to come in and show some of their vegetables at the libraries. You should see the display of your radishes and onions right now.

Plant tomato seed in a box and be ready to transplant them in June for a late crop.

"Story of Georgia Marble," Title of Booklet Being Distributed by Quarries

The Georgia Chamber of Commerce announces that 40,000 educational booklets, entitled "The Story of Georgia Marble," are being distributed by the quarries of north Georgia.

The booklet, compiled Sam Tate, of Tate, Ga., the first three booklets off the press were bound in handsome morocco, embossed in gold and presented to Governor John Marshall Slaton, Hon. James D. Price, commissioner of agriculture, and Hon. Charles J. Haden, president of the Atlanta chamber of Commerce. The booklet is very attractively gotten up, and the story of the marble industry of Georgia is tersely and clearly told, while many beautiful illustrations show the magnificent buildings of Georgia marble that have been made from Georgia marbles.

HICKS IMPROVING AFTER OPERATION

L. D. Hicks, advertising manager of the Georgian, and well known locally in the Atlanta Rotary club, who has been ill at his home on Summit avenue for the past two weeks, underwent a successful operation for appendicitis at the Davis-Fischer sanitarium Friday afternoon.

Mr. Hicks' hundreds of friends in the Rotary club, the Ad Men's club, the chamber of commerce and other organizations of which he is active will learn with pleasure that he is now on the way to sure recovery.

REV. HAWKINS TO PREACH AT THE FIRST METHODIST

In the absence of Dr. DuBose, pastor of the First Methodist church, the pulpit will be filled this morning by the Rev. Hugh Hawkins, of the Decatur Orphans' home. Dr. A. M. Highlett, presiding elder of the Atlanta district, will speak in the evening.

Dr. DuBose is preaching the commencement sermon before the University of Louisiana, Baton Rouge.

Amazon Explorer Swears By Grape-Nuts

The question of food supplies was a big one. Economy of space—food value—keeping qualities—palatability—all had to be considered.

Lange chose for his standby—

Grape-Nuts

Here is the way he refers to this food here and there through his book, "The Lower Amazon."

"I have included in my supplies Grape-Nuts."

"At lunch I eat some Grape-Nuts (an American breakfast cereal) with condensed milk."

"I go back to the moloca at noon to eat my lunch of roast turtle, Grape-Nuts and hard-tack."

Everywhere—at home or abroad—wherever big things are accomplished—this famous wheat and barley food is relied upon to build and sustain vigor and energy of body, brain and nerve.

Driving Club Terrace Scene of Dinner-Dance

The informal dinner-dance at the Piedmont Driving club was a beautiful entertainment last night, assembling a large company for dinner and dancing on the terrace. The tables had effective decoration in sweet peas.

Miss Ellen Wright Wise, of Richmond, who is visiting Mr. and Mrs. John S. Cohen, was a charming center of attention, the guest of honor in a party entertained by Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Clarke.

Their guests included eighteen of the young unmarried set.

Mr. and Mrs. Turner Fitten entertained in compliment to Miss Louise Black and Mr. John Fitten McDougald, the party including Mr. and Mrs. John S. Cohen, Dr. and Mrs. A. L. Fowler, Mr. Charles I. Ryan, Mr. Daniel Rountree.

Mr. and Mrs. George J. Dexter's guests were Mr. and Mrs. John E. Murphy, Mr. and Mrs. Clark Howell, Mr. and Mrs. Franklin Mikell, Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Cosgrove, Mr. and Mrs. Milton Dargan.

Others entertaining in parties together were Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Dorsey, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas H. Daniel, Mr. and Mrs. William F. Spalding, Mr. and Mrs. John Morris, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. James T. Williams, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph S. Raine, Mr. and Mrs. W. I. Young, Dr. and Mrs. Thomas D. Hinman, Dr. E. G. Ballenger, Mr. and Mrs. Hilliard Spalding, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Davis, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Wessels, Mr. and Mrs. Cam Dorsey, Mr. William Franklin, Mr. Thomas Lyon, and others.

The Argentine Club Dance.

The dance held by the Argentine club at the club rooms in West End Friday evening presented a gay assembly of a large number of the younger set, and was a most enjoyable occasion.

A string orchestra rendered the latest dance music, and a feature was the playing of operatic selections before dancing commenced and during intermissions.

The hall was prettily decorated, and the interior arrangements have been recently changed, giving more dancing space.

Following were chaperons, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Brotherton, Dr. and Mrs. W. A. Upchurch, Mr. and Mrs. L. Dean McMath, Mr. and Mrs. Karl Kimbrough, Dr. J. O. Seaman, Miss Bessie Jackson, Mr. and Mrs. C. O. Burns, Mrs. F. C. Thayer, Mr. and Mrs. Myer Lovelace, Mr. and Mrs. Claude K. McGinnis, Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Carr, Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Ferguson and Mr. and Mrs. C. L. McHan.

Among the young people seen dancing were Miss Lucile Dunn, Miss Lillian White, Miss Annabelle Frost, Miss Ordra Thayer, Miss Beulah Dell Harrison, Miss Nell Toy, Miss Mary Turner, Miss Lucy Elder, Miss Vivian Clyburn, Miss Marguerite Henley, Miss Jacqueline Rhodes, Miss Lorena Brotherton, Miss Mary Taylor, Miss Virginia Williams, Miss Katie Moore, Miss Mable Muldrow, Miss Peachy Henley, Miss Elizabeth Willis, Miss Juliette MacKnight, Miss Nell Crockett, Miss Annie Lois Coleman, Miss Eloise Callahan, Miss Evelyn Moore, Miss Dorothy Thomas, Miss Louise Mellichamp, Miss Roberta Cook, Miss Mae McMillan, Miss Nellie Bayless, Miss Susie Shaw, Miss Ruth Brown, Miss Irene Porter, Miss Martha Conrad, Miss Mable Whitney, Miss Blanche Foster, Miss Idella Andrews, Miss Alma Nance, Miss Thelma Thomas, Miss Gladys Sands, Miss Phoebe Kirk, Miss Florrie Griffin and Miss Jennie Mae Calloway, Mr. Norman L. Italians Are Advancing Toward Trent and Thrist As Austro-Germans Retire Conviction Is Growing That the Teutons Will Conduct a Defensive Campaign Against Invaders.

London, May 29.—The Italian campaign is developing along two well defined lines, in the shape of advances toward the Austrian cities of Trent and Triest. Italian troops are reported to be advancing on Trent from the south, the northwest and the southwest, in the eastern lines, north of the gulf of Triest, the invaders are said to have occupied additional territory. Resistance of the Austro-German forces is reported to have become stronger, however. A Geneva dispatch states that the conviction is growing that they will conduct a defensive campaign.

The Austrian war office reports that several naval airmen made a raid on Venice, dropping many bombs. An arsenal was damaged by fire and an explosion occurred in Fort Nicolo. No news of this raid has come through official Italian sources.

RIVA SHELLED BY THE ITALIANS.

Geneva, Switzerland, May 29.—(Via Paris.)—The Italians, after a severe fight along the frontier north of Lake Idro, have captured the town of Storo and now are bombarding Riva.

Bayonet fighting is in progress south of Goritz. The Austrians are retreating slowly. Italian forces have arrived before Gradisca, about 16 miles from Triest.

Italian authorities issued an order last night prohibiting Austrians and Germans from leaving the country.

ITALIAN FORCES NEARING TRENT.

Italian Frontier, May 29.—(Via Paris.)—Italian troops are advancing in the direction of Trent from the northwest and from the southwest. They are pushing forward to the north of Condino and eastward from Tonale.

Condino is about 30 miles southwest of Trent. Tonale is approximately the same distance northwest of Trent.

A duel between the Austrian and Italian artillery in this region was rendered difficult by heavy rains and stormy weather, the low lying clouds making it impossible to see beyond a certain distance.

ITALIANS TAKE HYDRO-AEROPLANE.

Rome, May 28.—(Via Paris.)—An official communication, issued today by Vice Admiral Thaon Di Revel, the chief of the Italian staff, says that on May 27 an Austrian hydro-aeroplane was captured near the Italian coast.

AUSTRIAN AIRMEN RAID VENICE.

Vienna, May 29.—(Via London.)—In an air raid on Venice last night several Austrian aviators dropped many bombs were dropped, causing several extensive fires and one fatality. One of the other bomb caused an explosion in Fort Nicolo. News of the raid is given in an official statement issued tonight by the war office.

The statement follows:

"On the southwestern war theater the Italians have reached the frontier plateau of Alta and the district of Primolano, the coast district mine fighting has developed into regular battles and a Italian battalion has been dispersed. Near Plava a hostile detachment was dispersed and near Gorizia five enemy attacks have been repulsed.

"Last night several naval airmen undertook a new action against Venice, dropping a great number of bombs, especially on a general, causing several extensive fires, and in Fort Nicolo, an explosion."

TWO ITALIAN ARMIES ADVANCING ON TRENT.

Brescia, Italy, May 29.—(Via Paris.) Dispatches received today from the Austro-Italian frontier say Italian troops, with a strong contingent of mounted artillery, continued to advance north of the idro lake along both sides of the Chiese river. From their new positions the Italian forces command the town of Condino.

Another Italian force is penetrating from Tonale pass into the Vermiglio valley, with the evident object of preventing the Austrians from taking possession of a section of the enemy's territory.

TEUTONS PRESS ON PRZEMYSL.

Berlin, May 29.—(Via London.)—The Austro-German advance on Przemysl is continuing unchecked. The official announcement issued today at the war office says further ground has been gained.

It is announced also that German aviators dropped bombs on St. Omer, Calais and Dunkirk, 25 miles southeast of Calais.

The statement follows:

"Western theater.

"Yesterday afternoon when we had repulsed the French in the Arras line in the immediate rear, weak forces which had been occupying the eastern portion of Ablain whose advanced position could have cost useless bloodshed.

"South of Souchez the French last night attempted an attack, but it was defeated at the outset.

"Castle Le Carital, mentioned by the French as having been taken by them, and which lies southwest of Souchez, has been and is in our possession.

"Southeast of Neuville we easily defeated an attack prepared by the French and carried out by hand grenades and mines.

"In the forest of Le Pretre, northeast of Pont-a-Mousson, the French on the evening of the 27th appeared to have prepared a great attack, but our fire kept them down. Enemy attacks by night at various points were repulsed with large losses.

"Our airmen dropped bombs on the fortified towns of Gravelines (a French seaport 12 miles northeast of Calais and Dunkirk, as well as St. Omer. They succeeded in making several hits at the aviation field north of Pismes (in Marne, 17 miles from Rhelms).

"Eastern theater.

"On the upper Dubysa the Russians attacked to the southeast of Kartowiany and southeast of Kielmy, without success. In the continuation of the battle on the lower Dubysa the enemy was driven across the river. In the pursuit 350 more prisoners were taken.

"Southeastern theater:

"Our troops advanced in the region of the San river toward Przemysl. Between the Wyszin and Laborcza rivers, east of Radymno and Jaroslau, the Russians have made several desperate attacks, but they were driven back everywhere. The Russian infantry regiment No. 171 has been wiped out. West and south of Sienlawa the enemy has not ceased his attacks."

RUSSIANS REPULSED, AUSTRIANS CLAIM.

Vienna, May 29.—The Austrian war office has issued the following regard to operations against the Russians:

"In the northeastern theater of the war on the Lubaczowka and east of Radymno the Russians yesterday and last night attacked at several points, but were everywhere repulsed, with severe losses. On the east bank of the San river the allied troops are advancing under a continual fire. On the upper Dniester and near Drohobycz and Stry, our attacks are progressing. The Russian attacks everywhere have been repulsed."

RUSSIANS DRIVE TEUTON FLANK.

Petrograd, May 29.—(Via London.)—Army officers here assert that the Russian victory at Sienlawa, on the San, in northern Galicia, has affect the successes of the Austro-German forces at Radymno and Gousskow.

At Radymno the Germans occupied territory on the right bank of the San extending five miles east and an equal distance south of the village. East of Gousskow they advanced a short distance toward Lemberg. There gains are regarded here as isolated movements, while all the whole left flank of the German army operating between the Vistula and the Carpathians is being pressed back by the Russians and the line from Sienlawa to the mouth of the San. In this region the Russian forces threaten the German rear from the north.

Both north and south of Przemysl the Austro-German assaults are being prosecuted with unusual vigor, but as yet no direct assault has been made on the fortress itself. The aim of the Germans apparently is to encircle Przemysl and attempt to work into a position from which it will be possible to proceed directly toward Lemberg.

Direct official communication was issued tonight:

"The great battle between Sienlawa and Przemysl has not subsided on the 28th of May 28. Strong enemy attacks between Przemysl and the great marshes of the Lubaczowka and Wisloka were repulsed on May 27 and 28.

"The Russian troops assumed a vigorous offensive on the left bank of the Avitsza and the whole front as far as the Jaroslau-Lemberg and captured on the night of May 28, near Cerekiszki, 2 officers and 200 men, including officers, a flag of a Honvd regiment and several machine guns."

NEW PROGRESS FOR FRENCH.

Paris, May 29.—The war office issued the following official communication tonight:

"In the sector to the north of Arras we have made new progress. After having repulsed with a violent counter attack the German counter attack, reported this morning on our trenches at Ablain and Carency, we have the offensive and captured at first the greater part and then all of the houses of Ablain which the enemy held, and we again are the masters, holding the entire village.

"The engagement is very hot, and we killed or drove to flight three companies of Bavarians.

"At Neuville St. Vaast street fighting has occurred and we took a new group of houses to the north-east.

"In the country south of Carency, Ablain-St. Nazaire was easily repulsed.

FUNERAL OF S. A. ORR TO TAKE PLACE TODAY

The funeral of Samuel A. Orr, a resident of Atlanta since 1852, will be held at the First Christian church this afternoon at 5 o'clock. Dr. L. C. Brickey, the pastor, will officiate, and the interment will follow in Oakland cemetery.

Mr. Orr was 82 years old, and died Friday evening at his home, 105 West Baker street, after an illness of one week. Mr. Orr was born in New York in 1832, and came to this city when 20 years old. He served in the Confederate army and had taken an interest in public affairs all his life. He was the oldest member of the Christian church of Atlanta, which he joined in 1852, and had been an elder for many years.

He is survived by two sons, S. C. Orr, Atlanta, and W. B. Orr, Baneville, Ga., three daughters, Mrs. J. B. Gould, Mobile, Ala.; Mrs. W. B. Hickerson, Dothan, Ala., and Mrs. Lane Mitchel, Atlanta.

Mayor Woodward Gets "The Terrible Truth" But Is Still Defiant

Refused a permit by Mayor Woodward to speak on the streets, Dr. Herman F. Titus, who styles himself the "Apostle of free speech and a four-hour work-day," has gratified his ambition to express himself to Atlantans by beginning the publication of a weekly newspaper, which bears the title, "The Terrible Truth." The mayor was one of the first to receive a copy of the paper.

The first issue of the paper is devoted to a discussion of "free speech," and the mayor's action in refusing him a permit. He reproduces copies of permits issued by mayors of several other southern cities, and declares that Mayor Woodward's refusal to issue the permit is illegal.

Organized labor in Atlanta, whose cause Dr. Titus says he represents, has taken up the flight and a "Free Speech Mass Meeting" will be held at the Capitol Thursday night, when speakers discuss the mayor's actions. Louie P. Gault, president of the Georgia State Federation of Labor, will preside, and Dr. Titus will be the principal speaker.

"I refused to issue the permit, and I will do so again," declared the mayor Saturday. "If the man were a murderer I would consider his proposition and would probably give the permit, but Titus is not. He is a menace to the public to allow these men to hold meetings on the streets, blocking traffic and injuring business for concerns which pay licenses and taxes for protection."

When told that Chairman W. P. Patterson, of police commission, had referred to Dr. Titus' speaking on the street the mayor declared that Chairman Patterson had nothing to do with it. Dr. Titus and his friends contend that the city ordinance provides that the mayor and chairman of the police commission shall both have power to give such permits.

An effort will be made, it is said, to have the ordinance covering this matter repealed, Harry Gilbert, editor of The Journal of Labor, in last week's issue, advocated the repeal of the entire permit ordinance.

MORTUARY

Thomas A. Latham.

News has been received in Atlanta of the death of Thomas A. Latham, Saturday evening, at his home in Houston, Texas. He had been ill for a month. Mr. Latham, who was the son of the late Colonel Thomas W. Latham, moved with his family to Texas this fall. The body will be brought here Monday for interment. He is survived by his wife, his mother and two sisters, Mrs. G. G. Cox and Mrs. Edgar Alexander, both of Atlanta.

William Smith, Jackson.

Jackson, Ga., May 29.—(Special.)—William Smith, aged, a Confederate veteran and well-known citizen of the county, occurred at his home at Smith's Ferry last night and was due to cancer. In the civil war Mr. Smith served as a member of Company G, Third Georgia regiment. The funeral was held at Sandy Creek Friday afternoon at 4 o'clock.

J. T. Cook, Jenkinsburg.

Jackson, Ga., May 29.—(Special.)—After a short illness J. T. Cook, one of the county's best known citizens, died at his home at Jenkinsburg Thursday morning. The funeral was at Jenkinsburg Friday afternoon.

John Thomas Romanhof.

REBELLION IN BRAZIL PLANNED BY GERMANS

Rio Janeiro, Brazil, May 29.—The Gazeta de Noticias, in its issue of today, denounced what it described as "German maneuvers in southern Brazil, where the Germans have established an important colony. It declared the German colonists assembled a depot of war munitions, and that it was their intention to proclaim the independence of the state of Sainte Catherine. The outbreak of the war in Europe caused them to postpone carrying this project into effect, it was said. The German minister has promised an investigation.

The Gazeta de Noticias says it questioned the Brazilian minister of agriculture on these revelations, and he replied that the story was greatly exaggerated. On the other hand, says the paper, an under secretary of state of Brabil admitted that he had spoken to the German minister on the subject.

MEMORIAL SERVICES FOR HERBERT S. STONE

Chicago, May 29.—Memorial services for Herbert Stuart Stone, who lost his life on the Lusitania, were conducted by Dr. John Timothy Stone at the Fourth Presbyterian church here today. Had Mr. Stone lived this would have been his forty-fourth birthday. Chicago was his home for many years.

Among those present were Mr. and Mrs. Melville E. Stone, his parents; Mrs. William G. McCormick, of Baltimore, mother of his widow, and other relatives and friends from various parts of the country.

PEACE OF MEXICO RESOLVE OF WILSON

In view of these conditions, according to reliable information, the statesmen will serve notice that as the situation has grown intolerable to foreigners and the Mexican people alike, the Mexican chiefs must arrange for an early solution of the problem. Unless this is forthcoming soon, it will be indicated to the military leaders in Mexico that some other means may have to be employed to assist the Mexican people. The president does not intend to specify this government's course for the present.

Possibility of Intervention.

Officials did not deny today that if the Mexican factions failed to compose the situation, there was a possibility of intervention by the United States. It was pointed out, however, that what might have previously been considered by some Mexicans as an aggressive intervention, has now changed on account of the famine conditions in the country and the condition designed to save the Mexican people helpless in the hands of military bosses. It is pointed out in well informed quarters that one result of the food situation, if famine continues, would be a direct appeal to the United States government by large numbers of Mexican people for intervention.

The new phases in the Washington government's policy may take several weeks to develop. For the present efforts will be made to get food to the Mexicans. The seizure by the Carranza authorities of 900 tons of corn purchased by the international relief committee is one of the obstacles which has aggravated the situation considerably, and it is expected notice will be served on the Mexican generals to permit the passage of relief supplies or the American government may be constrained to undertake the distribution of supplies through its own agencies.

Famine is Threatened.

The plan of President Wilson has been evolved after many conferences with cabinet officers and others. The report of Duval West, who returned last Tuesday after an investigation in Mexico, confirmed the impressions of the president that none of the factions seemed able to control the military situation, and that famine was threatening in many parts of the republic.

The president is said to be hopeful that the effect of his statement will be to draw the better elements of the Mexican military factions together into some constructive plan for the establishment of a government that could be accorded recognition by the United States.

Eliseo Arredondo, head of the Carranza agency here, issued a statement tonight, declaring every facility would be afforded by General Carranza to relief work, and that President Wilson's appeal was deeply appreciated.

General Carranza was held in the statement to be innocent of any "charge of neglect or criminal indifference in connection with the food situation, and it will be remembered that no such charges exist anywhere in Mexico where the constitutionalist government is in control."

The statement advanced further that Carranza forces under General Pablo Gonzales are moving toward Mexico City to take the capitol and relieve distress there. In the meantime, Mr. Arredondo adds, no one "will expect Mr. Carranza to ship from the peaceful territory under his control this food necessary for the inhabitants of Mexico City to feed the bandits who are responsible for the present situation."

RED CROSS APPEALS TO ALL GOVERNORS.

Washington, May 29.—Reports of hunger and suffering poured into American Red Cross headquarters today from all parts of Mexico. Supplementing its appeal for aid the Red Cross sent this telegram to all state governors:

"There are a large number of unfortunate people in Mexico facing death by starvation, and the president of the United States and the American Red Cross make an appeal for immediate food supplies. Gifts of corn, beans, rice and flour will be accepted at any point in the United States and forwarded by the Red Cross to Mexico to reach the people in distress.

"Money may be sent to local Red Cross treasurers or to the Red Cross headquarters in Washington, before donated supplies are sent from any point instructions from Washington will be furnished for routing. The most practicable gateways into Mexico at present, however, and under the present conditions are Vera Cruz (via Galveston), Brownsville, Laredo, Eagle Pass and El Paso, Texas, and Nogales, Ariz."

While supplies can enter Mexico through Vera Cruz, there is the question of whether the Carranza or Villa forces will interfere is still bothering officials.

H. W. Catlin, who recently arrived from Texas, left the Red Cross officials today that beans were being shipped from Vera Cruz to Cuba while people are starving a few miles outside the Carranza capital. There were practically no food supplies to be purchased in Vera Cruz, he said, and on his own plantation, south of the old capital, "every grain of corn had cut the corn before it was ripe.

Catlin said only a few miles of track had been torn up on the road between Mexico City and Vera Cruz.

REPORTED KILLING OF WILLIAM BYRD.

Washington, May 29.—The state department has inquired through consuls at Vera Cruz and Tampico into reports of the killing by Mexicans at Tampico of William Byrd, Jr., an American, of Mineral Wells, Texas, a belated letter from Tampico to his father brought the report.

HEAVY LOSSES FOR VILLA ARMY.

El Paso, Texas, May 29.—The Villa army, in its assault on the Obregon positions below Leon last week, lost more than 5,000 men, according to reliable private advices received here today.

Arrivals from the south stated that 1,000 wounded arrived yesterday at Chihuahua City, while similar numbers were transported to other cities along the Central railroad.

More than 1,000 dead, it was estimated, were left before the Carranza trenches, and these bodies, together with those of horses, threatened an epidemic.

The raiding of an English-owned ranch and the killing of a Mexican employee was reported. Four hundred men under General Eulalio Gutierrez, who was provisional president of Mexico under the convention government, but now is operating independently of the Villa or Carranza factions, occupied the Cedros hacienda, west of Camacho, on the Central railroad.

Some of his men cut the railroad between Aguas Clientes and Zacatecas, but the damage later was reported repaired by the Villa troops, who were using the line for transportation of supplies.

Conditions caused by lack of foodstuffs were not reported as critical in Villa territory in north central Mexico nor in the isolated portions of the southern district. The railroad between the Villa front and the border was not interrupted for any great length of time during the present campaign, and food supplies were moved freely.

Flour for Belgians.

Pittsburg, May 29.—Mayors and burgesses of 28 towns in western Pennsylvania at a dinner here last night pledged 157,250 sacks of flour to be sent at once to starving non-combatants in Belgium. This amount, which represents a cash contribution of $254,500 was pledged in less than thirty minutes.

North Carolina Floated.

Washington, May 29.—The cruiser North Carolina, which grounded in the outer harbor of Alexandria, Egypt, has been floated without damage.

VANDERBILT MILLIONS TO HIS INFANT SONS

Second Wife and Offspring Chief Beneficiaries Under Will of Lusitania Victim.

New York, May 29.—The bulk of the estate of Alfred G. Vanderbilt, who perished on the Lusitania, estimated at more than $50,000,000, is left in trust under his will to his infant sons by his second wife, Margaret Emerson Vanderbilt. They are Alfred G., Jr., and George. The will was filed for probate today.

William H. Vanderbilt, his son by his first wife, Elsie French Vanderbilt, who was divorced, received a trust fund of $5,000,000, the Vanderbilt properties, known as Oakland farm, near Newport, R. I., the portraits and bust of Cornelius Vanderbilt, his grandfather, a gold medal presented to congress to Cornelius Vanderbilt, his great-grandfather, founder of the Vanderbilt fortune. This latter is in addition to a liberal settlement which William H. received from his father during his lifetime. He is now 34 years old.

Mr. Vanderbilt made provision for his widow by leaving her $5,000,000 and the use of $5,000,000 trust fund, together with the Vanderbilt estates in the Adirondacks and Gloucester house, in London, England.

Relatives and friends receive bequests ranging from $1,000 to $500,000. The infant sons share in the rest. The legacies will be held in trust for them until they are 21, when each is to receive outright the accumulated income and one-fourth the principal. At the ages of 25, 30 and 35 years each son is to receive a quarter of the principal, the trust to terminate terminating when each is 35 years old.

The bulk of the Vanderbilt millions passed to Alfred G. Vanderbilt on the death of his father, Cornelius Vanderbilt, in 1899. The self-made man however, that Alfred must wait till he was 30 before he came into any appreciable part of the fortune. That was to be the receive half. At 35 he was to receive the other half. He was 37 last October. Cornelius, the older brother, cut off with only $7,000,000, received $6,000,000 more as a gift from his father. Cornelius was not mentioned in the will filed today.

Mr. Vanderbilt's brother, Reginald C. Vanderbilt, receives $500,000; his uncle, Frederick W. Vanderbilt, $500,000; Frederick M. Davies, $500,000; Henry R. Anderson, $2,000,000; Frederick Merriam, $250,000; Howard Lockwood, $1,000.

Employees of Oakland farm, Sagamore lodge, Camp Killkare and Gloucester house, in London, will get $100 for each year in service for five years or a full year's wages.

The will is dated December 16, 1913, and was signed in New York city. The executors are Frederick Vanderbilt, Frederick W. Vanderbilt, Henry R. Anderson, Frederick M. Davies and Frederick L. Merriam.

Estimates made when the will was filed place the value of the estate at $50,000,000 were declared tonight to be too high. It was pointed out that a considerable sum would have to be subtracted from the amount of the private estate because of the substantial settlement believed to have been made upon Mrs. Elsie French Vanderbilt at the time of her divorce, besides the $6,000,000 payment made out of Alfred Vanderbilt's estate to his brother Cornelius. This left the estimated amount of the estate at between $30,000,000 and $40,000,000.

MISS FRASER SPEAKS TO THE OLDER GIRLS

Two addresses by Miss Nannie Lee Fraser, of Louisville, Ky., and a Sunday school worker of national repute, and the outdoor play given by the Campfire Girls of North Avenue Presbyterian church, were the features of the first day's sessions of the annual older Girls Conference of Atlanta, held Saturday afternoon at the First Methodist church.

The Secret of Happiness," and "What Shall We Do With It" were the subjects chosen by Miss Fraser, before delegates numbering 200 from all the Sunday schools of Atlanta and suburban towns.

"The Quest of Fire," the play presented on the lawn of the First Methodist church at the conclusion of the conference, was one of the most striking features of the meeting held in Atlanta this season, and was highly entertaining to a large number of people. The play was written by one of the members of the Tomochichi camp, Miss Catherine and for the characters were the actors. They were: Mamie Lou Hall, Elizabeth Vaughn, Catherine Vaughn, Ruth Crusselle, Elise Trippe, Elizabeth Askew, Frances Maude Askew, Pauline Ansley, Ruth Brown, Allene Conoley, Elizabeth Eagan and Josephine Davis. Billie Bowden impersonated Ayott, the flame.

The play was given under the direction of Miss Janie McGauthey, the guardian of Tomochichi campfire.

The officers elected for the ensuing year during the conference were Miss Annie Vernon, president; Miss Alice Coomer, secretary, and Miss Elise Seals, treasurer. The officers-elect will be installed Sunday afternoon by Dr. Marion M. H. Hull during the last session of the conference.

At 3 o'clock the conference will be open to all the girls and ladies of Atlanta who are interested in Sunday school work and the needs of young girls.

JEWELRY STOLEN FROM TWO HOMES FOUND BY POLICE

Detectives John Black and Jim Doyal recovered last night about $1,500 worth of jewels that were stolen from Mrs. Berry's home, 23 Kimball street, several weeks ago, and a large quantity of the jewelry stolen from the Shewmate home, at 606 West Peachtree street, recently.

The jewels were found in a window shade in the home of Marie Daniels, 145 East Baker street, a negress, who was taken into custody and placed through the third degree by the officers in hopes of her telling where the remainder of the precious stones were concealed.

WILSON QUIT BUSINESS FOR COLLEGE BALL GAME

Washington, May 29.—President Wilson forgot pressing international questions today for a college baseball game.

The president has not been feeling as well as usual for the last few days and went on a long automobile ride toward Baltimore today in the hope that air might benefit him. The automobile passed the Maryland Agricultural college, where the local team was playing the nine from St. Johns College, Annapolis.

The president ordered his car stopped and examined for several minutes to watch the game. He bowed smilingly to the students who recognized him.

TOO MANY OFFICIALS AND NO WORK TO DO

would not furnish him with the stone as it was needed.

Heads of some branches of the construction department have been leaving the city from time to time without getting permission, it is charged, and they are said to have remained away from their work several days. Chairman Renfroe announced that he would get an opinion from the city attorney to determine to whom these employees must report and from whom they must get permission to be away from their duties.

He said that the salary of an employee of the department who went to Macon last week and stayed several days may be docked for the length of time he was away from his work. This matter will be referred to the city attorney.

Only two weeks ago Alderman Edgar Dunlap at a street committees meeting, criticised the construction department and stated that unless certain changes be introduced in the method of the work he would take the matter to general council and demand an investigation.

Councilman S. L. Dallas at the same meeting charged that the construction department had scores of men on the payroll that were kept there for their political influence and not for the good of the department. He said he was planning to introduce in the council a resolution to cut down the payrolls and before the same money should be added he expected to take this course.

125 High School Girls Get Diplomas on Friday Evening

With the close, Wednesday, June 2, of the city high schools, 125 young ladies will have completed their course and, on Friday night, they will be awarded diplomas at the commencement exercises to be held at the Atlanta theater. There are seventy-one members of the forty-third graduating class from the Girls' High school, and fifty-four members of the fifth graduating class from the English-Commercial High school.

The annual address will be delivered by President R. J. Guinn, of the board of education, and essays will be read by Miss Margaret Culberson, of the Girls' High, and Miss Pauline Pause, of the English-Commercial High school.

All of the "sweet girl graduates" will be attired in white organdie dresses, which, according to the rule of the board, shall not cost more than $5. The dress will be of the quaint style of 1830, the principal extra trimmings to be six little ruffles on the skirt.

Each of the girls will carry a bunch of pink Killarney roses, and no one will be allowed to send flowers to the theater. The school authorities announce that they may be sent to the homes of the young ladies.

The young ladies will each be furnished with eight tickets to be given to relatives and friends, and others wishing to attend the exercises may secure tickets without charge at the Atlanta theater on Tuesday morning after 9 o'clock. It was formerly the custom to make an admission charge, but the board ruled this year to abandon this plan.

The program for the graduating exercises, as announced by the high school department, follows:

Prayer—Class.
Chorus, "A Maytime Night," Gounod.
Welcome to the Audience—Cora Beale, G. H. S.
Essay, "A Square Deal," written by Ruby Morris, read by Pauline Pause, E. C. H. S.
Chorus, "Serenade," Pierne.
Essay, "The Real High School"—Margaret Culberson, G. H. S.
Address—R. J. Guinn.
Chorus, Waltz, from "Faust," Gounod.

PRETTY ENTERTAINMENT GIVEN AT BATTLE HILL

The Battle Hill Literary society, of the seventh grade, held its last quarterly meeting Friday, May 28, and the program proved of great interest to all present.

The medley of national airs, produced in a most attractive and interesting manner by both girls and boys, showed training and musical talent.

The girls and boys contested for the medals in elocution and oratory were Lillie Collier, Louise Silas, Thelma Clyburn, Sara Garov, Charles Mooney, Sam Sullivan, Clark Landers and Otis Nolan. The exceptional ability shown by these contestants reflects great credit upon their teacher, Miss Hattie Rainwater. The judges awarded the medals to Thelma Clyburn and Charles Mooney.

Commercial Travel Improvement Shown By Piedmont Register

A splendid illustration of the manner in which travel, especially commercial travel, has improved in Atlanta since the first of the year, notwithstanding unfavorable conditions due to the war, is found in the fact that by the 1st of June the Piedmont hotel will have let out approximately 11,000 rooms to the traveling public. Already the figure is above 10,750, which means that at this one hotel alone approximately 15,000 people have visited Atlanta this year.

POLICE PERSONALS

BY TILLOU FORBES.

The beautiful, silver loving cup, presented by Miss Mary Algood Jones, at the recent Charity Horse show, to Mounted Policeman H. J. West, for being the best horseman and having the best mount of any city or county mounted policeman, is now on exhibition at police headquarters.

A big fishing trip is being planned for an early date by Assistant Chief of Police E. L. Jett, Sergeant of Plainclothes Police George C. Bullard and Officer T. D. Shaw, who have been invited by Sheriff Hudson, of Griffin, Ga., to accompany him on a fishing trip near Griffin. The Atlanta police will motor through the country to Griffin, accompanied by Belle isle, an automobile man.

In appreciation of high-class service rendered the police board of commissioners by W. T. Morris, secretary to Chief Beavers, and also secretary to the board, the commissioners have granted Mr. Morris a month's vacation in order that he might accompany the Yaarab Temple patrol to the annual Shriners' convention in Seattle, Wash., in July. Mr. Morris has the good wishes of his fellow-officers that he will be able to qualify as a member of the Yaarab Temple patrol. He will take the trip in any event, and will also visit Yellowstone Park and Golden City.

Patrol Driver George C. Darby reports for duty each midnight wearing a pleasant smile—one so pleasant that his fellow officers remark "Darby is hearing music in the twitterings of the birds these days." Darby married recently, and now Mr. and Mrs. Darby are "at home" to their friends.

Police Chief James L. Beavers writes his friends that he is having a "bully time" attending the annual convention of the International Association of Police Chiefs, at Cincinnati, Ohio. As in former years, since Chief Beavers gained country-wide reputation as a reform chief of police, he was invited by the program committee to be one of the speakers of the convention.

Chief is "telling 'em" that he has the greatest city in Atlanta in the nation. He, too, is inoculated with what is generally termed the "Atlanta Spirit."

Recorder George E. Johnson has been called upon by a number of fraternal orders recently for speeches. The recorder always responds graciously. He has been named general chairman of committees who are preparing for a state council of Red Men, which meets here June 16.

Station Sergeant James A. Hollis, who is captain of the uniform rank, Knight of Pythias, has returned to Atlanta with the delegation of Knights to the grand lodge, which convened at Savannah, Ga., last week. Sergeant Hollis was head of a committee whose special function during the convention was to "boost" Atlanta.

Detective George Garner, who has been in the Grady hospital for several months, suffering from a broken leg, hurt in an auto accident, has been removed to his home. His friends will be glad to know that he will soon be able to walk on crutches, though his physicians say he will not be able to walk without them for some time.

Call Officer Walter McWilliams, who was stationed on duty at fire station No. 12, Inman Park, has been transferred to call duty at Headquarters, and assigned to the morning watch.

Ardent Lover, Beware of the Pneumograph!

Don't Make Reckless Statements to the Lady of Your Choice Unless You Are Certain There Is No Pneumograph at Hand.

THEY are sitting in the front parlor—John and Mary. Father and mother and pestiferous little Willie, the latter a brother of Mary, have gone to bed. The gas is turned low—very low.

"I love you," whispers the young man.

Mary nestles a bit closer to him. It sounds too good to be true. She wonders if John is telling the truth or merely toying with her affections.

"I have never loved anyone else," says the modern Romeo.

Mary cannot stand the suspense longer. She leaves the room for a few moments and returns with a curious-looking instrument. She tells him to adjust it about his chest.

"Do you love me?" asks Mary.

"Why—er—certainly," replies John.

"And you have never loved anyone else?"

"Never—why—er—what's the meaning of all this?"

Mary does not reply—yet. She turns up the gas and peers anxiously at a revolving cylinder attached to the instrument. Then she bursts into tears.

"Go!" she cries. "Leave this house immediately! You have deceived me!"

What is the instrument that Mary used in this imaginary love scene to ascertain the true feelings of her sweetheart? Nothing more or less than the pneumograph, an invention of a Frenchman named Marney.

Primarily, it is an invention for detecting whether a person is telling the truth when called to the witness stand in court procedure. It is even suggested for use in testing criminals, as in the Bertillon method of measurement. And if it proves successful, why not employ it in the game of love? It might be the means of preventing many tears and broken hearts.

Vittorio Bennussi, professor of experimental psychology of the Imperial and Royal University of Gratz, has made some tests with the pneumograph. The instrument, which records the action of the chest in respiration, was adjusted to a subject and connected with a tube leading to a rotating cylinder on which a pointer traced the record of each inspiration and expiration.

According to Professor Bennussi, when the person answered a question truthfully his pneumograph record was like that of normal breathing, in that the time of inspiration was slightly shorter than that of expiration. But when he answered falsely his respiration was modified in such a manner that the expiration was shortened.

Carbonic Acid Gas As a Plant Nutrient

THE value of carbonic acid gas as a plant nutrient has been the subject of considerable recent literature, including an interesting paper by H. Fischer, describing experiments in Germany. The author found that the development of both foliage and flowers was stimulated by an excess of carbonic acid in the air, while the yield of tomatoes was doubled and that of cucumbers increased 12.5 per cent by carbonic acid treatment.

It has generally been held that .03 per cent of carbon dioxide in the air is sufficient for plant growth, but Mr. Fischer thinks that more than this can be utilized, provided there is ample light, and that experiments in this direction might have valuable results.

On the other hand, I. F. Kidd, an English investigator, finds that an excess of carbon dioxide in the atmosphere retards or inhibits the germination of seeds, but without injuring them. He suggests that the production of carbon dioxide in nature by the decay of vegetable matter may play a part analogous to that noted in his experiments.

Meaning of the Barber Pole

IN FORMER times the barber served his customers in the capacity of surgeon, and when the operation of bleeding was extensively practiced he was in the habit of performing in that line. The spiral red stripe so frequently seen on the barber's pole is said to symbolize the winding of a ribbon or bandage round the arm when the blood-letting operation was resorted to.

War as Aid to Aeroplane Invention

THE suddenly increased importance of the aeroplane as a means of warfare has resulted in numerous devices to make their use practicable and safe.

In carrying out scouting observations with military aeroplanes it is necessary to have two men in the machine. The one is a pilot and his duty is to operate and to steer the craft. The other gives his undivided attention to scanning the ground below him and to making sketches of fortified works, observing the disposition of the enemy's guns, the movement of the troops, etc.

Unfortunately, the great noise made by the motor renders it impossible for the two men to carry on any conversation. Often this proves a drawback for a right understanding between pilot and observer. To eradicate this difficulty a loud-speaking telephone system is now in use in most of the cars. Each man is provided with a special helmet fitted with receiver over the ears and a transmitter located in convenient range of the mouth. This is a practical and easy way of carrying on a conversation in spite of tremendous noises made by the motor.

Another argument in favor of the telephone helmet is that it protects the wearer from gun deafness.

Leading French and English scientists have made a thorough investigation on how the soldiers' hearing is being affected by the war. They are one in the opinion that the cannonading is making many a man partially or completely deaf.

The injuries to the drum and the nerve endings are due to sudden condensation or rarefaction of the air in the external auditory meatus. Strangely, one ear is affected more than is the other. Gun deafness is in a measure preventable. This is most easily accomplished by keeping the mouth open, for in this way the atmospheric pressure is equalized. Naval officers intuitively chew toothpicks. This seems to accomplish the same end while the big guns are being fired. Some plug their ears with cotton, but this is not considered sufficient. Jeweler's wax is considered better for plugging the ears.

Where Woman's Voice Is Never Heard

ON MOUNT ATHOS, called the Holy Mountain by Greeks and Slavs, there exists a republic of 6,000 or 7,000 souls, and every one of the inhabitants is a man. Not one woman has ever been there, and, even stranger still, not a female animal of any kind is permitted within its boundaries. It is a republic of males.

For hundreds of years soldiers have guarded the gates that no woman might steal through and profane the cloistered holiness in which the good monks live. Comprising twenty monasteries, a dozen villages and many scores of lonely dwellings, this monks' republic governs itself after the rules of the Greek church as a true theocracy.

Karyas, reached by boat from Salonica, is the capital. It is a picturesque village on the eastern slope of the holy mountain. Overhanging rocks are studded with hermitages and honeycombed with lonely cells. The council chamber is at one end of the single street.

To the synod the monks send twenty-four delegates, who elect a president every four years. He, with a privy council of four, rules the tiny republic and administers its foreign affairs.

Located in the heart of the territory so recently wrested by Greece from Turkey, the foreign relations of Athos have been completely interwoven with the Balkan troubles, and Bulgaria and Serbia have contended with each other for nominal possession.

Yet through all the strife of war the lonely hermits and the silent monks have not broken their daily routine of prayers and service, and this strange womanless theocracy still persists, a picturesque and romantic relic of the middle ages.

Have a Centipede Watch Dog?

EVER thought of making a household pet of a centipede?

Probably not, but you might find it not only a valuable but a harmless one. Its value as a miniature watch dog is so great that any possible danger of poisonous bites are more than outbalanced.

The common house centipede is not a creature to be dreaded, although its bite is more or less poisonous, but there are so few cases on record of its biting human beings that the danger from this source may be said to be negligible. On the other hand, the centipede is a valuable destroyer of other and far more disagreeable vermin.

According to a bulletin of the United States Department of Agriculture, it feeds on house flies, cockroaches, moths, bedbugs and other such pests. It does not eat holes in blankets, curtains, carpets or furniture.

The centipede thrives in damp places, such as bathrooms, closets, cellars and conservatories; it loves hot water pipes and steam radiators. It is not an insect, but one of the order of myriapods.

If by chance a person be bitten by a centipede, bathing the spot with ammonia will speedily cure it.

What the "Death Tick" Really Is

SUPERSTITIOUS people, even in this enlightened age, regard the ticking sound of a certain kind of beetle with terror, believing that it "clicks the hour of death." The name "deadwatch" has been applied from time immemorial to the sound made by this small insect as it burrows in wood.

The beetle in question is an insect of the genus anobium, there being several varieties, to all of which the name deathwatch is popularly given, as well as to their peculiar sound. The body of this insect is firm, not more than one-fourth of an inch long, its head is rounded, the thorax arched. It is said to make its sounds generally in the night, but probably this idea has arisen from the fact that it is only in the silence of the night that the slight sound becomes audible.

Anyone who has watched through the night hours by the bed of one who is dangerously ill can readily understand how the faint tick, tick within the woodwork of the wall came to be regarded as a sound of evil omen. In order to make this peculiar noise the insect draws in the antenna and intermediate legs, and, resting principally upon the median legs, strikes its head against its support by a sort of rocking motion. It is by this noise that the male calls the female.

The deathwatch beetle has the invariable habit of feigning death when seized or disturbed. The simulation is so persistent that when immersed in water, or even in alcohol, the insect remains perfectly immovable, and will allow itself to be burned alive rather than betray itself. The tick made by the deathwatch resembles that made by tapping the finger nail upon the table—so much so that the insect may be led to recommence his sounds by doing this.

Human Skull as Drinking Cup

YOU may have heard reference made to the human skull as "a soldier's drinking cup." But do you know the origin of this expression?

Thomas Middleton was a dramatic critic who flourished in the early part of the seventeenth century. In "The Witch," one of his most celebrated plays, when the duke takes a bowl and is told that it is a skull, he exclaims:

"Call it a soldier's cup;
Our duchess, I know, will pledge us, tho' the cup
Was once her father's head, which, as a trophy,
We'll keep till death."

The barbarous custom of converting the skulls of enemies into drinking cups was a common one in ancient times among the fierce tribes of ancient Europe, and was not unknown to the more civilized regions of the south. The Italian poet, Marino, makes a conclave of friends in Pandemonium quaff wine from the skull of Minerva. In his "Wonder of a Kingdom" Torrent makes Dakker say:

"Would I had ten thousand soldiers' heads,
Their skulls set in silver, to drink healths
To his confusion who first invented war."

The old Scandinavian sages represent as among the delights of the immortals the felicity of feasting and drinking to drunkenness from the skulls of the foes they had vanquished on earth. Mandeville goes further, and represents the Guebres as exposing the dead bodies of their parents to the fowls of the air until nothing but the skeletons remained, and preserving the skulls to be used as drinking cups.

How Shoe Peg Was Invented

TO A Massachusetts man, Joseph Walker, is due the credit of inventing the shoe peg. Previous to the year 1818 its use had not been known, and its inventor gave a new start to the manufacture of boots and shoes.

Shortly after the introduction of this invention some unscrupulous parties are said to have tried to swindle the unsuspecting by endeavoring to sell shoe pegs as a new kind of oats.

Up to 1818 boots and shoes had been sewed, and the peg, made first by hand, came in to revolutionize the trade. It was, however, the custom of shoemakers who lived away from the manufacturing centers to make their own pegs by hand even as late as 1880, but the machine-manufactured peg has now superseded them.

The Skeleton in the Closet

THERE is a skeleton in the closet." How often we hear this expression. But do you know how it is supposed to have originated?

There is an old story that a soldier once wrote to his mother, who complained of her unhappiness, asking her to get some sewing done by some one who had no care or trouble. Coming in her search to one who she thought must be content and happy, this woman took her to a closet containing a human skeleton.

"Madam," said she, "I try to keep my sorrows to myself, but know that every night I am compelled by my husband to kiss this skeleton of him, who was once his rival. Think you, then, I can be happy?"

The answer is just as obvious today. The skeleton is still a depressing object.

About the Early Day Newspapers

AT A very early period daily news letters were circulated concerning public and official acts in Rome, Venice and China. The first printed newspaper was the Gazette, published in Nuremberg in 1457. Other countries followed Germany in issuing printed newspapers in the following order: England, in 1622; France, 1631; Sweden, 1644; Holland, 1656; Russia, 1703; Turkey, 1827.

The progress of journalism has been most rapid in America. The first American newspaper, consisting of three pages of two columns each and a blank page, was published in Boston on Sept. 25, 1690, under the caption of "Publick Occurrences, Both Foreign and Domestic," but it was immediately suppressed. In 1704 the Boston News Letter appeared, printed on one sheet of foolscap paper. It flourished for seventy-two years.

The following data will show the advancement in the United States: First printing office in 1639; first newspaper in 1690; first political paper in 1733; first daily paper in 1784.

Work and Workers in Federation

The itinerary of Mrs. Fitzpatrick, state president, for the past month has included as many of the district meetings as it has been possible for her to attend. Everywhere she is the honor guest, stimulating and inspiring clubs and individual members to develop along all lines of club endeavor. We hear of her from Valdosta, Monroe, Barnesville, Montezuma, LaGrange, West Point, Bullochville, Rockmart and Kirkwood. Our vice president, Mrs. Hays, has been regularly in attendance also, and her report of the work of club extension is second to none in importance and interest.

Mrs. Willet, director of Tallulah school, carries her important message where she can appeal to the most workers and never fails to meet with a sympathetic response.

Leading in the splendid work of bringing clubs into the federation is Mrs. Bruce Jones, of Macon, sixth district president. Her report at Barnesville shows eleven new clubs federated in the four months she has held office.

Today Mrs. Fitzpatrick sends welcome to 16 new clubs federated within the past six weeks, making 26 since October.

Writing of the progress being made by the federation, Mrs. Fitzpatrick says:

"The pegs have been pushed many steps higher in all lines of work since last October. All districts but two have added many new clubs. The sixth has the banner so far, with its eleven new clubs. Mrs. Bruce Jones is going about her work as president in a broad, systematic way that counts. She alone has brought in more than 600 new members.

"I have recently visited LaGrange and West Point clubs, where I was thrilled as I saw on all sides the splendid results accomplished by the untiring and unselfish work of these club women. LaGrange women are enjoying their newly purchased clubhouse. The city authorities of West Point are arranging a beautiful clubroom for the women in the new city hall. The men have helped to entertain at all the district meetings and were interested visitors at every session."

New district presidents elected are: Mrs. Neal Kitchens, Bullochville; Mrs. S. S. Evans, Cedartown; Mrs. F. N. Watkins, Dublin.

Monroe Hostess at Eighth District Annual Convention

The annual convention of the Federated Women's clubs of the eighth congressional district met in Monroe on May 5-7. The convention was opened with a brilliant reception given by the Monroe Civic league on Wednesday evening at the home of Mrs. John M. Newell.

A delightful musical program was rendered by local talent. The special feature of the evening was the splendid address by Mrs. Z. I. Fitzpatrick, the beloved president of the state federation, who was introduced to the audience by the popular president of the Monroe Civic league, Mrs. J. J. Nunnally.

The morning session of May 7 was very interesting. The convention was called to order by Mrs. J. J. Nunnally and greetings were given by Mrs. D. W. Key in behalf of the club women of Monroe, and by Mayor E. W. Roberts in behalf of the city.

A beautiful chorus was rendered by the high school girls of Monroe, "Georgia Land, My Georgia Land." Mrs. Nunnally then introduced to the audience Mrs. S. B. Yow, of Lavonia, the charming district president.

Mrs. Joseph Vason, of Madison, was introduced to the convention and responded to the addresses of welcome in a most delightful manner.

Mrs. Yow then called the convention to order and Miss Lucy Roberts, of Lavonia, was made secretary.

Short talks were made by Mrs. J. E. Hayes, Mrs. Z. I. Fitzpatrick, Mrs. Hugh Willet, Mrs. W. E. Shepherd and Mrs. A. O. Harper.

At noon a most delightful barbecue was tendered the ladies of the Civic league and their guests by the Chamber of Commerce of Monroe. A large number of visitors from Atlanta, Athens, Covington, Madison and other nearby cities were present.

The afternoon session opened with reports from the various clubs of the district, and a general discussion of club work followed.

One of the special features of the afternoon session was the address of Dr. R. E. Park, of the state board of health, on the "New Health Laws of Georgia." This was a very strong address.

The program for Thursday evening consisted of several musical selections and a magnificent address on "The Modern Woman," by Dr. F. H. Gaines, of Agnes Scott college.

First District Convention Entertained at Waynesboro

The district meeting in Waynesboro was well attended and showed that the Women's Federated Clubs of the First District are doing excellent civic and educational work along many lines, and that their members are active, interested and enthusiastic in all matters that affect the welfare of their own towns and of the district as well as in those larger affairs which are the concern of the whole Georgia Federation of Women's clubs. In the annual report of the district president, Mrs. Johnston, welcome was given three new clubs since October, and the hope expressed that the non-federated clubs would soon enlist and unite their valuable forces in unifying the work in the district.

The splendid work that is being done by the fifteen federated clubs represented in the Federation was interestingly reviewed in the reports of the delegates.

Miss Edith Johnston gave a delightful talk on "Girl Scouts' Work," telling how the movement originated, its purposes and how it is carried on.

The report made by Mrs. DeLoach, of Millen, chairman of conservation, was one of the most interesting made. She discussed Georgia's needs for conserving her natural resources, birds, trees, soil and scenery. Other chairmen made interesting reports showing steady progress.

Waynesboro, a charming town with its delightful old homes and lovely gardens, made the visitors welcome in the most hospitable way, and the Woman's club, under the leadership of the able president, Mrs. W. E. Jones, handled the convention most capably.

Fourth District Meeting Is Held at Bullochville

The three words that best describe the fourth district meeting at Bullochville are, Enthusiastic, successful, satisfactory. Every seat in the auditorium at the school was filled at both the morning and afternoon sessions. Almost seventy delegates were present, and representatives from a few non-federated clubs were so impressed that they will federate as soon as their clubs can be consulted. The state officers present were Mrs. Fitzpatrick, our beloved president, and Mrs. Trox Bankston, treasurer.

The Bullochville brass band met the incoming train with their inspiring music and gave several numbers during the session. Miss Mabel Bulloch's rendition of the beautiful song, "Let Us Have Peace," was thoroughly appreciated. Dr. Neal Kitchens' address of welcome was a gem of literature and oratory. This was followed by Mrs. J. O. Butts with a greeting from the Civic Improvement club, who were our gracious hostesses. Mrs. Moreland Zellars, of Grantville, made a most beautiful response to their words of greeting. Mrs. Fitzpatrick was, as she always is, most helpful in her address on "Women's Club Work." She is so tactful and gentle and wise that we feel it almost an impossibility for anyone worthily to take her place. Mrs. J. L. Bond, of Columbus, agricultural demonstrator for Muscogee county, gave an instructive and illuminating talk on "Soils" and on the girls' canning clubs. Miss Kobelsperger, superintendent of the Georgia Training School for Girls, told of her work and of the school. She was listened to with rapt attention, and the enthusiastic interest she aroused was the most impressive incident of a day full of good impressions. Her magnetic and vigorous personality and her earnest Christian viewpoint convinced everyone that she was indeed the right woman in the right place.

A most beautiful luncheon was served to over a hundred women by the Civic Improvement club at the Tuscawilla hotel, a handsome building recently erected and equipped with all modern conveniences.

The afternoon session was devoted to club reports, each one of which was well put together, and showed splendid work along the lines of education, civics, literature, music and welfare work. Several reports were given with so much quaint humor as to cause continuous ripples of laughter from the audience.

Mrs. Neal Kitchens, of Bullochville, was unanimously elected to the presidency of the fourth district. Mrs. Harvey Nimmons, of LaGrange, was elected secretary. Mrs. Mike Powell, president, and Mrs. Paul Dismukes, secretary, were the rtiring officers.

Splendid Annual Meeting Held by Seventh District

The magic number was certainly in excellent working order on May 4, ready for the seventh annual meeting of the Seventh District Federation of Women's clubs, which took place at Rockmart. No day could have been fairer, no hostesses more charming and no meeting place more attractive than the handsome new Methodist church, which was so tastefully decorated with fragrant spring roses; and no guests could have felt more welcome than the forty or more delegates who listened to the quaint and original address of Mrs. George Dansby, president of the Rockmart club. Mrs. A. O. Granger, whose ready eloquence may always be depended on, voiced the appreciation of the assembly, after which Mrs. Mrs. Claude Irby, president of the district, introduced the guests of honor, Mrs. Z. I. Fitzpatrick, president, and Mrs. J. E. Hays, vice president of the Georgia federation, and the arranged program was then carried out.

Mrs. Fitzpatrick brought a message from the State federation and stressed the necessity of selecting a few things really worth while and concentrating effort on those. She also urged co-operation all along the line of club work. Her talk was informal and unaffected and contained a number of droll illustrations that were much appreciated.

Mrs. Hays told of the extension of the club movement throughout Georgia, which now contains 25,000 enthusiastic club women, and the force this body is exerting in matters pertaining to the public good.

Mrs. Irby, in her report, told of what had been accomplished in this district, how the clubs had increased in number from six or seven to nineteen during the four years she had been in office (three new clubs applied for federation blanks during the meeting, bringing the number up to twenty-two), with a membership exceeding 500; and praised the splendid work of each one of them, for each had proved a powerful lever for the uplifting of its community.

Reports of sixteen clubs were then read by delegates, every one deserving of special mention, though the aims of all were practically the same—better schools, more sanitary and beautiful towns, public libraries, rest houses and such worthy objects. Some included philanthropic work—clothing for the needy, attending the sick, obtaining work for the unemployed and securing supplies for the Belgians. Entertainments had been given, lectures secured and a course of study continued throughout the year. Rome, with its three clubs and 225 members, almost a district in itself, is a powerful factor in that thriving city. Cartersville, Calhoun and Cedartown are towers of strength as well as beacons of progress, but it remains for Smyrna, the youngest, to have obtained recognition on the school board. Much interest was manifested in the paper of Miss Mary Jones, of the Etowah Country club, based on the good accomplished by putting opportunities in the way of children in rural communities.

A friendly rivalry arose among Rome, Adairsville and Cedartown, for each came bringing a cordial invitation for the next meeting. That of Cedartown was accepted.

As the terms of Mrs. Irby, president, and Mrs. Irwin, secretary, expired, and they were not eligible for re-election, the following officers were elected: Mrs. S. S. Evans, of Cedartown, president; Miss Louise Schilling, of Marietta, vice president; Miss Marcia Buhholtz, of Dalton, secretary.

Several delightful musical numbers were rendered during the session by some of Rockmart's talented singers, and Mrs. Vassier, of Rome, Mrs. T. E. McBride presiding at the piano. The noon recess was taken up by a most delectable basket dinner served on the "island," the new playground the club has just completed for the children. It was with sincerest regret that at the close of the day the visitors bade adieu to their hostesses and the meeting adjourned to reconvene at Cedartown in 1916.

WOMEN FOR PEACE

Women stand strongly for peace, and rightly. Women feel the awful sacrifices the present war is exacting of their sisters.

The Bainbridge Woman's club and the Bainbridge W. C. T. U. have given expression to their feelings in the following resolutions:

"Whereas, President Wilson has called for an expression of public opinion in regard to the differences existing between the United States of America and Germany, and

Whereas, The Bainbridge W. C. T. U. believes that the commandment of the Almighty, "Thou shalt not kill," applies to nations as well as individuals, that war is barbarism; that the term civilized warfare is a misnomer, that arbitration is the only method by which civilized nations can righteously adjust their differences, therefore,

Be it resolved, That the W. C. T. U. of Bainbridge put itself on record as definitely opposed to war and in favor of arbitration—that it thoroughly indorses the wise and conservative manner in which the administration is handling the present crisis, and that it earnestly begs that every just and righteous method be employed to maintain the neutrality of our nation, and to further the cause of world peace.

Resolved, That a telegram to this effect be sent President Wilson, and that a copy of these resolutions be forwarded to the editor of the club page of The Atlanta Constitution, and that a copy be inserted in The Bainbridge Post-Searchlight.

SUMMARY OF YEAR'S WORK BY ATLANTA BURROUGHS CLUB

Our Atlanta branch has taken in forty new members this year, and we feel that we have completed a very successful winter, filled with varied activities.

The first civic work was an Arbor Day celebration. Our president, Mrs. McMichael, talked with Mrs. Samuel Lumpkin of the city federation about plans for Arbor day. Mrs. Lumpkin interviewed Mr. Slaton and suggested that each school teacher give a five-minute classroom talk about trees, and urge a practical observance of the day.

Our club prepared to celebrate by a tree-planting with appropriate exercises at The Wren's Nest. Miss Gigham's kindergarten and a number of other school children took part in the planting, their absorbing interest and pretty songs adding greatly to the occasion. All listened with interest to a talk on trees by the park commissioner. The visitors were shown a collection of birds and eggs loaned for the purpose, and Dr. Hood talked about birds and their preservation.

In January, the club decided to try to arouse general interest in the attraction, and preservation of birds. A general school canvass was planned. Mr. Hoke Smith being solicited for appropriate literature, and leaflets were printed by the club. Our members prepared one hundred bird larders (made from cocoanuts) and put up one hundred packages of baby-chick scratch food. One hundred paper bags were filled, each containing a cocoanut larder, one pound of food, in farmers' bulletin No. 609 and one leaflet entitled, "Ways to Help the Birds About Atlanta."

Mr. Slaton and Mr. Merry being interviewed, Mr. Slaton promised to forward packages with a letter of instruction—one to each city school. Mr. Merry gave us permission to visit the country schools, talk to the children and present the packages ourselves.

Members of the Burroughs club visited most of the country and private schools, and our reception by teachers and children was most encouraging.

It was decided to offer prizes for bird-house building.

Mr. DeLoach was asked to come to Atlanta and give a practical lesson in bird-box building. The North Avenue Presbyterian Sunday school kindly loaned their hall for the purpose, and each school was invited to send one teacher to the demonstration. On February 26, we put the children's boxes on exhibition in an empty store on Peachtree street, and the next day the prizes were awarded. Five hundred boxes were received from the various schools.

During this month the Atlanta Burroughs Nature club offers one prize each to the boy and girl in grammar school grades of schools in Fulton county reporting the greatest number of birdhouses occupied by birds other than English sparrows and pigeons.

Another branch of our club activities has been walks in the woods to observe and study birds and wild flowers. Since spring opened we have had these walks every Friday afternoon.

All day jaunts have been taken, calling on Mr. Burroughs at Experiment, and studying birds and flowers at Silver Lake and Stone Mountain.

At our indoor meetings, various delightful talks have been given. Mr. Peacock told us of birds and their habits, Miss Prentiss illustrating a talk on the boll weevil by plates loaned by Mr. Worsham, state entomologist, showing the pest in every stage of its development.

Miss Lyons talked about flowers and Miss Bailey illustrated a talk about moths and butterflies by showing beautiful mounted specimens.

To all our meetings visitors are cordially welcomed, a very nominal fee being charged.

All money, including club dues and money earned by selling bird-boxes made by members, has been expended in civic work. We close the year free from debt.

MRS. J. R. MACDONALD.

Mrs. Lamar Sends Message To Members Georgia U. D. C.

To the United Daughters of the Confederacy of Georgia:

Dear Friends: The promptness and enthusiasm with which you have indorsed the action of my home chapter and your executive board in the desire to see Georgia's president elected to the office of president general is most gratifying. Your good will and attention to details herein cited should prove a powerful factor in the result of the election at San Francisco October 20.

It is not unusual for one state to hold two offices on the executive board. The work of the Georgia division on historical, educational, memorial and social lines has marked this state for many honors among U. D. C. It will please you to know that your president refused to consider the plan for her to become president general until Miss Rutherford announced her determination not to stand again for the office of historian general. When reminded that under the new constitution she could hold her position another year, she said: "No. Georgia must not be grasping. This is the time for Mrs. Lamar to run, and we should not hold three offices on the general board." The corresponding secretary general, Mrs. Baker, of Savannah, elected at the last general convention, wrote: "If my holding the position of corresponding secretary will in any way militate against Georgia's president being made president general, I will gladly give up my office."

Your president must leave for the west the 1st of October. For obvious reasons, the hostess chapter could not comfortably entertain the state convention at Thomasville in September, our hottest month. Many Georgia Daughters will not return immediately from the California convention, so that, by virtue of the power vested in me, I fix the third week in November for our 1915 convention.

Before disbanding for the summer, because of the above unusual but unavoidable change of convention dates, it is necessary that you elect your California delegation and alternates. The usual blanks are not yet available, but your state president will be at home all summer, and can communicate with your chapter president and secretary as soon as the credential blanks are sent to the states by the secretary general. Elect your probable California delegation now—providing for variation, if need be, of its personnel later in the summer. Let Daughters who can go volunteer to be delegates.

Jefferson Davis' Birthday.

At your June meeting I ask that you use for program work Miss Rutherford's contrast between President Davis and President Lincoln in her speech at the Savannah convention, "Wrongs that Must Be Righted." Also the accompanying circular letter in the Jefferson Davis Highway project, of which your president is chairman general, and Mrs. J. A. Selden, of Macon, state chaiman.

I ask that at each meeting from now to the end of time you call for subscriptions to The Veteran, which gives news of veterans themselves, stories of famous engagements during the War Between the States, of U. D. C. and S. C. V. The U. D. C. are part owners and directors, and I beg your interest and subscriptions for this valuable magazine.

Miss Mattie Sibley, of Rome, is editor for The Veteran from the Georgia division, and I trust you will send data of general interest to her.

The U. D. C. column has been so meagerly supplied, despite your unusual activities this year that we are liable to lose the space granted by The Constitution to this organization. Similar courtesies have been extended by The Telegraph, which I dared not accept, owing to the fact that you simply will not blow your horn—and I cannot, nor can any one else do it for you. Mrs. J. W. Reeves, Barnesville, state editor.

Have you furnished to Mrs. E. C. Schnabel the information concerning your chapter for which she sent specific blanks?

At the request of Miss Baxter, of the general peace committee, U. D. C., I have appointed Mrs. J. A. Hall of Douglas, Ga. I trust you will co-operate with her.

Is your 35 cents per member for the Georgia room endowment fund paid in full to Mrs. Rebecca L. Nesbitt, 48 Waddell street, Atlanta?

Shiloh.

In the dawn of another year, will probably occur the postponed ceremonies of laying the Shiloh cornerstone. Shortly thereafter a magnificent monument to the soldiers of the confederacy will be reared on that famous battlefield. Thus the dead who sleep there in six long trenches will be lovingly memorialized by the U. D. C. Give generously to this fund through Mrs. John K. Ottley, chairman, Atlanta, Ga.

In my February letter I explained the additional fund for Arlington monument. If every chapter will give to this item this year not less than 10 cents per capita, all would be finished. I trust you will give this, and more. Mrs. James A. Rounsaville, chairman, Rome, Ga.

Let nothing take precedence or cause you to stint your contributions to the Helen Plane scholarship fund, whereby we educate two girls of confederate ancentry at the State Industrial schools. Generosity to this fund is your expression that education is the most practical memorial work of our organization. Mrs. Trox Bankston, chairman, West Point, Ga.

If you can suggest an applicant from your town or county for the scholarship of two years offered through Georgia U. D. C. at the University of Virginia, communicate at once with the chairman of education, Mrs. Bankston, West Point, Ga.

At the Eastman convention Mrs. C. Helen Plane presented the wonders of the opportunity that Mr. Venable, the owner of Stone mountain, has given the Georgia division to lead the U. D. C. of the south in carving upon the flat side of Stone mountain a wonderful memorial to the confederacy. At the Savannah convention Mrs. Plane introduced to the general organization the Hon. John Temple Graves, who, with wondrous eloquence chiseled into the memories of his hearers the possibilities of this great memorial to the confederacy, if taken up by the U. D. C. On motion of Mrs. John Hickman, of Tennessee, the resolution of Mrs. Plane was indorsed without discussion, being seconded by Mrs. Josephus Daniels, of North Carolina. To conduct the preliminary correspondence of our Stone Mountain Memorial association, of which Mrs. Plane is president, funds must be had. Therefore, I ask you send as quickly as possible not less than 50 cents to Mrs. Emma Garrett Boyd, secretary.

The work is so great, its fame will be widespread that Georgia U. D. C. reach out their hands to southerners east and west, to share work and glory in the great enterprise. Toward this future Mecca of artists and patriots, let us turn in sincerity and power.

Renewing my adjuration about immediate election of California delegates, I am, yours to command,

E. D. B. LAMAR,
President Ga. Div. U. D. C.
Macon, Ga.

U. D. C. Chapter Reports

Barnesville.

The May meeting of the United Daughters of the Confederacy was held with the president, Mrs. Walter B. Smith. The beautiful and spacious home was a veritable fairyland. Cut flowers of all kinds made an exquisite background, combined with palms and potted plants.

In the parlors and library sweet peas nodded their heads in greeting to the guests. The dainty decorations made the home a "thing of beauty."

It was time for the election of officers, which was held, but as there were no changes made we will not go into details. Mrs. J. W. Reeves was elected press reporter and Mesdames R. O. Cotter and J. F. Redding were commissioned to write a note of thanks to Mrs. A. M. Lambdin for her beautiful address on Memorial day.

After some discussion it was decided that we go into summer quarters for three months. We felt loath to do so, as we have such pleasant meetings and such an enthusiastic chapter. A literary hour came next.

Following is the program:

"Listen to the Mocking Bird," Miss Grace Neely.

"The Grand Review," Mrs. W. H. Hahr.

"Story of Lorena," Mrs. S. E. Dusenbury.

Song, "Lorena," Mesdames J. F. Neely and J. F. Redding.

"The Flag of Dixie," Mrs. E. L. Cook.

Reading, "Peace Day," Mrs. A. O. Murphey.

"Fallen Braves," Miss Lillie Mitchell.

"Old Black Joe," by the chapter.

MRS. J. F. REDDING.

Fitzgerald.

Ben Hill chapter, U. D. C., held a meeting recently and elected the following officers: Mrs. James Elbert Turner, president; Mrs. S. G. Pryor, vice president; Mrs. Robert Mann, recording secretary; Miss Isla Green, corresponding secretary; Mrs. T. J. Dickey, registrar; Mrs. R. E. Lee, historian; Mrs. Lon Dickey, reporter, and Mrs. Ludlow Griner, treasurer.

The chapter has greatly increased its membership in the past year under the able presidency of Mrs. Turner. The meetings have taken on a delightful social atmosphere, a social hour and delicious refreshments being enjoyed at each meeting.

Fitzgerald is to have the pleasure of entertaining the state confederate veterans' reunion August 17 and 18, and the local chapter will put forth every effort to add to the pleasure and interest of the occasion.

The ladies have been requested, when canning and preserving this summer, to set aside and label some special jars for the box to be sent to the Soldiers' home in Atlanta.

MRS. LON DICKEY,
Reporter.

CORDIAL WELCOME IS EXTENDED TO MANY NEW CLUBS

A cordial welcome is extended to the following clubs that have joined the federation during the last six weeks. Belonging to the State Federation gives clubs an official standing and enables the women of the state to have a working organization which covers the entire state.

Our federation is a clearing house for women's work without committing itself to any policy or principle that may limit its full field of usefulness.

Macon Kindergarten Mothers' club, Mrs. Pitt Brown, 315 Bond street, president.

Atlanta, Golden Rod division, No. 43, Ladies' Auxiliary to the Order of Railroad Conductors, Mrs. W. S. Garr, Elizabeth apartments, president.

Milan Woman's club, Miss Marjorie Cook president.

MRS. Z. I. FITZPATRICK,
President Georgia Federation Women's Clubs.

OFFICERS ARE CHOSEN BY WEST POINT CLUB

The West Point Woman's club had the pleasure of having as guest at the regular meeting Mrs. Z. I. Fitzpatrick, of Thomasville, president of the Georgia Federation of Women's clubs. The members of the Mothers' Study circle were invited to meet Mrs. Fitzpatrick.

After the annual election of officers and a report of the Bullochville district meeting by Mrs. J. C. McKenzie, Mrs. Fitzpatrick made a brilliant address to which the audience listened with marked attention and interest. She spoke of the work the thousands of club women in Georgia are doing, and also of the General Federation activities.

She mentioned the different bills that affect the health, morals and education of the people that the club women are using their influence to get passed.

Her message was replete with information and inspiration, and all who heard her were charmed with her talk and her pleasing personality.

The following officers were elected: President, Mrs. C. E. Wright; vice president, Mrs. Norman Poer; second viee president, Mrs. A. D. Ferguson; recording secretary, Mrs. R. O'Neal; corresponding secretary, Mrs. C. O. Williams; treasurer, Mrs. Ernest Jacobs; auditor, Mrs. J. C. McKenzie.

Message From State Regent

To the Georgia Daughters of the American Revolution: Your state regent is happy and proud to bring to you the glad tidings that our Georgia state flag is to be presented to the postoffice department at Washington, D. C., on June 13 in time for the Flag day exercises of June 14. The request for the flag came in a letter to Hon. N. E. Harris, our governor-elect, from W. C. Denning, superintendent of division of equipment, postoffice department, Washington, D. C. With regard to the flag Mr. Denning says:

"I am sure that the members of any patriotic society of the state would be glad to furnish a flag if they understood the national significance of the Flag day exercises that have come to be such an important event in the patriotic celebrations of our national capital. There are many employees in the postoffice department from the state of Georgia who would be proud to see a flag of our state among the flags of other states in the union that are used in the decorative scheme of the magnificent court in the postoffice department building.

"It occurred to me that it would be possible to purchase a flag by subscriptions of the employees from the state of Georgia now in the postoffice department, but I think that it would be more proper for the matter to be handled by a patriotic society of the state, as is done in a number of other states. We would be glad to get the flag a few days prior to June 14. The society might wish to participate in some formal presentation exercise."

Upon receipt of this letter Colonel Harris communicated with your regent, and she promised to see what could be done, feeling confident that the Georgia Daughters of the American Revolution would wish to have the honor of presenting the flag of our state. Our state chairman of flags, Mrs. Richard P. Brooks, expressed her approval by offering to donate the flag, but your regent felt as did Mr. Denning, that this should come from a Georgia patriotic organization and not from individuals. And so the flag has been ordered made.

"Your flag and my flag
And oh, how much it holds
Of your heart and my heart
Enwrapped within its folds!"

And when these folds are unfurled in our nation's capital may the loyal, patriotic spirit of the women of Georgia breathe over the assembly and carry to our president their message of calm support and confidence throughout "these days that try men's souls."

Ellen Wilson Memorial.

At our last national congress of the Daughters of the American Revolution a plan was presented, the purpose of which was to carry on and further the work of the Ellen Wilson memorial. Many of us are familiar with the story of Mrs. Wilson's great interest in the alleys of Washington and we remember how the house and the senate passed the "alley bill," and of how this news was carried to Mrs. Wilson a few hours before her gentle spirit winged its flight. When these plans were presented to congress one of our former state treasurers, Mrs. Richard Spencer, and your regent thought fit to pledge for the Georgia daughters a donation of $150 for this fund, and the first donation from any state was pledged by Georgia.

Below I will publish a letter to your regent explaining the work. Plans for this settlement home will be in my hands and may be seen by all interested. Since a thorough investigation of this matter and after quiet deliberation, your regent requests that on the 14th day of June, when our flag is placed in the court of the postoffice at Washington, D. C., we, the Georgia Daughters of the American Revolution, in loving memory of a daughter of Georgia, make it possible for every man, woman and child in our state to contribute to this fund.

Your regent requests the co-operation of each chapter regent, and solicits the aid of every department of woman's organizations and the loyal assistance of all chapters of the United Daughters of the Confederacy in this movement. If every citizen would give even one penny it would be a splendid contribution. All money collected would be deposited in the bank of your city or town and a check sent to our state treasurer, Mrs. W. C. Vereen, of Moultrie, and through her to the proper authorities.

True, the time is short, but great deeds are frequently accomplished in wonderfully short periods of time, for when the heart is touched the response is immediate. Can we not do this in loving remembrance of the wife and as a token of our appreciation and love for our president, Mr. Wilson, to whom the state of Georgia is bound by a peculiar tie, a sentiment most profound?

Cordially yours,
SUSIE DERRY PARKER,
Georgia State Regent.

ELLEN WILSON MEMORIAL HOMES.

The women of the country have, many of them, known of the deep interest which Mrs. Woodrow Wilson took in the elimination of the alleys in Washington—278, occupied by nearly 12,000 people—the conditions under which they lived being insanitary in the highest degree, and the means of raising the city's death rate, besides being an eye-sore in what otherwise would be one of the most beautiful capital cities in the world.

In response to her dying request, a bill converting all habitable alleys into minor streets, and doing away with all the bad conditions of such alleys, was passed. We earnestly hope that added legislation make it a model housing bill not only for the District of Columbia, but an object lesson for the country at large.

To emphasize the quiet, unobtrusive work that Mrs. Wilson did in her all too short life in Washington, the District of Columbia section is trying to build a block of model houses to be known as the Ellen Wilson Memorial homes, the manifold object of which is first, to the wife of the president, a memorial that will perpetuate the humanitarian work she did during her life in the white house; second, for the poor of Washington, clean and healthy houses, replacing the unsightly and insanitary alley hovels; third, for the national capital, a block of model tenements that will be a very cornerstone for the city beautiful plan that is being built here; fourth, for the people of the United States, an example and inspiration for proper housing; and fifth, for those with money to invest, an opportunity that will pay them 5 per cent in cash and profits in the consciousness of having made lives healthier, happier and more helpful, which will appeal to all those who wish to be philanthropic, but are not always able to give without receiving a safe return.

Looked upon as an investment by those with $100 or more to spare, this plan should appeal to many clear-headed business men and women and should prove that one can be philanthropic and charitable and at the same time receive a return of 5 per cent on the money invested.

That this will be a safe investment can be confidently stated, as for over twenty years the Washington Sanitary Housing company has been building and renting such houses for the working classes of Washington and has been able to pay without once defaulting, 5 per cent dividends and retain a surplus for repairs and extension work.

Being a woman's appeal to women, in memory of a woman, the plans are being drawn by women architects, the Misses Schenck and Mead, 105 West Fortieth street, New York, who have also drawn the Phipps institute of Philadelphia and a new building for Dr. Andrew Green Foord's sanitarium at Kerhokson, N. Y. These plans not only cover all things which will go to make such a block useful, but are graceful and attractive in every way. There are to be 125 of the little houses providing for 250 families with an estimated capacity of about 1,000 people, the best answer to those who have been consistently asking the crusaders where the inhabitants of the alleys are to go when driven out by the conditions of the proposed legislation. There will also be a few shops in the section of the city where it will be necessary to go to get cheap land, there are few sanitary shops and they will fill a long felt need. There should be an apothecary, a grocer, a market and shops for the needs of every-day life, and if possible we shall try to run them on a co-operative basis.

In addition to the housing the block will contain playground and if possible a wading pool for little children, a small library, as none exists in this section, an administration building, to contain a laundry with facilities for thirty-two women doing washing and ironing, at 3 cents an hour which covers all expenses, a superintendent's office, a very small emergency hospital, as it is a locality where accidents frequently occur, and help is far off, a large hall and two small ones where club meetings may be held, and a small suite for the resident worker. The amusement hall is to have a kitchen where simple suppers can be prepared and cooking classes can be held. A day nursery is also to be attached, where children can be left, whose mothers are washing. The laundry alone is of great interest to Washington residents, many of whom have their washing done under the most insanitary conditions in squalid alley homes.

The plans have been seen by housing experts who say this block will be a model for all similar work throughout the country. The total cost will be approximately, $348,000 or $350,000, the rentals of the houses ranging from $7.50 to $17.50 per month, according to the size, and will bring in approximately $31,488 or 9% per cent on the investment.

The act of incorporation passed March 4, 1915, the incorporators being George Foster Peabody, Hugh C. Wallace, Arthur Jeffrey Parsons, Julia C. Lathrop, Mrs. Ernest P. Bicknell, Walter S. Ufford, Archibald Hopkins and Mrs. Charlotte Everett Hopkins. These incorporators met March 24, 1915, at the residence of Mrs. Hopkins, temporary chairman, to elect directors, who, under the act, are authorized to manage the finances, pay the dividends, fill their own vacancies, select out of their number president, vice president, secretary, treasurer and an executive committee to attend to the detail of the work. The directors are: Mrs. William Cumming Story, Mrs. Joseph R. Lamar, Stanton C. Peele, Surgeon General W. C. Gorgas, Miss Julia C. Lathrop, Mrs. J. Nota McGill, Mrs. Hugh C. Wallace, Mrs. Richard Wainwright, Miss Clara Farrar-Smith, Mrs. J. Borden Harriman, Miss Anne Morgan, Mrs. Abram Simon, Mr. H. K. Willard, Mr. A. J. Pearsons and Mrs. Hopkins.

To give strength to the nation-wide appeal now being made, the following advisory board whose names will carry weight all over the country was chosen: Honorable and Mrs. Thomas Marshall, Honorable and Mrs. William Jennings Bryan, Honorable and Mrs. Lindley M. Garrison, Honorable and Mrs. Albert Sidney Burleson, Honorable and Mrs. Josephus Daniels, Honorable and Mrs. Franklin K. Lane, Honorable and Mrs. David F. Houston, Honorable and Mrs. William C. Redfield, Honorable and Mrs. William Bauchop Wilson, Honorable and Mrs. Charles S. Hamlin, Honorable and Mrs. Paul M. Warburg, Honorable Delano, Honorable Miller, Honorable Harding, Mr. and Mrs. William Howard Taft, Mr. George Foster Peabody, Honorable and Mrs. Champ Clark, Honorable Franklin McVeagh, Mr. and Mrs. Hugh C. Wallace, Honorable and Mrs. Henry White, Miss Julia Lathrop, Mrs. William Cumming Story, Miss Maude Wetmore, Honorable and Mrs. Cleveland Dodge, Colonel and Mrs. Edward M. House, Mrs. E. H. Harriman, Mr. and Mrs. John Hays Hammond, Honorable Seth Low, Honorable and Mrs. Oscar Strauss, Mr. Schiff, Mr. and Mrs. Wittpenn and Mrs. Richard Olney.

President Wilson has gone carefully over the plans and they have received his hearty approval and he is much gratified at its being undertaken.

Knowing full well the many demands made on the public, especially now, I shall be grateful for amounts in any size from the smallest to the highest. Anything under $100 to be considered a gift and anything over $100 to be an investment if desired. All sums will be acknowledged by me as chairman of the District of Columbia section of the Woman's Department National Civic Federation, and I can not but feel that the women of the country will enable this plan to be carried out, adding another to the many monuments of the work women have already done for the bettering of the conditions of their less fortunate neighbors.

MRS. ARCHIBALD HOPKINS, Chairman.

The next meeting will be held with Mrs. P. D. Wright and Flag day will be appropriately observed.

An Adolescent Sunday.

(From The Lowell Courier Citizen.)

Sunday was certainly an adolescent day if ever there was one. It had all the tender charm of inchoation, the fresh green of the pastures, the soft viridescence of the trees, the delicate hues of the apple blooms, the virginal white of the pear and cherry trees and the mirrored blue of the waters. It was a new earth attired in a garb which was perfumed with the scents of nature's floral awakenings, and the day was replete with the promise of the summer toard the rich fulfillment of the autumn.

Society

Bridge Luncheon.

Mrs. H. L. Davidson entertained yesterday at a pretty bridge luncheon in compliment to Miss Annie Lou Nugent, a bride-elect. Quantities of roses and nasturtiums were the decorations. The first prize, a cut glass vase, was won by Miss Mary Blalock, and Mrs. H. C. Bailey won the consolation prize, a deck of cards, and the guest of honor was given silk stockings. Mrs. Davidson wore a black and white voile, and Miss Nugent's becoming gown was blue faille silk with hat to match.

The guests were Mrs. A. H. Erwin, Mrs. J. C. Bailey, Mrs. H. C. Bailey, Mrs. S. R. Bridges, Mrs. Mark Palmour, Mrs. J. C. Bail, Mrs. Hugh Hoggins, Mrs. Charles Bowen, Mrs. E. A. Davidson, Mrs. M. T. Davidson, Mrs. Jere Davidson, of Murphy, N. C., Mrs. Perry Blackshear, Mrs. A. C. Wright, Miss Elizabeth Silvey, Miss Mary Lucy Turner, Miss Mary Candler, of Murphey, N. C., Miss Mary Blalock and Miss Mary Bell Hixon, of Americus.

M. P. S. Club.

Mrs. T. N. Abernathy was hostess to the members of the M. P. S. club and a few friends Wednesday afternoon at her home on Bryan street.

Quantities of cut flowers and large growing plants decorated the house, and the color scheme of pink and white was seen in the ices and cakes.

Punch was served throughout the afternoon by Miss Leila Bazemore.

A guessing contest was introduced, in which the prize, a beautiful hand-made centerpiece, was won by Mrs. W. H. Burgess.

Mrs. Abernathy was assisted in entertaining by Miss Leila Bazemore and Mrs. Guy Battle.

Twelve club members were present, and the invited guests were Mrs. Cliff Harris, Mrs. C. E. Cameron, Mrs. L. P. Langston, Mrs. Guy Battle, Miss May Plunker and Miss Leila Bazemore.

The next club meeting will be held with Mrs. A. H. Adams, in Decatur.

Ice Cream Festival.

The Woman's Club of Buckhead will have an ice cream festival and lawn party Friday afternoon, June 4, from 4 to 10 o'clock, with the proceeds will go to the library association. The public is cordially invited to attend.

Girls' Night School.

The exercises of the Girls' Night School of Atlanta will take place Wednesday evening at 8 o'clock at the school. A bright program will be presented and all friends of the institution are invited to attend.

Vesper Club Dance.

An enjoyable event in the dance clubs during the week will be a dance on Friday evening given by the Vesper club to its members and friends. This will be the first of a series of June dances to be given by the club. The dance hall will be decorated prettily and will be delightfully cool. A full membership of the club is expected to attend. A splendid musical program has been arranged for the evening.

The chaperons will include Mr. and Mrs. Forrest Adair, Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Atkinson, Mr. and Mrs. Claud Frederick, Mr. and Mrs. M. L. Thrasher, Mr. and Mrs. S. C. Dobbs, Mr. and Mrs. B. S. Abbott, Mr. and Mrs. Ross Jones, Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Bennett, Mr. and Mrs. L. L. Shivers, Mr. and Mrs. P. P. Alff, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Dunn, Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Bean, Mr. and Mrs. Carter Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Ison, Mr. and Mrs. Homer Park, Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Perry, Mr. and Mrs. Ed Davidson, Mr. and Mrs. George R. Black, Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Tuson, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Farr, Mr. and Mrs. Mason, Mr. and Mrs. Julian Chase.

Moonlight Picnic.

A happy occasion for the Fidelis class of the Gordon Street Baptist church was the moonlight picnic at Grant Park on last Tuesday evening.

The superintendent, Mr. Witherspoon, was present, and his words of encouragement and compliment were much appreciated.

There was a delicious supper and entertaining games were played.

To Miss Wise.

Miss Isoline Campbell will entertain at the tea-dance Wednesday in compliment to Miss Ellen Wright Wise, of Richmond, the guest of Mr. and Mrs. John S. Cohen.

At East Lake.

The popularity of the weekly dinner-dance at the East Lake country house of the Athletic club again found expression last night, a large company forming gay parties on the porches and terrace and indoors.

Dancing began at 9 o'clock, and continued until midnight.

Among those having dinner reservations were: Messrs. M. B. Dunbar, Ashby Jones, F. P. Chivers, Dr. J. C. McDearis, Walter Dunn, H. C. Taylor, Albert L. Dunn, Marshall McKenzie, W. L. Calh, T. M. Spratlin, W. F. Mayo, Palmer, Dr. Joseph Eby, Russell Compton, H. J. Morris, W. A. Legan, C. E. Quarles, Scott Hudson, F. W. Stone, Lynch, McMillan, Williams, Taylor, Wilbur Howard, Geidert, Asa G. Candler, Jr., and many others.

There will be music at the Country club this evening from 5:30 to 8:30.

Mrs. Crenshaw Wins Prize.

At the sale of rustic, hanging baskets, which was conducted all last week by the clearing house for the unemployed, the prize, which was one of the baskets, was won by Mrs. Thomas Crenshaw and was sent yesterday to her residence, 606 North Boulevard. A number was given with each purchase of a basket, and Mrs. Crenshaw's won.

Albert-Jeter.

Mrs. Ada Gertrude Arnold has issued invitations to the marriage of her daughter, Irene Neville Allen, to Mr. Frank Hamilton Jeter, on Tuesday evening, June 8, at 9 o'clock, at 218 Lee street, Atlanta.

Art Association Elects Officers.

At the May meeting of the Atlanta Art association it was decided to hold an exhibition in November of pictures by local artists. The one held last year was such a success and of such interest to the public that the association intends not only making these exhibitions assured annual events, but also offering a prize for the best picture which has not been exhibited in Atlanta before by a local artist.

The association reserves the right to withhold the prize if the work submitted does not reach a certain standard.

The new officers of the Art association, elected at the May meeting, are, Mrs. Samuel M. Inman, president; Mr. C. B. Hidwell, first vice president; Mrs. Richard Johnston, second vice president; Mrs. Walter Howard, third vice president; Mrs. H. R. Scott, secretary; Mr. J. M. Van Hartlingen, treasurer; Mrs. J. Windle, recording secretary.

Mr. Edward H. Inman has been appointed one of the trustees of the association in the place left vacant by the death of Mr. S. M. Inman, whose encouragement and interest in the association was never failing.

Pageant at Lee St. School.

The pageant to have been given the past week by the Normal training school of the Lee Street school, and was postponed on account of rain, will take place Monday afternoon at 4:30 o'clock, and on Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock.

For Miss Osborne.

Mrs. E. L. Osborne will entertain at a bridge luncheon Monday at her home in compliment to Miss Ollie May Osborne, a bride-elect.

Mrs. Floyd Cooper gives a box party at the Forsyth matinee Monday, and Mrs. Harry Poole entertains at a bridge tea Tuesday afternoon at the Capital City Country club.

Atlanta Chapter, U. D. C.

The Atlanta chapter, United Daughters of the Confederacy, held an interesting meeting Thursday, when Mrs. Williams McCarthy presided.

The annual election of officers resulted in the re-election of Mrs. Helen Plane, honorary president; Mrs. Williams McCarthy, president; Mrs. T. T. Stevens, first vice president; Mrs. Thomas Peters, second vice president; Mrs. F. P. H. Akers, third vice president; Mrs. Robert Jones, recording secretary; Mrs. James Bedell, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Dalton Mitchell, registrar; Mrs. Laura Waddell, treasurer; Mrs. Clayton Matthews, auditor; Mrs. Lollie Belle Wylie, press chairman, and Mrs. William C. King, editor.

The principal feature of the meeting was the presentation of the medals for the best essays by the schools on "Causes of the War Between the States."

Miss Jessie May O'Neal, daughter of Mrs. McCarthy, presented medal given by the Children of the Confederacy for the largest number of correct answers to historical questions on the war between the states.

Edna Williams, presented a Children of the Confederacy pin for answering the next largest number of questions on the war between the states.

Walter Bedard, presented a Children of the Confederacy pin for perfect attendance at C. of C. meetings during the year.

Mrs. John W. Murrell, as chairman of the medal committee, has won unstinted praise for her fine work during the past year. She reported that 4,527 essays had been written in Fulton county, 709 of these by children in the county schools and the remainder by pupils of the Atlanta schools.

Mrs. Murrell will be glad to return essays to those who wish them, and will do so on receipt of a self-addressed stamped envelope. Address, 513 Peachtree street.

Resolutions were passed indorsing the work of the Ellen Wilson Memorial for the Christian education of southern youth.

For Visitors.

The Round Table Study club entertained at a delightful moonlight picnic Tuesday evening at Grant park in compliment to Misses Bessie and Katherine Glunstead, of Lexington, Ky.

Mrs. Collins Entertains.

Mrs. Charlie Collins entertained at a 500 party Wednesday at her home on Greenaferry avenue, in compliment to her mother, Mrs. Virginia Chalmers, and sister, Mrs. Joseph Richard Wofford. The house was prettily decorated in field daisies. Punch was served in the dining room.

The prize, a dainty lingerie yoke, was won by Mrs. Jim Davies, and a beautiful crochet flower basket, decorated in pink roses, was won by Mrs. Ray Williams. Mrs. H. W. Dillin cut the consolation.

The honor guests were presented silk stockings.

Five tables were entertained.

ADAIRSVILLE, GA.

Graduating exercises of the Cherokee High school took place on Friday night. A number of out-of-town people were present. The music department gave a recital on Thursday evening.

Mrs. C. W. Batterfield gave a dinner for the graduating class on Saturday evening. Mrs. R. E. Rickenbaker also entertained them at an evening party.

A birthday party was given by Miss Nettie Lou Yarbrough to celebrate her seventh birthday on last Saturday.

The Sans Souci Rook club held an evening meeting as a close to a series of games, the event taking place at the Dodd hotel. The regular meeting this week was held with Mrs. Julia Stewart.

Miss Emma Gardner was the May hostess to the Symphony club.

Five tables of rook were entertained by Mr. and Mrs. O. B. Bishop on Tuesday evening. They have as their guest Dr. Walter Bishop.

Mrs. Julia Stewart was at home to the Wednesday Sewing club and a few guests at the meeting this week.

WINDER, GA.

The Campfire girls gave a very enjoyable picnic Wednesday afternoon at Mitchell's bridge, near Athens. Quite a number of friends were invited. After enjoying a delicious supper, they motored home in the lovely moonlight.

The Baraca class of the First Baptist church entertained their friends with a barbecue Wednesday afternoon at the Athletic park. This was one of the most enjoyable occasions of this season.

Miss Chloe Irwin entertained in honor of the graduating class on the lovely lawn at the home of Mrs. Quillian Monday afternoon. Besides the class several others were invited.

Mrs. Jim Sanders gave a pretty party Thursday afternoon. After playing several games of 500, delicious refreshments were served.

Mrs. Cora Jones, of Atlanta, spent Sunday with friends.

Miss Pauline Camp was in Atlanta Friday.

DORSEY TELLS WHY HE OPPOSES PLEA

the case, when obtainable, and as Judge Roan, now deceased, presided as judge upon the trial, I assume that your notice of the assignment of the hearing is intended to invoke written expressions, required by the rule, as to the merits of the pending application of Frank for executive clemency.

"The petition recites the filing with the prison board of four copies of the brief of the evidence introduced at the trial upon which the conviction of the prisoner was based.

"The records of the motion for new trial, which was overruled by the trial judge, and of the decision of the supreme court of Georgia affirming the judgment; the extraordinary motion for a new trial which was likewise overruled by the judge of Fulton county superior court; the decision of the supreme court of Georgia affirming that judgment; the motion to set aside the verdict of the jury, overruled by Judge Benjamin H. Hill, and the decision of the supreme court of Georgia affirming said decision; the writ of habeas corpus denied by Judge W. T. Newman, of the United States district court, and the decision of the supreme court of the United States affirming that judgment are doubtless part of the record that will be considered by you, and if not, can be furnished by me upon request, for your consideration.

"The records present the details of the crime for the commission of which Frank was convicted by the courts of this county, and illustrate the conditions and circumstances under which the crime was committed.

No Evil Evidence.

"I do not understand the application for executive clemency to set up any newly discovered evidence, or other grounds not heretofore considered and finally adjudicated by the various judges of all the courts, and the several which have declined to interfere with the verdict of the jury finding Frank guilty of the murder of Mary Phagan.

"It is, therefore, an application for the annulation of the verdict of a crime for the commission of which the courts have finally adjudged the applicant guilty. Indeed, the application does not pray for a pardon, but the express terms admit that the applicant can be punished by life imprisonment instead of the penalty imposed by the trial court.

"The facts and circumstances surrounding the commission of the murder of Mary Phagan do not invoke the exercise of the law to one who has been finally convicted of the crime.

"I do not believe that the education, experience and intelligence of the applicant or the importunities of his friends should be permitted to affect my official opinion, and I confess myself unable to find in the record of this case a single ground upon which to justify the solicitor general, charged with the enforcement of the law in asking that the decrees of the courts shall be overridden by the clemency of the chief executive, upon whom also the constitution of the state enjoins the sacred obligation to see to it that the laws are faithfully executed.

"The very fact that the conviction of the applicant by a jury of twelve men, after a speedy trial, affirmed by the judges of all the courts, state and federal, by whom the case has been reviewed, despite the circumstances of the defendant and the unusual and indefatigable exertions and influential friends in and out of Georgia, confirms my sincere respect for the integrity of the courts and justifies my deep conviction that in this case the ends of justice have been accomplished by the process of the law.

"If there should be matters not disclosed by the record which, by my information of the files of my office can serve you in the consideration of this application, I am subject to your commands. With respect, I am, yours truly,

(Signed) HUGH M. DORSEY,
Solicitor General, Atlanta Judicial Circuit."

MOTHER PROTESTS.

A protest against commutation for Leo M. Frank has been mailed to the prison commission by Mrs. J. W. Coleman, sister of Mary Phagan. The letter will reach the chairman of the prison board Monday morning about the time the hearing begins. Mrs. Coleman, through her attorney, James L. Key, of this city, editorial secretary, on which the girl was slain, with $1 demands.

"It has not been definitely decided as yet whether or not Attorney Key will be behalf of Mrs. Coleman, her husband, appear before the prison commission during the hearing to oppose commutation.

Mrs. Coleman's letter in full follows:

"Hon. Prison Commissioners of Georgia—Dear Sirs: I am advised by the solicitor general and the solicitor general's office that you will pass upon the application of Leo M. Frank for a commutation of sentence on Monday, May 31.

"I beg to state that I have watched this case very closely from the beginning. I heard all of the evidence and have read all the later developments. I am thoroughly convinced that Leo M. Frank is responsible for the death of my daughter.

"In this matter I have no bitterness, but I feel that the penalty that the law has imposed is not too severe. The fact that Frank and his friends have had a great deal of money to spend and have had a great deal of influence at home and abroad should have no effect on this case.

"Very sincerely,
(MRS. J. W. COLEMAN."
Atlanta, Ga., May 29, 1915.

URGE CLEMENCY.

Appeals for commutation for Frank were sent to Governor Slaton Saturday by Attorney Jack J. Spalding, of Atlanta; T. J. Simmons, of Gainesville, business president of Brenau college; Judge J. L. Sweat, of Waycross, and Rabbi David Marx, of Atlanta.

Rabbi Marx denied the stories to the effect that Frank's domestic affairs were not tranquil, and said that he and his wife lived together happily. He likewise denied the report that Mrs. Frank had refused to visit her husband when he was first arrested.

Among other Georgians who appealed to the governor were Judge J. L. Sweat, of Waycross; Rev. O. M. Sutton, College Park; Attorney J. H. Murrow, Tifton; J. H. Johnson, Decatur; George W. Head, Tunnel Hill; Dr. and Mrs. J. W. Green, Tunnel Hill.

HEARING MONDAY.

The hearing on the Leo M. Frank appeal begins Monday morning at 10 o'clock. An effort will be made, it was said last night, to hold the sessions in the chambers of the commission, adjoining the executive offices on the third floor. The audience will be so great, however, that sessions may be held in the hall of representatives.

The hearing is expected to require at least three or four days, possibly the entire week.

FAVOR CLEMENCY.

Columbus, Ga., May 29.—(Special.)—A delegation of about two dozen prominent Columbus citizens, including Mayor John C. Cook, Sheriff J. A. Beard, Judge Henry H. Hammond, Judge A. W. Cozart, Representative Ed Wohlwender, Dr. L. R. Christie, pastor of the First Baptist church, Dr. J. Moncrieff, city health officer, and others prominent in business and professional life will go to Atlanta Monday morning to appear before the state prison commission in behalf of Leo M. Frank's application for commutation of death sentence to life imprisonment. An informal meeting of citizens was held this afternoon, as a result of which this delegation was appointed to go to Atlanta.

PROTEST COMMUTATION.

Marietta, Ga., May 29.—(Special.)—A mass meeting has been called at the Marietta courthouse for Monday night to protest against the commutation of the Leo Frank sentence. It is understood the promoters of the meeting will ask that all outside influence be unnoticed by the pardon board and the governor and that they be left to act on the facts as presented in the evidence, regardless of what other people and states may ask.

PLEAD FOR FRANK.

Delegations from Chicago and other points outside Georgia and from Savannah, Macon and other cities in the state are coming to Atlanta for Monday's hearing to plead for the prisoner.

800,000 SIGNATURES.

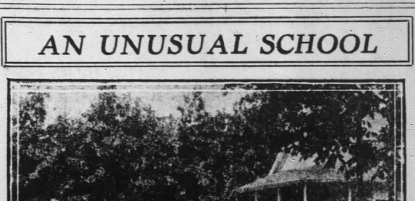
New York, May 29.—A petition with 800,000 signatures for commutation of the death sentence of Leo M. Frank was sent tonight by the anti-death committee of the Women's Peace society, to Governor Slaton, of Georgia. Miss Elberta K. Shipley, chairman of the Leo M. Frank petition committee, sent a letter to the governor, recounting the work the committee has done "in the cause of justice and humanity, and requesting the commutation of Frank's sentence.

WITH TWO BROKEN RIBS ROOSEVELT IS WORKING

Oyster Bay, N. Y., May 29.—Despite an injury he received recently by a fall as he was about to mount a saddle horse, Colonel Theodore Roosevelt does not intend to defer a trip south he had planned to begin Sunday of next week, it was learned tonight. The colonel expects to visit bird preserves in Louisiana at the request of the Audubon society. He will make his headquarters at the home of an old friend, Colonel John M. Parker, at Pass Christian, Miss.

It developed today that closer examination and shown that two of the colonel's ribs were broken when he fell. It had been thought but one was fractured. He seemed, however, in as vigorous health as ever and worked for several hours in his library.

AN UNUSUAL SCHOOL



Bethany school, Madison county, Georgia, which has become famous for its unusual attractiveness as compared with other country schools.

By Prof. R. J. H. DeLoach.

It is not out of place here to say something about a school in Georgia. The school about which I am writing is an unusual school in many respects. It is located in Morgan county about six miles west of Madison, the county site, and is named Bethany school. For further particulars about the history of this school, and of the one who is responsible for making it what it is you will have to inquire of the people in the county. They enjoy telling the story of Bethany.

The school is known all over the county and in other parts of the state, and is so unusual that I think it will be interesting to let the people of the entire south know about it.

What makes it unusual? The teacher of course—but the teacher cannot do all along this line. The people in the community in which the school is located have their interests centered in Bethany. They meet there often and discuss the affairs of the day, look after the schoolhouse and grounds, and have a good time generally. They feel personally responsible for the success of the school, every patron of it, and they will see that it cannot fail. It is their children who suffer from a failure, and it is they who would lose the most interest they have in the community. So they are interested in the school.

An Old-Time Schoolhouse.

Strange to say Bethany is a very common old-time schoolhouse, originally one room with a plazza on two sides, or one side and one end. Very unattractive it was for a schoolhouse, having four windows on each side, two in each end, a door in one end, and one side. When this room became filled to overflowing, with bright boys and girls, the plazza on the side and looks very attractive from within and from without. It is indeed a very attractive combination, and cost very little.

The great lesson about this schoolhouse is that it shows how to get a place attractive enough for anybody and all this without any great cost to anybody.

Has Beautiful Location.

Nature has done her part about this school, as she has done in so many other places in Georgia. The house is set in the midst of a forest of large oaks and pines, and in the distance in two directions a great deal of undergrowth. These combine to make a most inviting environment for the eye of an idealist, to take hold and develop. The slope is just gentle enough to carry off the water without washing enough to do much damage. This has been cleaned without being cleared, and has been beautified without destroying what nature has done for it.

There are walks in front and in the rear, almost like those in formal garden, except you cannot detect any special effort at positive beauty. The walks near the entrance are lined with cannas, violets, and other beautiful roadside flowers, and what little fencing there is around the grounds is covered with Dorothy Perkins roses and other flowering vines. There are attractive seats here and yonder within the grounds, and a beautiful little summer house and a well house or cover to match, and all in all, one of the very prettiest spots I ever saw.

Its beauty is made up of the simplicity of the whole and a profusion of flowers, and what little fencing there is around the grounds is covered with Dorothy Perkins roses and other flowering vines. There are attractive seats here and yonder within the grounds, and a beautiful little summer house and a well house or cover to match, and all in all, one of the very prettiest spots I ever saw.

Is a Good School.

I did not get to visit this school during the session, but I could see at once what made it a good school. Inside the house there were neat and clean curtains, well kept desks, pictures well arranged on the walls; a Columbia phonograph used for the entertainment of the pupils, and all kinds of hand-work which had been made by the children themselves.

I was told that the children seemed to enjoy going to that school and were grieved when the vacation ended, and I believed it. I thought then and have thought several times since that Georgia teachers ought to make a visit to that school and see how it is all done. It would be worth more than a half season in a training school. Ideas are good, but living accomplishments are better. The accompanying picture gives an idea of the school.

U. D. C. Medal at High School Won by Miss Louise Cramer

Miss Louise Cramer, the talented daughter of Mrs. Ida Howell Cramer, had the honor to be awarded the medal offered to the Girls' High school by the United Daughters of the Confederacy for the best essay on the subject, "The Causes of the Civil War."

The contest in which she proved the victor was open to all the 700 students at the school and there were a large number of excellent papers submitted.

The medal winner is a member of the third grade A. The girls of this room have been particularly fortunate this year in all contests. In addition to the essay medal the D. A. R. cup was captured by Miss Nina Harrison of the third grade A, and Miss Anne LaHatte of the same room received honorable mention in the United Daughters of the Confederacy contest.

The essay medal was awarded at the annual exercises held by the United Daughters of the Confederacy at the Woman's club last Thursday.

This is the second time that Miss Cramer has received prizes offered by the United Daughters of the Confederacy. In 1912, when she was a member of the North Avenue Presbyterian school, she won a medal for the best essay on the subject, "The Battle of Shiloh."

FRANCE GRATEFUL FOR AMERICAN AID

Four Great Albums Containing Autographed Appreciations by Authors, Poets and Artists Presented Ambassador Sharp.

Paris, May 29.—What Americans have done for France during the war was impressively acknowledged by the French government and people today in a presentation to Ambassador Sharp of four great albums containing autographed appreciations by eminent authors and poets and original drawings by artists of France. The albums will be sent by Ambassador Sharp to the various national libraries at Washington and five hundred duplicates arranged for by the French government will be presented to public libraries in the United States.

Notables Present.

The ceremony took place in the historic amphitheater of the University of Paris. Among notable persons present were: Premier Viviani and Mme. Poincare. In the presidential party were Mrs. Sharp, wife of the American ambassador, and Miss Mary Sharp; Signora Tittoni, wife of the Italian ambassador, and Mme. Jusserand, wife of the Frenchman ambassador. There were grouped about Ambassador Sharp, Premier Viviani, Foreign Minister Delcasse and other members of the French cabinet, and the Russian and Italian ambassadors, the ministers of Belgium, Serbia and many members of the diplomatic corps were present. The occasion was Mr. Sharp's first official appearance and he was applauded heartily by the several thousand persons assembled in the amphitheater, three quarters of whom are prominent in the intellectual and social life of Paris. A chorus of one hundred girls sang "The Star Spangled Banner" as a special compliment to Ambassador Sharp. Leon Bonnat, president of the Institute of France and Gabriel Hanotaux, representing the French academy, presented the albums to the American ambassador.

Applause for Sharp.

When Mr. Sharp arose to reply he was greeted with long continued applause, which grew to an ovation when he referred to the warm feeling of sympathy of the United States for France and said:

"Don't let any false prophets tell you anything different."

Continuing, Mr. Sharp said: "It gives me great pleasure to state that I have been specifically authorized in a message from the state department over the signature of Mr. Bryan to say that the government and people of the United States deeply appreciate this new evidence of the friendship of the French people."

Mr. Sharp then referred to the admirable statesmanship of President Poincare, of Ribot and of Delcasse, and to the intimate good will resulting between the two great republics. In this connection, Mr. Sharp expressed the hope "that a lasting and beneficial peace upon justice and firmly established in a newer conception of brotherly love shall reign throughout the earth."

Toward the close of his address the ambassador said:

"As to these beautiful albums lying before me, I shall transmit them to Washington, there to repose in the archives of my government as the breath of some sweet incense wafted across the waters from the shores of this sunny land. No fairer tribute was ever paid by one nation to another than is contained in these sentiments so finely expressed in art and verse. That these ceremonies may be made more impressive, you have given the occasion a beautiful setting, inspired by poetry and song."

Mr. Sharp was congratulated by President Poincare and M. Delcasse and others, while the great audience arose en masse and applauded. The ceremony ended by Mount Sully reciting a poem on the United States written for the occasion by Madame Lemaire. The albums which were presented to Mr. Sharp were beautifully bound in gold, with the flags of France and the United States in colors.

The contents form a collection of drawings, verse and autographs unique in the history of French art and literature.

In Name of All Frenchmen.

M. Bonnat, in presenting the album to Mr. Sharp, said:

"It is in the name of all Frenchmen that the committee organized the present functions, the purpose being that through the medium of the arts, letters, music and poetry the voice of grateful France should be heard even beyond the seas."

M. Hanotaux said:

"America, responding to the double appeal of justice and humanity, held out a helping hand to the people of France, Belgium and Serbia. American benefactors were found over entire provinces. The devotion of these unselfish persons mitigated the abominations of another age which has been unchained by the war. America has saved the honor of humanity."

"You give us evidence, sir, every day, of the sentiments which attach to your country. With that cordial simplicity natural to you, you have taken your place among the American ambassadors who have become the best friends of France."

M. Hanotaux also made reference to the appreciation of the French people of the acts of Mr. Sharp's predecessor, Myron Herrick.

School All the Year.

Stronger co-operation between parents, children and educators which has been a feature of the school life of the city in recent years is having an effect that would seem incomprehensible to the average child of a former generation.

It is nothing less than a demand from the children themselves for longer school hours, even the all-the-year-round schools.

Evidence of a trend toward continuous sessions is furnished in the steady growth of the summer school. Certain evidence proves that vacation-time is losing some of its charm.

Going to school in these times is very different from what it was thirty years ago.

Public education may not be as thorough in the essentials nowadays—but the child gets more out of the training, and in fact the average child has a better time in school than he does at home. It is becoming more and more a social center, many children know, and parent-teacher associations are securing for the children the best possible reinforcements, the aid of father and mother. On the hand, parents demand nothing but the best. Apparently the frills are not opposed by the great majority of fathers and mothers. They who think they are judicious may grieve at this condition of affairs, but truly many parents are satisfied with a variety of studies, rather than foundation of essentials. From the educator's standpoint it will soon be impossible to teach the entire curriculum in the number of hours now comprising the school day. Longer hours will soon be imperative, or the course of study modified and a return made to old-fashioned methods of teaching.

Thirty members of a church circle affiliated with the Women's congress sent in dues to the treasurer this week.

North Avenue Parent-Teacher.

The last monthly meeting of the North Avenue Parent-Teacher association was held Friday afternoon, May 7. A large audience of mothers, teachers and others interested in the work was present to greet the speaker, Mrs. Emmett Lunceford, and the seventh grades A and B classes, who were guests of honor at this meeting.

After the close of the business program Mrs. Lunceford read "Peter Pan" in a most charming manner. The president, Mrs. John P. Thompson, then addressed a few words to the seventh grade classes, who leave the public school at the close of the present year to enter high school. Her remarks were full of timely advice and inspiration to the children, and she assured them that the interests of the parents and teachers would follow them in their new work.

A most enjoyable social hour followed, during which the ladies of the social committee served delicious refreshments.

MRS. O. E. BURTON.

The Georgia avenue school has organized a parent-teacher association, and there are three new organizations sent in from over the state to affiliate with this branch.

The Lucile school, in connection with the Parent-Teacher association, held a splendid pageant last week.

Also at the Hill street school a most interesting program was given, preceded by a pageant of great beauty.

Reichstag Has Adjourned.

Amsterdam, May 30.—(Via London.) The German Reichstag has adjourned until August 10.

Rev. H. H. Proctor Home.

Rev. H. H. Proctor, pastor of the First Congregational church, colored, returned to the city yesterday afternoon after a three weeks' trip in New England, where he filled a number of speaking engagements. He will give a travel sermon tonight at 8 o'clock on "Good News from the North," when he will speak of a number of things observed in his travels. At the morning hour he will speak on "The Conquest of Self." The chorus of the church will furnish music at both services.

WOMEN OF RUSSIA

Petrograd, May 29.—As the war continues the women on the border suffer the horrors of war and the mothers and orphans left at home are the ones who suffer most. In America are many mothers and daughters, who were left penniless by the war of the Rebellion, but their suffering are as nothing to the women and children left as widows and orphans of the soldiers who have fought and bled for their country in Europe.

Many a mother and daughter have reason to be thankful to Dr. Pierce for relief from suffering and the cure of those weaknesses of their sex, because of his "Favorite Prescription." This tonic, which is strictly a temperance medicine, has cured thousands of those weaknesses, headaches, nervousness, backaches, which are the outward manifestations of disease in women. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription speedily causes all womanly trouble to disappear, strengthens the organs to properly perform their natural functions, corrects displacements, overcomes irregularities, drains pain and misery at certain times and brings back health and strength to nervous, irritable and exhausted women.

It is a wonderful prescription prepared solely from the choicest native herbs with no alcohol to falsely stimulate and no narcotics to weaken the nerves. It banishes pain, headache, backache, low spirits, hot flashes, dragging-down sensations, worry and sleeplessness surely and without loss of time.

What Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription has done for thousands it will do for you. It is not a secret remedy, its ingredients are printed on wrapper. Get it this very day at any druggist dealers in either liquid or tablet form.

Doctor Pierce's Pleasant Pellets regulate and invigorate stomach, liver and bowels. Sugar-coated, tiny granules, easy to take as candy.—(adv.)

Goodyear Passes Goodyear

$500,000 Better

Yet Users Pay $5,000,000 Less

Note these amazing facts:

Goodyear-tires, as built this year, will cost us $500,000 more than if built like 1914 Goodyears.

That's because of improvements.

Yet this year's output will cost our users some five million dollars less than if sold at 1914 prices.

That's because of a big price reduction, made February 1st. It was our third in two years, totaling 45 per cent.

Why Better Tires?

You ask why we add that half-million dollars in face of such reductions.

We have always added every betterment our experts could discover. And we spend on research $100,000 yearly just to seek improvements out.

Goodyears may pass Goodyears, but we make sure that no rival ever can.

What Extras Cost

Based on current output, those extras this year will cost us $1,635,000.

That is, if we omitted our exclusive features, which all others do omit—

And other protections which most makers omit—

We could probably add to our profits this year more than 1½ million dollars.

But What of You?

But Goodyear users would pay. Those extras save our users many times the cost to us.

In those extras lies the reason why Goodyear outsells any other tire. And in that mammoth output lies the reason for the value that we give.

Think of these things when other tires are offered.

Each Goodyear extra means a saving to you.

Any dealer, if you ask him, can supply you Goodyear tires. (2411)

STOP CALOMEL! TAKE DODSON'S LIVER TONE

New Discovery! Takes Place of Dangerous Calomel—It Puts Your Liver To Work Without Making You Sick—Eat Anything—It Can Not Salivate—Don't Lose a Day's Work!

I discovered a vegetable compound that does the work of dangerous, sickening calomel, and I want every reader of this paper to try a bottle and if it doesn't straighten you up better and quicker than salivating calomel just go back to the store and get your money.

I guarantee that one spoonful of Dodson's Liver Tone will put your sluggish liver to work and clean your thirty feet of bowels of the sour bile and constipation poison which is clogging your system and making you feel miserable.

I guarantee that one spoonful of this harmless liquid liver medicine will relieve the headache, biliousness, coated tongue, ague, malaria, sour stomach or any other distress caused by a torpid liver as quickly as a dose of vile, nauseating calomel; besides, it will not make you sick or keep you from a day's work. I want to see a bottle of this wonderful liver medicine in every home in the South.

Calomel is poison—it's mercury—it attacks the bones, often causing rheumatism. Calomel is dangerous. It sickens—while my Dodson's Liver Tone is safe, pleasant and harmless. Eat anything afterwards, because it can not salivate. Give it to the children because it doesn't upset the stomach or shock the liver. Take a spoonful tonight and wake up feeling fine and ready for a full day's work.

Get a bottle! Try it! If it doesn't do exactly what I say, tell your dealer to hand your money back. Every druggist and store keeper in the South knows me and knows of my wonderful discovery of a medicine that takes the place of dangerous calomel.

These Men Now Offer Goodyears

When next you buy tires, ask these men for Goodyears.

Each in the list below, is a Goodyear Service Station. Their principle is Service, and they offer you the most in tires.

Some Atlanta tires cost you more than Goodyear prices, because of small production, less efficency in making. Some, too, sell lower. Some always will, due to lower standards.

But no tire, these dealers know, can offer more than Goodyears.

AUGUSTA TIRE CO. ESTABLISHES BRANCH ON PEACHTREE ST.

One of the results of the first "Seeing Georgia" tour conducted last week by the Georgia Chamber of Commerce is the establishing in Atlanta of a branch of the Southern Tire and Rubber company, of Augusta.

This concern is operating the pioneer auto tire manufacturing plant in the south, and was inspired by the work being done by the Georgia Chamber of Commerce to encourage the people of Georgia to patronize home industries to open a branch in Atlanta, as one of the greatest automobile centers in America.

O. A. Moran, an Atlantan, who has been placed in charge of the branch, at 225 Peachtree street, states that it was the work of the Georgia Chamber of Commerce, and particularly the "Seeing Georgia" tour that caused his company to open the branch in Atlanta. Mr. Moran states that his company has made application for membership in the Georgia Chamber and will lend their hearty support to future tours.

YELLOWSTONE PARK WILL BE OPENED TO AUTOISTS

Route Descriptions Prepared by the Goodrich National Touring Bureau.

The department of the interior will permit automobiles to enter Yellowstone National park on and after August 1, 1915, under appropriate rules and regulations. These rules and regulations are now being formulated, but will not be available for general distribution until some time next month.

The Goodrich national touring bureau has prepared route descriptions from all points of the country to Yellowstone, entering either via Cody, on the east side, or Gardiner, at the north gate, or via Pocatello and the west gate. All regular traffic in the park will be required to move in one general direction in making a circuit of the park, the automobiles leaving before the stages, both morning and evening, from the different entrances or from intermediate stations inside of the park. Schedules on which the machines will be required to run will constitute a part of the regulations.

The above announcement is made by the Goodrich national touring bureau to enable motorists who are planning a visit of the west to take advantage of this opportunity of seeing Yellowstone National park.

The mountain roads of the main transcontinental routes leading to the Panama-Pacific exposition, as well as throughout all of the Pacific coast states, are at present covered with snow, is the announcement just made by the Goodrich national touring bureau. The heavy snows of last winter are piled so deep on the summit of the Sierra mountains that motorists must wait four or five weeks before the passes are traversible.

The coast states have experienced an unusual amount of rainy weather and in the mountains districts this rain has been snow. The temperature has been exceedingly cold for the coast. Transcontinental motorists who intended to tour across the country in June can safely do so, taking either the Lincoln highway route or the overland Ocean-to-Ocean highway, both of which routes have been published by the Goodrich national touring bureau, while sectional route books of the Goodrich touring bureau enables the motorist to proceed west from Atlanta, through Alabama, Mississippi, Arkansas, Texas, Arizona and New Mexico into Los Angeles or San Diego.

Practically all of the transcontinental routes will be feasible traveling after June 1. The tourist on the middle routes should not neglect to visit Denver, the hundreds of scenic automobile drives in Colorado which go to the famous resorts and interesting spots, all of which can now be reached on excellent stone road.

Splendid Record Made By Cole Eight Autos Direct From Factory

Indianapolis, Ind., May 29.—(Special.)—Cole eight cylinder cars, taken direct from the factory with no preliminary work, have behaved like veterans in speed trials, and they are destined to improve with driving. From Indianapolis to Cedar Rapids, Iowa, a distance of 191 miles, the Cole averaged 29.15 miles an hour. From Fresno, Cal., to San Francisco, 200 miles, an average of 28.7 miles an hour was made. On a trip from the factory in this city to Cincinnati, 130 miles, the Cole traveled 29.4 miles an hour. The real speed record was made on a trip from Athens, Ohio, to Indianapolis, 241 miles. On this run the car averaged better than 33 miles an hour, showing at times a speed of more than 65 miles an hour.

Army 6, Navy 5.

West Point, N. Y., May 29.—The Army defeated the Navy at baseball today, 6 to 5. The cadets hit Blodgett hard in the pinches, gathering their tallies in pairs, while Neyland, except for a momentary lapse in the third when the middies got three singles and a home-run off him, kept the hits well distributed. The Army was outplayed in the field, but the cadets' errors were not of the costly variety. Home runs by Mitchell and Hicks, and H. Fisher's hitting were features.

Today's game makes the seventh straight victory the cadets have scored over the middies in as many years. Neyland has won three years in succession, having beaten the Navy here in 1912 and at Annapolis last year. The series now stands Army won 11, lost 3. A crowd of several thousand persons witnessed the contest, a large proportion being prominent army and navy and government officials.

RED RUBBER TIRE PLANT TO INCREASE FACILITIES

Alterations and Extensions Are Made Necessary by Great Growth of Business.

Growing preference for red rubber tires as expressed by motorists who know tire values is compelling the Empire Rubber and Tire company, of Trenton, N. J., to inaugurate alterations and extensions in its plant with the idea of increasing production and of improving the facilities for handling it.

Only those who have visited the quaint in the New Jersey capital can have any idea of the amount of real estate it covers. The ground owned by the company has a front of about one mile and is a half a mile wide. With this space the Empire company has abundant room to meet any expansion resulting from the demand for its superior grade of tires.

One new building is in the course of erection at the present time. A siding is also being run from the tracks of the Pennsylvania railroad direct to the shipping room. Changes and improvements to be made in the shipping room will mean a big facilitation in delivery.

The need of extra room is demonstrated by the fact that in the tire building department the men are being worked in three eight-hour shifts. This fills up the entire twenty-four hours, but is necessary in order to meet the demand.

The pressure on the facilities of the Empire factory is proof of the splendid satisfaction afforded by Empire tires last year. In actual use red tires have made good all the promises of durability and extra mileage. This is why more are constantly being sold. The company's sales of last year were made in large proportion to experienced motorists. These are especially welcomed as customers, for the Empire company likes to submit its product to the judgment of those who have used many tires and can appreciate tire values.

The complete red rubber tire represents an evolution. The red rubber tube, known as the "peerless," was first presented to the public by this company. It had such success that the company abandoned gray rubber tubes entirely. The results continued to be so good that it was then decided to go the full limit and make casings of the same material. The results is the pioneer red rubber tire.

Every test, subsequent to this time, factory, road or users, has proved the superior durability of the red rubber tire. This tire is the successful effort of the Empire company to reduce the cost of tire mileage, one of the most difficult problems that faces the motor car industry. In actual practice it is found that the red rubber tire will not cut, bruise or wear as rapidly as the other type, according to Empire company experts, and gives a mileage in proportion to its greater toughness.

The increasing number of users whose purchases have compelled expansion at the factory shows that motorists have a growing confidence that Empire tires wear out slowly and go on the shelf only after long service.

Insufficient Charging Injurious to Machines, Declares C. G. Nixon

C. G. Nixon, of the Alexander-Sewald company, city, says that one of the most frequent causes of dissatisfaction on the part of owners of electrically equipped cars is insufficient charging of their storage batteries.

As a rule, the owner has no idea of how long a time it takes to recharge a battery that has begun to run down. He is usually in a hurry and wants to get his battery right back again as quickly as possible, when, as a matter of fact, he should leave it at the charging station possibly for several days.

If the battery man gives in and lets him take his battery after it has been charged for only a few hours it will appear to give satisfactory service at first, but will very qickly go dead, as the saying is. The owner is dissatisfied and very often serious injury is done to his battery.

Thorough charging is one of the strong points in Willard battery service. The company has established these service stations all over the United States, Canada and Mexico, and put battery experts in charge, so that the man who brings his storage battery there can rely upon the job being done thoroughly and on getting satisfactory starting and lighting when the battery is back again in his car.

JUSTICE OF SUPREME COURT.

Over the new-turned sod
The sons of our fathers stand,
And the fierce old fight
Slips out of sight
In the clasp of a brother's hand.

For the old blood left a stain
That the new has washed away,
And the sons of those
That have faced as foes
Are marching together to-day.

Oh, the roses we plucked for the blue
And the lilies we twined for the gray
We have bound in one wreath,
And in silence beneath
Slumber our heroes to-day.

IN the White House there's a Virginian, Woodrow Wilson; a Confederate veteran from Louisiana, Edward D. White, wears the ermine of Chief Justice; serving as Postmaster General is a Texan, Albert Sidney Burleson, while a man from Mississippi, Thomas Watt Gregory, bears the burden of Attorney General; directing the navy is a North Carolinian, Josephus Daniels; his chief of operations is a Georgian, Captain William Shepherd Benson, and sitting in the Supreme Court as Associate Justices are a Georgian, Joseph H. Lamar, and a Kentuckian, James Clark McReynolds, as this Memorial Day of 1915 dawns. Significant indeed is this particular half century remembrance of the nation's one great civil strife. The law of the land and the vehicle of its enforcement are being interpreted and guided by the Southern born.

Long ago the natural animosities consequent on the outcome of the war between the States began to weaken in snap and snarl, and finally died. Now even to hint of hate as a heritage of the 1861-65 struggle is to be reckoned an apostle of vendetta ridiculously out of place and credit in American make-up.

The vanquished South of fifty years ago is, representatively, the governmental victor of the present day. Hushed is everything that might tend to agitate past differences. Long since the orator ceased to fan factional prejudices and sectional animosities. The spoken word now only lauds the spirit of a reunited country. Nothing is heard or said that breathes of bitterness of the past. In all save one respect the American people are an amalgamated patriotic whole.

And this one respect? It is the exercise of the faculty of memory in connection with the deeds of a proud past. This is the past link of the chains that pull to the South and pull to the North in a sentimental tug-of-war over the jealously guarded right to lay a wreath and grant a glory. They of the gray demand the sectional right to flower their own graves and laud their own heroes. They of the blue insist upon segregating their valiant dead for annual remembrance. This is the one respect in which all of the broad land are still not ideally reunited. It is the last vestige of war separation, the final place in the patriotic metal remaining unwelded.

Until there is a union or composite Memorial Day the perfect restoration of national amity will lack just a little of accomplishment. This has come to be the opinion of many men, North and South, who have been pioneers in preaching the gospel of a glorious reunited country for many years past. They have pointed out that so long as there is a sectional observance of a day devoted to civil war sacrifices and achievements the sectional spirit will in a measure be fostered. Ceremonies attending sectional celebrations will naturally centre on the deeds of those who battled in the interests of those sections. Local lauding lessens patriotic scope.

A blended Memorial Day is the ideal substitute for the nation that now divides the bestowal of its tears and its laurels. No more auspicious time could be chosen to inaugurate such a patriotic innovation than at the half century of the conflict that gave sad rise to the ceremonials in memoriam. Such a day, observed in common regardless of compass points or political boundaries, would draw the divergent sentiment of many years to a concentrated total volume of patriotic feeling. With the reverent placing of the honoring wreath the mourner might aptly say as he bent over any soldier's grave anywhere in the United States:—"I don't care where he came from; I don't care under what flag he fought; I dedicate as an American."

There now are observed no fewer than five memorial days in the United States. Each one has been chosen by a State or States as the date upon which the soldier dead of the civil war shall be honored. Here is the list:—

April 26 is Confederate Memorial Day in Georgia, Florida, Alabama and Mississippi.

May 10 is Confederate Memorial Day in North Carolina and South Carolina.

May 30 is Decoration Day or Memorial Day in all of the States and political dependencies throughout the world. These States are excepted:—Arkansas, Florida, Georgia, Louisiana, Mississippi, North Carolina, South Carolina and Texas.

June 3 is Confederate Memorial Day in Louisiana and Virginia, the date also being the birthday of Jefferson Davis and honored as such.

These memorial days, all designated with the same patriotic purpose in view, stretch over a period of thirty-nine days, Midway between the earliest and latest date the blended memorial day might logically be set, or on May 15. Such an arrangement is deemed an unqualifiedly proper one by Colonel Lewis R. Stegman, the chairman of the New York State Monuments Commission. Colonel Stegman is a veteran of the civil war and carries about with him the marks made by three bullets stopped by his body in three different battles. For many years it has been the work of the colonel to take a prominent part in the selection of sites for the erection of New York's monuments to chronicle the deeds of her soldiers on various battlefields. For this reason he is peculiarly qualified to voice the veteran sentiment on the topic of a blended memorial day.

"Nothing could be more beautifully fitting or desirable in the way of memoriam than the fixing of one general day for mourning and honoring the federal and Confederate dead," said Colonel Stegman. "It is true that at the present time federal soldiers' graves on Southern soil receive due share of Confederate remembrance on the days set apart for Confederate memorial observance. It is also true that Confederate soldiers' graves on Northern soil are decorated simultaneously with those of the men who wore the blue, on the common Memorial Day of the North, May 30. This is as it should be and leaves very little lacking except the division of spirit that is a following of the division of memorial observance.

"I have watched the spirit of war enmity dwindle and dwindle for fifty years past. I began to visit battlefields North and South almost immediately after the close of the war. I can well remember the incipient revival of the exchange of courtesies between the four year foes and how it grew and grew, little by little. I remember I revisited Gettysburg battlefield two or three years after the war and met a number of confederate officers there who had come by special invitation.

"We walked over to the Bloody Angle together. Then, in somewhat of a theatrical way, we separated, the Southerners going to the south side of the stone wall, over which General Armistead had leaped, leading his command in Pickett's charge. At the word of one of our number we officers of the North and they of the South advanced toward one another. We met right at the Bloody Angle walk and, reaching across, shook hands.

"That little incident was the first of a number having the same reuniting purpose. As the years crept along I noticed the change in manner, change in tone, change in words, change in actions of the old foes. Why, at the first Gettysburg meeting we were constantly on the polite qui vive, so that we might not offend by any sort of a gloating reference to the strenuous past. Not we North erners alone—the Southern officers held themselves in courteous leash the same way. Once in a while, regardless of the care we took, a word would drop that would threaten to stir things up. I can still see the fire come into the eyes of our Southern visitors and the twitching muscles around the jaw and mouth as they restrained themselves from making sharp reply. And they made a slip now and then, too, and our boys would glare a trifle and act for a second as if they intended to cuss the confederates out.

"Presently the anniversaries of the battles began to be attended by Confederates. Sparsely at first, but by and by as a matter of course. Then it was that the signs of hatred and rancor began to disappear. The twenty-fifth anniversary of the battle of Gettysburg, observed with fitting ceremonies in 1888, was attended by many notable Confederates. Already the leaven of union was working. Nobody thought of referring acrimoniously to the past, nobody had any sentiment to express but that of honor for the heroic dead who had fought the fight for what they thought was right.

"Thirty-five years after the war the conflict with Spain began. Northerner and Southerner melted into one patriotic mass to fight a common foe. If there had been any sectionalism remaining it died then and died for good. Since then the free and complete recognition of the glory of the Blue by the Gray and of the Gray by the Blue has grown and grown. You would be thought a freak to try to start anything calculated to open old wounds. They are closed forever. In 1913 at the half century anniversary of Gettysburg the Blue and the Gray slept in the same tent on the same ground over which they had charged and sought each other's life. They were comrades—they were brothers.

"So there is just one little cementing job remaining to be done. I've watched the decay of animosity since 1865. I've followed the growth of amity. The transformation is complete. But if the States were to so mingle their memorials that one common day might be evolved on which to mourn and honor the blended American dead the crowning glory of a reuniting sentiment would be won. It has been the dream of many gallant soldiers of both sides. Read this sentiment of General Gordon, a mighty able Confederate."

Colonel Stegman produced a faded clipping containing an address made by General John B. Gordon, then Governor of Georgia, on the twenty-fifth anniversary of the battle of Gettysburg, July 2, 1888, at the scene of the great three days fight. It read in part:—

"Of all the martial virtues the one which is most characteristic of the truly brave is the virtue of magnanimity. How grand the exhibition of this virtue and of the reciprocal generous impulses that characterize this memorable battlefield!

"My countrymen of the North, if I may be permitted to speak for those whom I represent, let me assure you that in the profoundest depths of their nature they return that generosity with all the manliness of which they are capable. In token of that sincerity they join in consecrating for annual patriotic pilgrimage these historic heights, which drank such copious draughts of American blood, poured so freely in discharge of duty, as each conceived it—a Mecca for the North, which so grandly defended, a Meeca for the South, which so bravely and persistently stormed it. We join you in setting apart this land as an enduring monument of peace, brotherhood and perpetual union.

"I repeat the thought with emphasis, with singleness of heart and purpose, in the name of a common country and of universal liberty, and by the blood of our fallen brothers we unite in the solemn consecration of these hallowed hills as a holy, eternal pledge of fidelity to the life, freedom and unity of this cherished Republic."

"That goes to show you how a Confederate general, a quarter of a century ago, had the right idea about a blended memorial day," said Colonel Stegman as he folded the faded clipping and tucked it carefully away. "Right there on the battlefield of Gettysburg, at the same moment, and shoulder to shoulder with his old foes, General Gordon believed in honoring the fallen heroes collectively. He didn't have an idea of getting to Gettysburg on a different day from when Northerners were decorating their graves. Nor did he purpose to seek out, wherever he might come upon one, a Confederate grave, for special, exclusive attention. His address clearly shows that he liked the idea of mingled mourning and mingled honor for the soldier dead. Here is another clipping that gives a Memorial Day sentiment of Lieutenant-General James Longstreet, who was certainly a partisan fighter for four years on the side of Dixie," said the Colonel handing out another faded keepsake, which read:—

"The broad, deep Americanism which pulses through the great heart of the Republic to-day will grow broader and deeper with the passing years. I am thankful that I have lived to see this noble result of the war springing into vast and virile life. The passions of the titanic struggle will finally enter upon the sleep of oblivion, and only its splendid accomplishments for the cause of human freedom and a united nation, stronger and richer in patriotism because of the great strife, will be remembered."

"Very likely the sectionally sentimental will demur some over the proposition to give up their special sectional day for a bigger, broader, grander day that will represent a solidified nation," said Colonel Stegman. "No doubt the North would be harder to change than the South—at least it is plausible to suppose so, because May 30 is observed over such a greater range of territory and by a larger number of people. It would require more extensive legislative action, because, as you know, Memorial Day is a State and not a national day in its fullest extent. There will also be many who will say:—'Let us mourn in our own cemetery—you mourn in yours. We wish to be more alone with our grief.' But this will not meet the great national ideal of a country bowing over its patriot graves as a unit in honoring and glorying. I hope to live to see it."

The germ of the blended Memorial Day came into being at the very moment the idea of the day itself was born. But the Memorial Day idea was taken up in a sectional way in the main, leaving the blend germ in abeyance. Hundreds of thousands in the North who take active part in Memorial Day exercises every year would no doubt be surprised to know that it was the South which began the reverent and piously patriotic custom. Such is the fact, however, and it came about in this wise:—

In the spring of the second year following the close of the civil war a Northern newspaper printed just a little paragraph in an incidental way that was destined to bring about the beautiful holidays of memorial. The paragraph stated that the women of Columbus, Miss., in strewing flowers on the graves of the soldier dead had been thoughtfully particular to omit no federal soldier's mound. At once the North rose to the suggestion. It is said that it was through reading this paragraph of the noble act of the Mississippi women Francis Miles Finch was inspired to write his beautiful poem "The Blue and the Gray."

Not until three years later, however, was anything done to advance the suggestion of the South. It finally came about through the suggestion of Adjutant General N. P. Chipman to General John A. Logan, the National Commander of the Grand Army of the Republic. It was advised that flowers be spread over the graves of Union soldiers on some common day to be selected, preferably in the spring of the year, when blossoms first greet the eye after the dismal winter.

General Logan took up the idea at once. He issued an official order setting apart May 30, 1868, as the first Decoration Day—as the day was called for many years, and is still so termed by many who have observed it from its inception. The language of General Logan's order is worth repeating, for it conveys the exact meaning of what the custom was intended to cover. The day was to be kept—

"For the purpose of strewing with flowers or otherwise decorating the graves of comrades who died in the defence of their country during the late rebellion, and whose bodies now lie in almost every city, village or hamlet churchyard in the land. It is the purpose of the Commander in Chief to inaugurate this observance with the hope that it will be kept from year to year while a survivor of the war remains to honor the memory of the departed."

It will be noticed that the order was rather pro-North in its wording. But the span between actual conflict and the first Memorial Day was a very short one, and language of intensity was more or less natural. Almost immediately after Memorial Day was inaugurated a better feeling toward the South, as a whole, began. The flowers on every Northern soldier's grave every spring proved a better and more constant argument for amity than volumes of argument and tons of oratory.

The various States took up the Memorial Day idea in quick succession. Legislatures made the day a legal holiday. In the North the Grand Army suggestion of May 30 made a strong appeal, so that most of the commonwealths uniformly agreed upon that particular month and date. The South was as enthusiastic, but saw no occasion for such uniformity. Local convenience and the birthday of its prominent war leaders suggested the advisability of setting apart such days as would best express the combined idea.

In Memorial Day, edited by Robert Haven Schauffler, a quotation is carried from the Illustrated American conveying in eloquent concrete the idea of the universal Memorial Day. It says:—

"If the North had merely pinned together with bayonets the two divided sections of the country their soldiers had fought and bled and fallen in vain. Northern hatred for the South, Southern hatred for the North, is disloyalty, is treason indeed to the Union which has been re-established. We who remember with pride the achievements of our soldiers are proud to acknowledge they had foemen worthy of their steel, and that a common country gave birth to both. The arbitrament of the sword has settled forever the questions over which no other tribunal had jurisdiction, and the nation went through the throes of a civil war for the benefit of North and South alike."

Memorial Days have been set apart by the various nations for many centuries. The Romans had their Parentalia, extending from February 13 to February 21. Tombs were decorated with wreaths and flowers. The Latin poets tell of roses and violets being strewn about. Food offerings were also made at the tombs to the shades of the departed. These observances were not confined to honoring the Roman soldier, so that in this respect the custom has no exact similarity to the Memorial Day of the present time.

The Greeks performed floral rites at graves, and the ancient Druids selected the first of November as their Memorial Day. In China and Japan there is the "Feast of the Lanterns," held in honor of the departed. But, again, these rites and feasts have no likeness to our Memorial Day in particular, because they are for the general dead.

France has the Jour des Morts, observed at the time of All Saints' Day. Everywhere wreaths of flowers are in evidence, the tributes of remembrance not being confined to the cemeteries. They, however, are covered with votive offerings in honor of the departed. The Potter's Field comes in for its share. But the soldier has no special remembrance in these Memorial Day observances. So it may be taken for granted that the beautiful American custom of decoration is unique. True, civilian graves are wreathed on the soldiers' Memorial Day, because it is an opportune time. Likewise in France on its Jour des Morts soldiers' graves receive tribute at a most convenient time. But the day in America is primarily the soldiers' day.

There may be some in England who still cherish the vindictive feeling prevalent during the Wars of the Roses. From the battle of St. Albans in 1455 to the battle of Bosworth Field in 1485 the white rose of the Yorkists and the red rose of the Lancastrians were borne on the breasts of bitter battlers. Thirty years they hurled themselves at each other before there came an end through the marriage of a Lancastrian king to a Yorkist princess, it would be the height of absurdity to suppose a modern Yorkist going to Westminster to lay a wreath upon the tomb of Richard III. and choosing a time when he would not bump into a modern Lancastrian carrying a chaplet for the tomb of Henry VII. It is half a century since the civil war ended. That is long enough to accomplish a unity of memorial and tribute as firm and strong as the political unity resulting from the great conflict.

SCHOOL The Sunday Constitution's NEWS

TECH HIGH SCHOOL CLOSES FINE YEAR

School Has Made Wonderful Strides—Seniors to Graduate at Atlanta Theater Wednesday Night.

By Clarence L. Feibelman.

As the scholastic year of 1914-15 is rapidly approaching a close it is, no doubt, fitting that it should contain a brief resume of the work covered by Tech High during that time.

When the roll was called last September, approximately 370 boys answered, and were registered under the banner of the school on Marietta street. Of that number, about forty have, for various reasons, such as moving from the city, going to work or flunking, left during the year, and the school will close with an enrollment of about 330. That number of boys have made a very satisfactory record in scholarship, department and the thing called school spirit, especially the latter. Beside the ever-present handicap of inadequate space, the school at first had the added handicap of accustoming itself to the drastic change made from the old method to the new unit system. However, with the help of a greatly augmented faculty, this difficulty was soon overcome and the school started smooth sailing shortly after opening. Next year the school will open with, perhaps, seven hundred students, and it is to be hoped that large additions will be made during the summer to the buildings already in use.

The shop, besides the required plates, have turned out many beautiful as well as useful articles, such as chairs, tables, desks, davenports and tools of iron and steel, all of which will be on display on exhibition day, and the classical and mathematical side the students have made a record of which they may well be proud.

Athletics.

In athletics the school has had a very fair year. Our football team was a good one, and played some mighty good games. They finished second in the Prep league. Colored and Harlan are manager and captain, respectively, for next year. Our basketball team pulled some good games and finished fourth. Mr. Harlan and Colcord have been named manager and captain for next year's basketball team, third, and has elected Smith and Harlan manager and captain. The baseball team is all well fitted for their positions, and the school can look forward to a successful year in athletics.

The Tehisean, our annual, came out on the 25th and more than our expectations were fulfilled. The book is bound in purple cloth leather with the school seal and the word Tehisean stamped in gold on the front. The annual is full of good pictures and cartoons all the work of students. The photographs of the various shops and classes are also unusually good. This book would do credit to a college annual three times its size, and all those men who are chiefly responsible for its publication have realized that their unflagging efforts were not in vain.

Graduates.

The senior class this year will graduate the following six-teen: Merrill Bridwell, Messrs. H. Brown, F. McFt. Bridwell, W. W. Carder, D. Clintz, J. Eli, banks, Cliff Feibelman, J. J. Gerlach, W. C. Hawes, L. W. Hope, S. L. Hurt, W. H. Jarrell, M. K. Kinnebrew, Wesley, H. E. Montag, W. C. Puckett and J. M. Shropshire. The class of 1915 is, in 1915 fashion, a class of seventy, but through losses from various causes it has dwindled down to the above small number. The lack of numbers, however, has been more than atoned for in the quality of the work.

Graduation will take place on Wednesday evening, June 2 at 8 o'clock at the Atlanta theater. An admission of 25 cents will be charged. The class play will be held at the school next Tuesday, June 1, at 3:15 p. m. from 10 to 12 a. m. Music will be furnished by the Tech High Glee club and produced by our efficient director. All are interested are invited to attend. The shops, laboratories and classes will be open for inspection.

In conclusion, the correspondent desires to wish for the school a continuation of the success that it has earned and of a quality of service and influence perhaps than any other factor in bringing a true democracy into the schools, which, but for this page, would not know of each other's existence.

MANY CHILDREN MAKE HONOR ROLL AT PRYOR SCHOOL

The roll of honor in attendance this year is as follows:

First Grade—John Odum, Ouida Sanders, Gertrude Stanford, Cecil Lambert.

Third Grade—Pearl Bell, Evelyn Cooke, Josee Goldsmith, Dorothy Kuhlman, Mary Young, Helen White.

Fourth Grade—Alroy Preston, T. Perkins, Edna Pearce, Clifford Young, Ella Chandler, Clyde Edmondson, Florence Gwinn, Lucile Smith, Lucy Pierce, Dorothy Kendley, Dorothy Nabors, Kathleen Hinds, Hilda Moon.

Fourth B—Marjie Bradford, Margaret Rooks, William Dunn, Bodgie Granger, Sybil Hamilton, Lucile Martin.

Sixth A—Georgie Bell, Fannie Bell, Fannie Cook, Gertrude Cook, Jessie Chandler, Willie Garvin, Jessie Jones, Elsie Kuhlman, Bertha Kendley, Evelyn Mercer, Mary Washington, and Lee Mozelle Rooks, Thelma Stanford, Janette Topham, Beatrice Gilbert, Lucile Massay.

Sixth B—Daniel Lumpkin, Willie Florence, Jesse Mitchell, Ferdinand Thomas.

MARIE OVERBEY.

ATTENDANCE RACE AT CREW SCHOOL WON BY 1ST GRADE

Our last attendance contest was won by the first B and the second grade. The prize for the first grade was a bird chart, and that for the second, two pictures of Dutch scenes.

Our sympathy is extended to Marion Pinkusson, of the sixth grade, who has just undergone an operation for appendicitis.

The fifth grade had two interesting spelling matches this week. Ethel Hicks and Bessie Curran were appointed leaders. In the first match Ethel Hicks, Mary Unger, Joseph Harrison, Turner Cathers stood up on Ethel Hicks' side. Bessie Curran proved the best speller of her side.

The second grade entertained the first A grade with a dramatization of "Hans and Gretel." Evelyn Mills made an excellent witch.

Normal Defeats Oakland For Grammar Championship

By a count of 12 to 2, the Normal school, winners of the pennant in the Grammar school league, defeated the Oakland team, champions of the north side, in the opening game of their series for the grammar school championship of Atlanta at last Monday afternoon at Piedmont park.

The Normal boys waded into the Oakland pitcher in the first few innings of the game, making the result certain from the start. In the first two frames the south side clippers made eight runs, more than enough to even cinch the game.

The features of the game were the twirling of Gordon Bound for the Normal school and the hitting of his teammates. Winburn allowed his opponents but four scattering safeties during the nine rounds, walked four men and sent three back to the bench on strikes. The two runs that Oakland secured were added materially by errors made behind him.

Offensively, Bound led the attack for the winners, was the star Birdett came to the plate on four occasions and each time he connected for solid hits, three for singles and one for a triple. Nearly each one of the hits came when hits meant runs.

Before the ceremonies were started, Oakland was presented with the handsome loving cup that they won by defeating the Formwalt team last year.

Score by innings:

	R.	H.	E.
Normal.....	4	10	2
Oakland.....	2	4	7

Batteries—Winburn and Hammell; Pelgee and Baker.

NORMAL NOTES.

THE PEASANT.

In the second and what proved to be the deciding game of the series, the Oakland team put up a much harder uphill battle considering that they did on the opening day, it requiring twelve innings for the Normal boys to get the verdict over them, and then only after the hardest kind of a fight.

The Oakland team entered the ninth round three runs to the bad, but showing some wonderful comeback spirit they managed to shove over the three tallies necessary to tie up the score before the opposition had scented any trouble. However, all their efforts went for naught, as the Normal team shoved across the winning tally in the twelfth round.

The final count of the game was 10 to 9. The game from start to finish was one of the prettiest grammar league battles ever waged between two grammar league teams. The Oakland lad tied the game up in the ninth, the batters was as clinkers, and no one would care to have it.

The victory was won for Normal in the twelfth inning, when Birdett singled to center field with a runner with him and Miss Bound scored.

From the start to the wind-up the game was a great pitchers' battle between Hammel and Baker. Although each man was rapped rather hard by the opposing swatsmen, neither hurler was hit hard enough to cause his withdrawal.

By winning the game, Normal wins the title and also takes the championship back to the south side, winning five out of six times that the south side league has returned the honors to their play-offs with the winners of the north side league. The one time that the north side league defeated the south in the play-off was a year ago, when the Oakland team defeated Formwalt.

Score by innings:

	R.	H.	E.
Oakland.....	4	01	2
Normal.....	5	10	2

Batteries—Winburn and Hammell; Baker and Cornwell.

Graduation Exercises of Boys' High Wednesday

By Robert Foreman.

On next Wednesday night the senior class of the Boys' high school will graduate at the Atlanta theater. Sixty-five boys will receive their well-earned sheepskins, nineteen from the literary courses and forty-six from the commercial department. These boys will graduate just a little over two hundred students of Tech high. Mr. Culver has charge of the graduating exercises, and the music will be furnished by the H. S. orchestra.

Theodore R. McManmon, valedictorian, has chosen for the subject of his speech, "The Problem of Universal Peace." The class orator, W. B. Hunt, will speak on "The Business of Life," while J. C. Russell will talk on "Problems That Confront the Business Men of Tomorrow." All of the above mentioned students are good speakers, and will undoubtedly give their classmates much good advice.

After the "dips" have been delivered, scholarships to the following colleges have been awarded: University of Georgia, Harold Hirsch, $150 scholarship; Mercer, Mercer, Washington and Lee, Sewanee, University of North Carolina and Tulane. In addition to these, cash scholarships are usually awarded by Harvard university. The races for these scholarships have been very close, and no one knows who the winning boys will be. Thirteen of the nineteen boys in the literary course have signified their intention of attending college, which is a high percentage. Immediately after the graduation exercises the ex-students will have a banquet at the Ansley hotel, where short speeches will be heard from members of the graduating class. Already the seniors have begun to call it "alma mater," and are picking their careers in life.

Classical Course.

Scientific Course.

William Chastain Dear, Max Albert Herzog, Charles Howard Girardeau, Jr., Francis Spears.

Commercial Course.

William J. Allen, Loy P. Bailey, J. Olin Bishop, Andrew Bleau, Marion Boone, Ernest J. Brewer, Russell F. Briggs, Thomas E. Camp, Jr., Alva Henry Carson, Herman M. Cohen, Castle Dent Crenshaw, Jr., Durham, Edwin Theron Evans, Robert W. Gaston, Perry H. Grabeg, A. E. Goldberg, Joseph L. Goldberg, Schaul C. Greinman, Hoyt L. Harbaugh, Car D. Hoffman, Hugh Preston Holcomb, Clyde W. Kimball, Kenneth Henry Kimberly, Fritz J. Krog, Ephriam D. Lane, Secil M. Lemon, John H. Lindsay, Jr., William B. Love, D. M. Martin, Jr., Hugh W. Miller, Edgar L. Morse, J. Roy Owen, G. W. Powell, Morris A. Randman, Jack A. Reacin, J. Frank Robinson, Jr., Charles V. Ruden, J. Clement Russell, Walter S. Sibley, Jr., Lee Slack, Elias Wilson; bronze, Louise Allen, Lucile Caldwell, Nettie Anthony, Winburn Douglas, Abe Levinson, James Whoofield, David Schacter, Louis Atkinson, Louis Goldwater, Meyer Birnstein and John Bansley. We are very proud of this record.

In the second A there are ten children who have received ten stars for having ten perfect spelling papers. They are Agnes Ragsdale, Thelma Glinn, Clarence Drake, Charlie Smith, Hugh Clark, John Kadlec, Minnie Bank, Pauline Robbin and Martha Riley. We are very proud of them, for spelling is surely their strong point.

The fifth A and second B received the basketballs for the highest averages in spelling this week, their averages being respectively 97.7 and 96.5. The fourth A won the attendance banner.

TILLIE POLLOCK.

TWENTY-FIVE SENIORS LEAVE AGNES SCOTT

The twenty-sixth annual commencement of Agnes Scott college was concluded last Wednesday morning, when an impressive and beautiful scene was held in the chapel. As the processional hymn was sung by the chorus, composed of the undergraduates, the faculty, seniors and trustes, all clad in cap and gown, marched down the aisle of the chapel to the stage.

Following the procession named above, there came a number of the alumnae and the entire student body of the college, for whom special seats had been reserved. There was a good-sized audience present to witness the last exercises of the year.

Miss Louise Wilson was awarded the scholarship offered by the college to the graduating class with highest degree of proficiency above a certain mark. The scholarship consists of a year's tuition at Agnes Scott. The music scholarship was won by Miss Priscilla Nelson. The scholarship in voice culture by Miss Mamie Caloway, while the scholarship in art was won by Miss Lucile White.

Miss Laura Irwin Cooper was the winner of the medal given by a friend of the college to promote interest in mathematics at the school. In recognition of the work of the three donors, Misses Mary Helen Schneider, Kate Hinchman and Mary Cofer, who won the recent contest with the Sophie Newcomb college of New Orleans, pins of gold were presented by the faculty. Miss Marian Black was given a certificate of proficiency in the study of chemistry.

An inspiring address on the close relationship of religion to education was made by Rev. Neal L. Anderson, and his talk he declared that every phase of civilization of the present day is due to Christianity.

There were several announcements of importance made after the degrees had been conferred upon the twenty-five graduates by Dr. Gaines. One of these was the appointment of J. K. Orr as chairman of the board of trustees of Agnes Scott, another was the appointment of J. R. McCain, Ph. D., of Columbia university, to occupy the Bible chair, and also to act as registrar of the college.

After exercises were completed, the faculty and students marched out in academic procession as the recessional was played by the chorus.

Members of the Class.

Following are the members of the 1915 graduating class to whom diplomas were awarded:

Margaret Neal Anderson, Winston-Salem, N. C.; Marian Putnam Black, Montgomery, Ala.; Martha Jeannette Bredner, Augusta, Ga.; Mary Lucile Brownlow, Burnsville, Miss.; Annie Pope Bryan, Griffin, Ga.; Elizabeth Cabaniss, Columbus, Ga.; Sallie Huger Carrere, Dublin, Ga.; Ruth Merritt Chisholm, Atlanta; Jessie Ham, Ebra, Ala.; Mary Evelyn Hamilton, Lexington, Ky.; Katherine Hinchman, Kemp Landin, Barnesville, Ga.; Lula Gertrude Madison, Birmingham, Ala.; Reed Clyde McGuire, Franklin, N. C.; Lucy Jordan Nave, Atlanta, Ga.; Grace Reid Newell, Parker, Atlanta, Ga.; Grace Reid, Decatur, Ga.; Kate Dunpkin Richardson, Chattanooga, Tenn.; Mary Helen Shedden, Chattanooga, Tenn.; Frances Louise West, Atlanta, Ga.; Mary Lee Schuler, Chattanooga, Tenn.

Prominent visitors at Agnes Scott for the commencement included Dr. and Mrs. Neal L. Anderson, Winston-Salem, N. C.; Mr. and Mrs. Reed Clyde McGuire, Franklin, N. C.; Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Brenner, Augusta, Ga.; Mr. and Mrs. Harris Reed, Ala., Mrs. M. R. Kell, Pascagoula, Miss.; Mrs. J. E. Schuler, Chattanooga, Tenn.; Mrs. S. R. Shambaugh, Clinton, Iowa; Dr. and Mrs. Frank Gaines, Athens, Ga.; Mrs. R. E. Hrlesnick, Brunswick, Ga.; Mrs. M. U. Mahaffey, Birmingham, Ala.; Miss Marian Newton, Athens, Ga.

BOYS' HIGH WINS PREP TENNIS HONORS

The Boys' High tennis team came out winner of the prep tennis tourney that was held on the courts in East Lake last week. This victory adds another win to the high school's long list of wins during the present school year, having won four pennants and losing but one track trophy. They finished second in this.

Only four teams, Boys' High and Tech High, entered the tourney, but notwithstanding this fact, the meet was hard fought and probably more interesting than it would have been had there been more teams entered.

The meet was conducted on a percentage basis, the school winning up with the highest percentage at the conclusion of the sets being declared the victor. Each team played two singles matches and the doubles, giving them three out of five starts.

The results of all matches were:

Ed Cantz (Tech High) defeated Bill Warren (Boys' High), 6-3, 6-4.

F. C. Owens (Boys' High) defeated G. R. Fraser (Tech High), 6-2, 6-4.

Bill Warren (Boys' High) defeated C. R. Fraser (Tech High), 6-2, 6-4, 6-3.

Cantz and Fraser (Tech) defeated Cantz and Fraser (Tech High), 6-4, 4-6, 6-7, 6-3, 6-3.

FIRST COMMENCEMENT NORTH AV. PRESBYTERIAN

In the presence of the trustees, faculty, seniors and high school students, the first annual commencement of the North Avenue Presbyterian school was held last Sunday morning with the baccalaureate sermon at the North Avenue Presbyterian church. The sermon was preached by Rev. R. G. Finch.

The class day exercises took place last Friday afternoon on the lawn in front of the high school building. The seniors were in charge of the exercises, which, principally of a burning their books and bequeathing their privileges to the incoming class. The class ivy, planted each year by the senior class, was also set out.

The commencement exercises were held on the school lawn on Friday afternoon at 4:30 o'clock, there being a number of unusual and pretty features rendered by the classes.

Immediately in front of the senior class was the chair, known as the "rambler chair," carried by Misses Dorothy Paine, Mildred Coleman, Florence Stow, Lee Gilbert, Elsie Trippe, Lillian Jacobs, Jane Sams and Margaret Whitman. In order were the members of the graduating class, Misses Isabel Quinn, Louise McCutcheon, Elizabeth Richardson and Mary Wills.

The delivery of the diplomas was conducted by Judge E. C. Kontz, president of the board of trustees. His speech consisted of giving the seniors some helpful advice.

The Chinese flower fete was one of the most enjoyable features of the program, the participants as well as the spectators enjoying the fun.

The program delivered was as follows:

Program for Commencement.

Festival at Lee School Postponed Until May 31

The big spring festival that was planned to be given last Thursday, afternoon and Friday night by the pupils of the Lee street school and also of the Normal Training school was postponed on account of the rain, since the play was to have been given out of doors.

The date for the two performances has been set for Monday afternoon, May 31, and for Tuesday night, June 1. The advance sale of tickets for the two original performances was very large, and we will no doubt see a large crowd present when the curtain rings up tomorrow. The afternoon festival is at 4:30 o'clock, while the one at night will start at 7:30.

The program for the festival follows:

PART I.

The Coming of the Birds.

Nature enters and takes seat in bower. Winter takes seat in background.

Opening chorus. "Welcome to Springtime" Rubenstein.

Winter (Thelma Eskridge, 7A).

Chorus. "Adieu to Winter."

Child (Cassie Skelton, 3B).

Chorus. "Blue and Gold" Strauss.

Dance of the River—Seventh grade girls. Bird calls heard.

Nature announces Bluebirds.

Bluebirds herald Spring (1B).

Dance of the Nightingale—Miss Thelma Thrasher (Lee normal present school year, having won four pennants and losing but one track trophy). They finished second in this.

Only four teams, Boys' High and Tech High, entered the tourney, but notwithstanding this fact, the meet was hard fought and probably more interesting than it would have been had there been more teams entered.

The meet was conducted on a percentage basis, the school winning up with the highest percentage at the conclusion of the sets being declared the victor. Each team played two singles matches and the doubles, giving them three out of five starts.

The results of all matches were:

Ed Cantz (Tech High) defeated Bill Warren (Boys' High), 6-3, 6-4.

F. C. Owens (Boys' High) defeated G. R. Fraser (Tech High), 6-2, 6-4.

GRADUATING EXERCISES CONDUCTED AT G. M. A.

Dr. Durham, Dean of Emory College, Delivers Two Addresses.

Dr. Plato Durham, dean of Emory university, preached the commencement sermon at the Georgia Military academy last Sunday morning.

In his address, the first by his subject, "The Christian Knighthood," a discourse that was thoroughly enjoyed by his audience. He pictured for the students the true Christian knighthood of today and pointed out just what the men of this time must do to achieve that knighthood.

Dr. Durham also delivered a text, "Until we come in the unity of faith and the knowledge of the Son of God unto the perfect man."

This year's graduating class at the Collegiate Park school is the largest that the school has ever turned out before. The commencement program has been delightfully enjoyed by the graduating cadets, the undergraduates and by their large number of friends in College Park and surrounding territory.

Thursday morning, May 27, annual field day.

Thursday afternoon, May 27, competitive company and individual drill; final dress parade.

Thursday evening, May 27, annual senior-junior debate; subject, "Resolved, That at the conclusion of the present European war the world should disarm." Affirmative, junior debaters, Raymond Osborne Bennett, Chattanooga, Tenn.; Ambrose J. Martin, Atlanta, Ga., negative, senior debaters, John Calhoun Mackall, Meridian, Miss., Ernest Solomon Fried, Vicksburg, Miss.; William Roy Carn, Ocala, Fla. (alternate); junior class, John Comwell Lovelace, Atlanta, Ga.; William Calvin King, Headland, Ala.; Ambrose Johnston Martin, Atlanta, Ga. (alternate); senior class, John Cromwell Blocker, Jr., St. Petersburg, Fla.; Benjamin Hirsch, Carrollton, Ga.; Robert Richardson Brock, Carrollton, Ga.; delivery of diplomas, certificates, warranties and medals; athletic monograms.

Friday evening, May 28, commencement address by Professor Carl W. Stead, Mercer university, salutatorian, first honor, John Cromwell Blocker, Jr., St. Petersburg, Fla., valedictorian, first honor, Benjamin Brock, Carrollton, Ga.; delivery of diplomas, certificates, warranties and medals; athletic monograms.

SPLENDID PROGRAM PRESENTED BY 4 A AT DAVIS SCHOOL

Wednesday we gave a lawn party to our parents and friends. We were very glad to have present so many members of the board of education, members of the park board, and other prominent people.

Each grade had a table on the lawn and served their guests lemonade and cake. Drills, plays, games and songs were features of the afternoon.

The fourth A grade had an interesting program which the people enjoyed very much. The most interesting number was a play dramatized by the teacher and children. The play was "Cinderella."

The cast was as follows: Cinderella, Evelyn Bornkesser; the haughty sisters, Louise Hurst and Lydia Herran; puss, Grace Hardman; the prince, Ira Pope; royal herald, Howell Blevins; fairy godmother, Mary Pritchard.

A parents' meeting preceded the lawn party. The program was very interesting. Miss Parrish addressed the meeting on "The School as a Social Center." Miss Lyman Abbott spoke of the children's moving pictures at the Grand. Mr. Terrell talked about our new school building. Mrs. Tibbetts spoke about the value of playgrounds. Mr. Slaton closed the program with some complimentary remarks about our school.

During the meeting a storm came up and the rain poured down. All the mothers who had left their babies out on the lawn had to leave the meeting and run out after them. There must have been twenty-five babies and little tots present, but the older boys and girls took them in out of the rain, and after a short but very exciting fifteen minutes, every mother found her child and peace reigned once more.

The day was beautiful, and all our visitors complimented us on being so fortunate as to have the finest school grounds in the city.

INA HARRIS, Correspondent.

INTERESTING EXERCISES AT NORTH AVE. SCHOOL

Very interesting exercises marked the first annual class day of the North Avenue Presbyterian school. The exercises were held on the lawn of the high school building last Thursday afternoon and were in charge of the senior class.

At the close of the exercises Miss Converse entertained the guests of the afternoon at an informal reception in honor of the graduating class.

The exercises were as follows:

Chairman—Elizabeth Richardson.

Roll Call—Grinds.

Favorite Song—Junior class.

Senior Prophecy—Louise McCutcheon.

"Living Tableau"—Sophomore class.

Burning of senior books.

"The Model Freshman"—Freshman class.

Duet, "Sense and Nonsense"—Evelyn Eagan and Jane Sams.

Senior Will—Mary Wills.

Planting of the ivy.

Senior Spade Oration—Isabel Quinn.

Response for School—Mary Barnett.

"Alma Mater."

SPLENDID PAGEANT AT DAVIS SCHOOL

Three Delightful Plays Produced by Youthful Actors. Evelyn Bournuyesser, as Cinderilla, Scores Hit.

Although somewhat rudely broken into by the downpour of rain that fell over the city last Wednesday afternoon, the pupils of the Davis street school returned bravely to their labors after the rain had ceased falling and rendered a very enjoyable program of drills and plays.

Every grade in school was present with some kind of play or other, and every one of them was met with a cheer by the audience. The plays, "Pocahontas and Captain John Smith," "Oglethorpe and Tomochichi," and "Cinderilla," were three of the most delightful ones exhibited during the afternoon.

"Captain John Smith and Pocahontas" was presented by the children of the seventh A, and the acting of the entire cast was good. Evelyn Bowers, as Captain Smith, and Marcelle Lyon, as Pocahontas, acted their parts fine.

The comedy of the afternoon was presented in the "Country School," which scored quite a success. This play was put through by the eighth grade children, as was also a very good drill.

Evelyn Bournesser, in the title of "Cinderilla," made one of the biggest hits of the day. She is a very pretty child, and carried her part through almost to perfection.

Several interesting speeches were were made at the parent-teacher meeting prior to the pageant.

G. M. A. WINS PREP MEET WITH 44-POINT SCORE

In the annual prep track meet conducted by the preparatory schools of Atlanta and vicinity, the Georgia Military academy team, under Coach Bob Church Sheffer, came out holding the large end of the score. This makes the second year in a row that the G. M. A. bunch school has won the meet, as they were easy winners last year at Piedmont park.

The cadets were never hard pushed at any time to maintain the lead that they took at the very first event. The team smothered their opponents 16 points ahead of the second best score of their nearest competitor, Boys' High school, with Tech High came in third, with 21 points to their credit, being beaten out by the cadets in the field events only after some desperate work.

The meet was a success in every possible way. Much of the credit for the success is due Coach Alexander, of the cadets, who handled the track events. They were run off with as much quickness and dispatch as the field events, but interest were never lagging. The spectators were kept interested in the meet until the end of the final event.

Willis Battle, of the Georgia Military academy team, was the individual star of the meet. Battle made 13 points and won the medal offered by the league to the player making the highest number of points for the meet. He placed first in the quarter and half-mile, and finished second in the 220 yard low hurdles.

Next to Battle the best work of the day was done by Alfred Scott, of the Boys' High school, who made a total of 11 points, but two points back of Battle. He won first in the high jump and one third.

The work of the G. M. A. team was exceptionally good and should somewhat atone the cadets for the poor showing that their baseball and basketball and baseball. G. M. A. will be presented a handsome silver loving cup by Spalding's.

The results of all events held are as follows:

100-Yard Dash—Douglass, G. M. A.; Babcock, G. M. A.; Hall, Boys' High. Time, 10 1-5 seconds.

High Jump—Scott, Boys' High; Harlan, Tech High; Adams, Boys' High. Height, 5 feet 6 inches.

Pole Vault—Montgomery, Boys' High; Owen, Tech High; Thornton, G. M. A. Height, 9 feet 6 inches.

Half Mile—Battle, G. M. A.; Weinmaster, Tech High; Kling, G. M. A.; 2 minutes.

Shot Put—Fincher, Tech High; Porter, G. M. A.; Scott, Boys' High. 37 feet 6 inches.

Quarter Mile—Battle, G. M. A.; Adams, Boys' High; Kling, G. M. A. 56 seconds.

Relay Race—Won by G. M. A. team, composed of Babcock, Franklin, Douglass and Battle.

Field Judge and Referee—Coach Alexander, of Georgia Tech.

EVELYN STARLING AND FLYNN NANCE WIN PRIZE MEDALS

I hope we are not conceited, but we are sure we have a right to boast. The Peace day exercises were beautifully observed. After the exercises the children marched out on the school grounds and played in the yard, and a large American flag was raised on a tall flagstaff, while the children sang "The Star-Spangled Banner" and "Salute the Flag." The girls of all grades were dressed in white and carried out the colors red, white and blue in their hair ribbons and ties.

After recess the girls and boys of seventh A and seventh B grades recited for the election medals. Our judges found it hard to come to a decision, as so many deserved excellent, but Evelyn Starling was the fortunate winner of the girls and Flynn Nance of the boy's medal. La Rue Johnson and D. A. Pirkle were given honorary mention by the judges.

Colonel Smith made us a nice speech in awarding the medals, and paid our principal and teachers a nice compliment for the excellent training of the children and the improvements added to our school.

Mr. Green, of the board of education, gave the seventh A grade a visit and heard history and promised to come back this week.

Our auditorium has new chairs and pictures, which certainly add to its comfort and beauty.

FAITH SCHOOL

Grades Busy Preparing Programs for School Closing.

As the school year draws near its close, we have a mingled feeling of gladness and sorrow.

We are glad to know that we have almost completed the year's work, but are sorry to leave some of whom we will separate from next year.

All the grades of our school are preparing interesting programs for the closing of school.

There are thirty-nine children of our school that have been present every day. Their names are as follows:

First Grade—Eva Langley, Mildred Davis, Lois Hollingsworth.

Second Grade—Cecil Mann, Lois Davenport, Leo Chapin.

Second Grade—Annie Lou Price, Edith George, Jeanette Gunn, Calvin Crowley, Aaron Black, Loretta Martin.

Third Grade—Hubert Smith, Ernest George, Slyde Passmore, Alvin Williams, Johnnie Williams, Mayme Chesser, Julia Davenport.

Picnics Enjoyed by Pupils of All Grades.

The second A had a picnic Friday and they had a fine time. The two sevenths and sixths are going to have a picnic at Piedmont Park and we are sure they will have a good time.

The fifth A have gotten their athletic badges and those who received them are as follows: Silver, Hattie Lee Black, Elise Wilson; bronze, Louise Allen, Lucile Caldwell, Nettie Anthony, Winburn Douglas, Abe Levinson, James Whoofield, David Schacter, Louis Atkinson, Louis Goldwater, Meyer Birnstein and John Bansley. We are very proud of this record.

In the second A there are ten children who have received ten stars for having ten perfect spelling papers. They are Agnes Ragsdale, Thelma Glinn, Clarence Drake, Charlie Smith, Hugh Clark, John Kadlec, Minnie Bank, Pauline Robbin and Martha Riley. We are very proud of them, for spelling is surely their strong point.

The fifth A and second B received the basketballs for the highest averages in spelling this week, their averages being respectively 97.7 and 96.5. The fourth A won the attendance banner.

Miss Robinson's Recital.

The pupils of Miss Olee Robinson entertained their friends with a musicale in Miss Robinson's studio, 325 Peachtree street, on Friday evening. A very interesting program was rendered, and included two vocal numbers by the Wednesday Afternoon Music club.

A most enjoyable feature of the evening was the reading by Mrs. John Marshall Slaton of Longfellow's "Skeleton in Armor," and other selections.

Misses Sims and Watson, piano pupils of Miss Putt, each contributed a piano solo.

Taking part in the program will be Misses Mace Green, Louise Murray, Clara Robinson, Leila Pearl Elder, Louise Cooper, Miss Sims, Miss Watson, Messrs. J. Offenbach and Oxenford and Mrs. John Marshall Slaton.

Mrs. Tucker in Hawaii.

Mrs. Henry H. Tucker, Atlanta delegate to the Young Women's Christian association convention in Los Angeles, early in May, is expected to reach San Francisco on Monday, May 31, on the steamship Mongolia, on her return from a delightful two weeks' trip to the Hawaiian islands.

Prize Winners.

Gordon Fretwell, fifth grade, Ashby street school, and Bellma Roberts, third grade, Ashby street school, have been awarded the prizes offered by the Atlanta Burroughs Nature club to the boy and girl reporting greatest number of bird houses occupied this spring. There were thirty-four birds on each list, including bluebirds, thrushes, woodthrush, wrens, grass sparrows, crested flycatcher, mockingbird, woodpecker, robin, blackbird, chipping sparrows.

Dr. and Mrs. Guffin Entertain.

Dr. and Mrs. T. F. Guffin, of East Point, entertained a congenial party of friends at dinner Wednesday evening in honor of Dr. and Mrs. Alfred Kuppinger, who are leaving Tuesday for a visit in Philadelphia. Thursday evening Dr. and Mrs. Guffin entertained informally in compliment to Rev. and Mrs. R. A. Woodson and daughter, Miss Margaret Woodson, who are leaving for Waynesboro, N. C., where Mr. Woodson has accepted a call from the Presbyterian church at that place.

Distinguished Visitor.

Mrs. Daisy McLauren Stevens, president general of the United Daughters of the Confederacy, will arrive in the city this morning and will be the guest of Mrs. A. Mell Wilson until the afternoon when she leaves for Richmond, Va., to attend the confederate reunion.

Children's Party.

Miss Mamie L. Pitts entertained at an ice cream party Friday afternoon the children of the State street school who have been present every day during the scholastic year just closing. One hundred and twenty-five children had this perfect record.

Miss Pitts was assisted in entertaining by members of the faculty.

Beautiful Greek Play At Gov. and Mrs. Slaton's

In the Greek play to be presented Thursday night on the lawn at Governor and Mrs. John M. Slaton's home on Peachtree road, many elements will unite to make the occasion one of memorable interest.

Dramatically, it will be important, since the revival of Greek plays of various types is one of the most conspicuous symptoms in the progress of the drama of today.

From the standpoint of beauty, it will be similarly worth while, since the cast and chorus have been wonderfully well trained, and dancing of the interpretive and the classic type will abound.

And finally, it will be socially important in that the participants are well known, and the production is given under the auspices of Atlanta chapter, D. A. R., and for the benefit of that large organization.

Mrs. William Claer Spiker has the full direction of the production, and the participants are her pupils.

"The Gift," a Greek story of Pandora, by Margaret W. Rogers, is the play, and the principal dramatic role will be taken by Mrs. Hamilton Block.

Miss Helen Stewart, the beauty of whose interpretive dancing is well known, will be premiere danseuse.

School Picnic.

The recently graduated class and the ninth and eighth grades of the East Point public school enjoyed a delightful picnic at Stone Mountain Thursday. The chaperons were Professor M. F. Ramsey, Mrs. Bush and Mrs. Henry Beall.

Sewing Club Party.

Mrs. Vesta Garraux delightfully entertained the N. G. Sewing club at a rook party Friday afternoon, Mrs. Arthur Kent winning first prize and Mrs. Luther Everett consolation. An event of the afternoon was the surprise shower given to Mrs. Luther Everett, a member who leaves shortly for Birmingham, where she will reside in the future. Punch was served during the afternoon, also a delightful ice course.

Young People Discuss Voting.

The Georgia Young People's Suffrage association held an enthusiastic meeting Wednesday afternoon in the parlors of the Ansley hotel, Miss Ruth Bucholtz presiding.

Mr. Henry Grady Bell made a most interesting and instructive address on "The Progress and Meaning of the Suffrage Movement."

Miss Onida Cox, of College Park, gave a very able and convincing talk on "The Justice of the Ballot for Women."

Mr. Edwin Lee rendered a delightful suffrage solo, "When Our Mothers Rule the World."

Several plans were discussed as how to promote interest in the work for equal suffrage.

The meeting was largely attended and a number of new members were received.

Suffrage League.

The Atlanta Woman's Suffrage league held an interesting meeting Wednesday afternoon at the Carnegie library, Mrs. Eugene Mitchell, president, presiding.

Mrs. R. M. Walker told in an interesting manner the conditions of the schools in the city of Atlanta.

Miss Florence Smith gave a short talk.

Resolutions were passed to request the city council of Atlanta to secure a charter amendment giving women the right to serve on the city school, park, hospital, library and health boards, the resolutions introduced by Mrs. Elizabeth McCarthy. Mrs. A. G. Helmer was appointed chairman of the committee to visit the city council.

Weitzman-Sevelowitz.

The marriage of Miss Dora Weitzman and Mr. Augustus M. Sevelowitz will take place this evening, June 6, at the bride's residence.

Miss Ella Sevelowitz will be maid of honor.

Mr. Perry Sevelowitz, of Birmingham, will be best man.

Woman's Pioneer Society.

The Woman's Pioneer society will meet at 4 p. m. Wednesday, June 2, at Phillips & Crew Co., 82 North Pryor street. All members are requested to attend.

To Mr. and Mrs. Witham.

Mr. and Mrs. Clark Howell will entertain twelve guests at dinner tonight in compliment to Mr. and Mrs. Stuart Witham. The table decorations will reflect the hydrangea colors, and sweet peas and Dorothy Perkins roses will be combined in the artistic scheme. In the center of the table will be a basket in which the sweet peas in hydrangea tones will be clustered, and around the handle the vine with the blooming roses will cling. At each end of the table will be potted hydrangeas in their varied colors, and the accessory decorations will reflect the same.

Black-McDougald.

One of the most interesting weddings of June will be that of Miss Louise Black and Mr. John Fitten MacDougald, which will take place Wednesday evening, June 16, at 8:30 o'clock, at All Saints' Episcopal church.

A reception will follow at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. Nellie Peters Black, on Spring street.

Bishop C. K. Wilson will officiate, assisted by Rev. W. W. Memminger, and the attendants will be Miss Ralph Black, of Asheville, matron of honor, Mr. Daniel McDougald, best man, Mr. R. F. Hardeman, of Athens, Mr. Lamar Cobb Rucker, of Athens; Mr. Edward Inman, Mr. Turner Fitten, Mr. John S. Cohen, Mr. Preston S. Arkwright, Mr. Samuel T. Weyman and Mr. Seldon Jones, ushers.

Suffrage Calendar.

Civics committee meeting, Atlanta Equal Suffrage association, Tuesday afternoon, Ansley hotel.

Suffrage school, Atlanta Equal Suffrage association, Wednesday afternoon, Ansley hotel.

Executive committee meeting, Atlanta Equal Suffrage association, Friday afternoon, Ansley hotel.

The DeKalb County Equal Suffrage association held its May meeting in the courthouse at Decatur. The president, Mrs. Eugenia Fatill, of Kirkwood, had charge of the meeting and introduced as the speaker of the afternoon, Dr. Rebecca C. Brannon.

In her address, "Georgia at the Crossroads, Which Road Will You Take?" Dr. Brannon enthused her audience with a magnificent plea for equal suffrage for the women of Georgia.

A number of members from the Atlanta Equal Suffrage association were present, and short speeches were made by Mrs. M. L. McLendon, Mrs. S. Saul, Mrs. E. L. Brewer, Mrs. Amelia Woodall and others.

Mrs. A. J. Coakley, of Decatur, was appointed chairman of a committee to distribute leaflets, fliers and other literature in different parts of DeKalb county. A vote of thanks was given officials of DeKalb county for courtesies extended the association.

Mrs. Amelia R. Woodall, president of the Atlanta Equal Suffrage association, announces that an exceptionally good program has been arranged for next week's session of the suffrage school, which will be held on Wednesday afternoon in the parlors of the Ansley hotel.

KATHERINE ROCH,

CHIEF BEAVERS MAKES SPEECH ON EFFICIENCY

Prevention of Crime Is Duty of Police Department, He Tells Chiefs.

Cincinnati, Ohio, May 29.—(Special.) Police Chief James L. Beavers, of the Atlanta police department, which is under investigation by a special probe committee of the police commissioners on charges of inefficiency, today addressed the International Association of Police Chiefs of the United States and Canada, in session here, on the subject of "The Efficiency of the Police Department."

Chief Beavers declared that the moral coward was tenfold worse fit as a police officer than the physical coward. "If an officer has not the moral backbone to put into effect his convictions he is a burden upon the community," said Chief Beavers.

The statement of the Atlanta police chief seemed to make a striking impression upon the assembled officers.

Beavers told the international chiefs that efficiency in a police department was the first requisite of success. He analyzed "police efficiency" as meaning that it was the duty of an officer to prevent crime.

"If a police department waits for a murder to be committed in some suspected gambling den, it is not efficient. The efficient department is the one that breaks up at once the suspected gambling den, thus preventing the murder."

Mr. Atlanta chief maintained that there were many opinions of what "efficiency in a police department" really meant.

Cured of Pellagra; Mother Seeks Children

Valdosta, Ga.—W. F. Monroe writes: "Mrs. Braswell, whom you have been treating for pellagra, is in my opinion, sound and well. She wants to get her children from the home, and in order to get them she is required to send a certificate from you who treated her. I am enclosing you a form to go by and will thank you to sign it, making it as strong as you can.

"There is no longer any doubt that pellagra can be cured. Don't delay until it is too late. It is your duty to consult the resourceful Baughn."

The symptoms—hands red like sunburn, skin peeling off sore mouth, the lips, throat and tongue a flaming red, with much mucus and choking; indigestion and nausea, either diarrhoea or constipation.

There is hope; get Baughn's big Free book on Pellagra and learn about the remedy for Pellagra that has at last been found. Address American Compounding Co., box 2093, Jasper, Ala. remembering money is refunded in any case where the remedy fails to cure.—(adv.)

MR. WILSON, AFTER A FOUR WEEKS' VISIT

I could not feel satisfied to leave this institution without expressing my gratitude for the service rendered me and the kindness shown me since I have been here. Never in my life have I met and mingled with just such a class of men as I have met in the James Sanatorium, from the president to the janitor, servant. They are there all given everything necessary to our comfort. It seems to me that it would be a hard-hearted man who could leave without expressing some gratitude and good wishes for this institution. I want to say in memory of Mr. Chas. B. James, the founder of this institution, that he has fought a good fight. He was a grand character and a man who has done more for his fellow men is not living. We cannot realize how many homes have been made happy and characters elevated and citizenship put on a higher plane by the fine work he started. It is a work that could not be surpassed and his name will go down as a man who has given his life for this work and a man who has raised men and women to higher planes, that the community in which they live may be better. I have seen patients come here in all kinds of conditions—wild from drink and drugs—you might say they were almost insane. I have seen how they have progressed under treatment, how they came to themselves, how they have been cured and gone away. Everyone who has come and gone, since I have been here as a visitor, has gone away in splendid condition, making one hundred per cent of recoveries, whereas, I think, the state requires ninety per cent. I am not here as a patient, but as a companion to a friend. I have closely observed all the patients, and it is almost a miracle what has been done for them while I have been here. Last night I tried to collect my thoughts for this talk and to set them down. After thinking a few minutes, the word "Service" came to me. As I thought of this word I decided that it absolutely covered the ground. When I arrived here with my friend he was in bad condition. I might say now that he is absolutely normal. I hope you patients will go home and serve God and be better men, make your families happy and your communities better because you have started a new life. I am not a public speaker, and it is hard for me to get up and make a talk, but I want to say that I have met men in every walk of life, and I have never met a class of men anywhere with whom I have enjoyed myself more than I have with you. When I came here I was told that this was one big family. I had expected to find men who were grum, selfish and men who wanted to be by themselves, but I was mistaken—every man has met us with a smile. I am proud that I came, for it has been an education to me. I do not know how long you have been suffering, nor how long you have used whisky or drugs, but I know most of you were in wretched condition, but now I am looking into the faces of healthy men. The doctors, matrons and nurses have all done their duty in every way. There is one class that belongs to this institution that I almost forgot to mention—the servants. They are always willing to serve and everything is kept nice and clean, especially in the dining room. I thank you gentlemen for your attention during my talk.

MAYOR IS OPPOSED TO FINANCE SHEET

Wants Material Cut in Appropriations Before He Agrees to Sign—Farlinger Asks Reduction.

Declaring that he was alarmed at what he called the "reckless manner" in which the council finance committee is attempting to "spend money that the city hasn't got," Mayor James G. Woodward has sent a letter to each city department head asking for an accurate statement of their finances and their most conservative estimate of income for 1915.

"I can't understand what the finance committee is about," said the mayor, "for I am going to find out just how we are on revenue for 1915 before I approve of any June money sheet."

The mayor declared it was out of reason to anticipate such an increase over 1914, when there was no depression felt from the war until the latter months of the year, and he contended for some time that the income for 1915 would not exceed that of 1914 and that appropriations should be made accordingly. He said he would cling to this opinion.

$100,000 for Schools.

Chairman A. W. Farlinger, of the finance committee, shares with the mayor the opinion that the sheet carries at least $200,000 more than the city's finances will allow, and he has announced that he will bring in a minority report to general council when the sheet is submitted. He will urge at least $100,000 for school improvements and a retrenchment in ward improvements.

"The law forbids any department head spending money the city has not earned and it also forbids my signing vouchers for money we have not got in the treasury," said the mayor.

Several friends of the mayor in general council have sought to have him approve the June sheet and take the risk of finally adjusting it by October. They claim that many of the enterprises provided for in the tentative sheet will not be started this year, thereby giving general council an opportunity to begin them next year and use next year's income to put them through.

Councilman Claude Ashley, of the fourth ward, has notified members of the finance committee that he will be willing for his streets ordinary fund to go into the general fund if it will be given to the school fund. Councilman Farlinger, also from the fourth, says he will agree to that proposition.

Rushed Street Improvements.

Several of the ward representatives rushed street improvements in their wards during the first few months of the year, with the result that they have nothing left in their streets ordinary fund with which to supplement the school fund. They claim they are spending it before the June sheet is made up they stand a chance to get additional funds for ward improvements.

The mayor says that the sheet carrying disbursements aggregating $5,124,009 must be amended so as to cut off at least $200,000, and the majority of the ward representatives declare they will not permit any cuts in their ward appropriations, which is taken to mean that general council faces a difficult task in passing the June sheet without a lively contest.

MADISON HIGH BEGINS CLOSING EXERCISES

Madison, Ga., May 29.—(Special.) Madison High school began the closing exercises of its sprin term on Friday night. The boys of the literary societies contested for prizes in declamation.

Jimmy Teressi won the first prize, Alvin Turnell the second, charles M. Furlow, Jr., the third. In the girls' prize and declamation contest the first elocution class Miss Vesta Turnell won the first prize. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. T. Turnell, of this city. Miss Emily George, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Milton George, won the second prize and Miss Elizabeth Ashford, daughter of Mrs. Sue Ashford, won third prize.

Rev. Dr. John D. Mell, of Athens, preaches the commencement sermon Sunday morning at the school auditorium. On Monday night Judge H. W. Bolding, chairman of the city board of education, will deliver the diplomas to the graduating class. This will be followed by the tragedy of "Macbeth," played by the graduating class. The relay races and other athletic feats by the A. and M. school and the boys of the high school will take place on the public square. On Tuesday night the music class will give a musical recital. The exercises promise to be good this season.

YOUNG HARTWELL BOY MAKES DARING RESCUE

Hartwell, Ga., May 29.—(Special.)—Isham Hailey, age 15 years, son of Dr. W. I. Hailey, saved the life of Neal Craft, aged 9 years, the son of T. G. Craft, leading merchant of Hartwell, while on a picnic at Brown's ferry Friday. The Sunday school of the Hartwell Baptist church were on the picnic. A party of the picnickers had crossed the river to the South Carolina side and was getting ready to return to the Georgia side when young Craft fell out of the ferry boat into the boat sluice which was about fifteen feet deep and very swift and was floating down the river when seen by young Hailey. The latter ran into the boat, jumped out and swam after the Craft boy, overtaking him about thirty feet from the boat, just as he was going down. Hailey then swam down the river 150 feet holding the boy with one hand when J. W. Temples came to his rescue.

J. H. Skelton threw a large boat pole to them which assisted them in reaching the bank. This was a most daring rescue and had it not been for young Hailey, Craft would undoubtedly have been drowned.

ROME RAISES FUND FOR DIXIE HIGHWAY

Rome, Ga., May 29.—(Special.)—One hundred and fifty citizens of Rome have contributed $10 each to a Dixie highway fund for the Rome Chamber of Commerce. The money will be used in perfecting a permanent organization of the counties along the Rome route between Chattanooga and Cartersville, and in giving publicity to the advantages of the Rome route.

The board of commissioners of Bartow county made official inspection of the road between Cartersville and Rome by automobile. Both branches of the Dixie highway will pass through Bartow county, and the board of commissioners is making a study of the situation in order to decide which route should be built first.

BURGLARS MAKE HAUL OF MONEY AND BOOZE

Calhoun, Ga., May 29.—(Special.)—Burglars last night broke in the office of the Southern railroad depot at Plainville, in this county, and stole all the cash in the cash drawer and a small amount of whisky. The postoffice was also broken open, and a small amount of cash and a large supply of stamps taken. The burglars were tracked as far as the Oostanaula river and certain clues were left which, it is thought, may lead to the apprehension of the parties committing the burglaries.

Kern for Extra Session.

Washington, May 29.—Senator Kern, the democratic floor leader, a white house caller today, said he believed congress should meet in extra session in October so the senate may revise its rules and make an early start on the legislative program.

MY TIRED FEET ACHED FOR "TIZ"

Just take your shoes off and then put those weary, shoe-crinkled, aching, burning, corn-pestered, bunion-tortured feet of yours in a "TIZ" bath. Your toes will wriggle with joy; they'll look up at you and almost talk and then they'll take another dive in that "TIZ" bath.

When your feet feel like lumps of lead—all tired out—just try "TIZ." It's grand—it's glorious. Your feet will dance with joy; also you will find all pain gone from corns, callouses and bunions.

There's nothing like "TIZ." It's the only remedy that draws out all the poisonous exudations which puff up your feet and cause foot torture.

Get a 25 cent box of "TIZ" at any drug or department store—don't wait. Ah! how glad your feet get; how comfortable your shoes feel. You can wear shoes a size smaller if you desire.

T. M. BOAZ IS HONORED.

Calhoun Thanks Him for Dixie Highway Work.

Calhoun, Ga., May 29.—(Special.)—The Calhoun Chamber of Commerce Thursday evening, in recognition of the service rendered by T. M. Boaz, of this place, in securing the Dixie highway for Calhoun, gave a public entertainment in his honor, at which time an elaborate program was carried out. Boosters of the Dixie highway from Ringgold, Dalton, Resaca and Adairsville were invited and each of these towns was represented by a large delegation, besides something like 1,500 people from all over Gordon county.

Much enthusiasm in good roads was manifested and a number of rousing speeches were made, among the speakers being A. B. Tyler, F. T. Harawick and George T. Miller, of Dalton; L. R. Wiggins, of Ringgold, and H. M. Veach and J. D. Cranford, of Adairsville. Miss Lulle R. Pitts, president of the Calhoun Woman's club, was chosen to present Mr. Boaz with a handsome gold watch, a gift from the people of Calhoun.

A committee of 3 was appointed from each of the counties through which the highway will run from Chattanooga to Cartersville and a president and secretary appointed for each county. T. M. Boaz was elected president of the Gordon county committee and A. R. McDaniel, secretary. Hall county has also appointed president of the committees as a whole with A. R. McDaniel general secretary.

Gordon Graduates Largest Class in the Institution's History

Barnesville, Ga., May 29.—(Special.) Gordon institute, at its sixty-third commencement just closed, graduated the largest class in its history, awarding forty-two diplomas to young men and young ladies from various sections of the state. It was also one of the brightest classes which has ever graduated here. The various exercises during the several days were largely attended, and were of a high order. Many visitors were present on the entire occasion was very successful.

Dr. Victor I. Masters, of Atlanta, preached the commencement sermon. Dr. L. E. Barton, of Atlanta, made the baccalaureate address, and Dr. H. E. Stockbridge, of Atlanta, made a splendid address in delivering the various medals and awards of the school.

The graduating exercises made a most impressive occasion. An immense audience assembled to witness the interesting exercises, at which the class exercises were as follows: Salutatory, Miss Faith Porch; prophecy, J. R. Strother; will, Miss Estelle Peacock; history, Miss Lillian Wooten; valedictory, Miss Louise Marshburn.

Miss Louise Marshburn, of Barnesville, was awarded first honor. Miss Faith Porch, of Barnesville, second honor, and Mrs. DeVaughn Polhill, of Hawkinsville, third honor. The medal given by Justice Joseph H. Lumpkin, of Atlanta, for the best sound student was won by Charley Gillian, of St. Marys, Ga., and the medal given by Senator Thomas W. Hardwick for the best orator in the junior class was won by Hoke Powell, of Monroe, Ga. President Edward T. Holmes is greatly pleased with the year's work and the prospect for the coming year.

BRIDGES SWEPT AWAY BY FLOODS IN FLOYD

Rome, Ga., May 28.—(Special.)—Floyd county was visited by severe electric storms yesterday, accompanied by heavy rainfall. A trestle near Lake creek, 13 miles from Rome, on the Central of Georgia railway, was washed away and traffic on the road was stopped. Many of the creeks and branches in the county were out of their banks, and a number of small bridges were swept away. There was also some slight damage to crops.

AS TURKISH ADMIRAL AMERICAN CITIZEN DIES

Constantinople, May 29.—(Via London.)—Buckman Pasha, an American citizen who formerly was rear admiral in the Turkish navy, died May 27 after an illness of several weeks.

Buckman Pasha, or Ransford D. Bucknam, brought the Turkish armored cruiser Medjidieh from Philadelphia, where it was built several years ago. On arriving here he was asked by Abdul Hamid to enter the Ottoman naval service. He became naval adviser to the sultan and in that capacity he was charged with several important missions.

Anti-Tuberculosis Association's New Quarters to Be Inspected

Announcement is made today of the formal opening of the Atlanta Anti-Tuberculosis and Visiting Nurse association's new quarters this week at 23 East Cain street, beginning Tuesday, June 1, and continuing throughout the week, the association will hold open house, and extends a cordial invitation to all Atlantans to visit its new home and become more familiar with the work of the organization.

For a long time the association has been struggling to maintain its work under great difficulties. The old offices had become inadequate for the proper advancement of the work, there being no room for equipment and conveniences so badly needed. Realizing this, the officers and directors of the association redoubled their efforts in the determination to secure better quarters. As a result, they have recently moved into a large building on East Cain street particularly suited to work of this nature, with plenty of room for the various clinics, wards, reception room, offices, and, in fact, all department necessary.

A short time ago a special appeal was sent out to Atlantans for furnishings and equipment for the new house. A liberal response was made, and many articles were received which added much to the attractiveness of the new building, as well as to the conveniences necessary for the advancement of the work. Among those who made valuable donations were M. Rich & Bros., Keely company, Davison-Paxon-Stokes, Chamberlin-Johnson-DuBose company, J. M. High company, W. E. Brown, decorator, Perryman-Burson company and many others. However, there are yet needed many articles to completely fit up the institution as it should be.

Invitation Extended.

The association has extended a special invitation to the following religious, charitable and civic organizations which are expected to visit the home on the specific days named:

Tuesday, June 1—Woman's auxiliary Typographical union, Labor union, Rotary club, Ad Men's club.

Wednesday, June 2—Directors of Anti-Tuberculosis and Visiting Nurses' association, relief committee, educational committee, medical staff, Jewish Alliance, Council of Jewish Women, Sheltering Arms, Methodist Home Mission board, Baptist association.

Thursday, June 3—Industrial department Woman's club, directors Associated Charities, Raoul Foundation Woman's Suffrage association, lecturers from Social Service Training school, board of education.

City and State Officials.

Friday, June 4—Mayor and city council, undertakers, board of health, Fulton County Medical society, chamber of commerce, Atlanta Dental society, Governor and Mrs. Slaton are also invited for Friday.

Saturday, June 5.—Negro Anti-Tuberculosis association.

The importance of the work done by this organization in fighting and stamping out tuberculosis in the city, as well as educating the people how to meet and cope with the disease, is not realized or understood as it should be, and it is the earnest desire of the association that every Atlantans avail himself of the opportunity to visit its new quarters during the week and learn more about this worthy undertaking.

Appetite Follows Good Digestion

Nearly everyone indulges their appetite and the digestive organs are abused, resulting in a congestion of poisonous waste that clogs the bowels and causes much misery and distress.

The most effective remedy to correct this condition is the combination of simple laxative herbs with pepsin, known as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. This is a natural, pleasant-tasting remedy, gentle yet positive in action, and quickly relieves indigestion, constipation, sick headache, belching, etc. Drug stores sell Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin at fifty cents and one dollar a bottle, and in thousands of homes it is the indispensable family remedy. For a free trial bottle write Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 452 Washington St., Monticello, Ills.

Crackers Make It Three Out of Four Games

SOUTHPAW ALLEN USES THE BRUSH

Holds Lookouts to Three Hits—Final Score 2 to 0. Bisland and Smith the Stars.

Chattanooga, Tenn., May 29.—(Special.)—Chattanooga's defense crumbled in the seventh inning today and presented Atlanta two runs which were enough to win, as Allen held the home team to three scattered hits and breezed easily through nine innings without a run against him.

The game was a brilliant pitching duel between Allen and Cunningham, in which both infields joined. Previous to the blowup Allen had a slight edge, being somewhat steadier than the Chattanoogan, but neither should have been scored on during the matinee.

Sid Smith's hitting featured the Atlanta offense, the pudgy catcher getting three hits and really winning the game with a hefty wallop to left in the seventh, a blow that had practically led to both Atlanta runs.

On defense, Bisland and Caveny had a battle at short, both covering acres of territory and making several thrilling stops. Bisland stole a hit from McCormick in the second and Caveny knocked down a low liner from Eibel, directly over the bag, for a force-out in the ninth.

Manning's Great Stops.

Manning saved Allen on the only occasion when the home team really threatened a run, pulling down a drive from Graff's bat over the bag in the fifth with Cunningham on second and one out. The shot looked like a sure two-base hit.

Allen's pitching shone throughout the nine innings. Caveny and Peters led the third with hits, but Allen fanned the next two and took care of the third with ease. In the fourth, he hit Elberfeld, but Harris hit to Williams for an easy double play. In the sixth he passed Cunningham and Johnston sacrificed, but Manning's stop averted a run. The only other Lookout to reach first was Kid Elberfeld, who walked with two out in the ninth.

The Crackers were on bases off Cunningham in nearly every inning, but two hit-and-run double plays spoiled their chances to score.

Lucky Seventh.

The "break" came in the seventh. Rumler poked an easy grounder to Elberfeld and the Kid fooled. Manning struck out, but Smith poled a hefty single to left. Johnston booted the safety. Rumler dashed for third and kept on with a daring try for home. The relay from Graff reached the plate in plenty of time, but Rumler's huge body shot into Peters with such momentum that the local catcher dropped the ball. A moment later, Allen's clever clout to center forced Smith with the second run, which as later developments proved, was unnecessary.

Mack Sells Pennock.

Philadelphia, May 29.—Connie Mack announced tonight he had sold Pitcher Pennock to the Boston Americans. He will join the Red Sox at once.

JUST THINK, WE NEARLY LET HIM GO!

Ladies and Gentlemen, meet Mr. William Lee, late of St. Louis and other points, but at present cavorting in the left field meadow for Bill Smith's Cracker clan and performing with considerable eclat. And to think that we came near letting this fellow slip through our fingers. Why? Because he couldn't hit. All of which proved to be a mere fabrication. As soon as Mr. Lee dusted his batting orbs, he started to show 'em all something, and for some dozen games he smacked safely twenty-one resounding whacks in forty-two tries, which is considerable hitting as hitting goes these days. We venture to remark that, if there was a popularity contest staged for the most popular man on the Cracker team at the present moment, little Willie would win hands down. With a little more experience, this fellow is going to make one of the greatest ball players ever. He's fast, can throw, can field and can hit; and Roy Moran, Hack Eibel and other players adept in the hook slide are teaching him this splendid asset. When he learns it, watch out base-running records. And his specialty is straightening out curve balls for ringing bingles.

Several Surprises Sprung In American League Race

By TY COBB.
(World's Champion All-round Ball Player.)

This season is still young, but not too young to have developed a number of surprises. Not the least of these—to me anyhow—was the dismissal of Joe Birmingham from the management of the Cleveland club. I do not pretend to know any of the inside workings which led Charles Somers to such action, but it strikes me that last winter would have been a more fitting time for a change.

We have had examples enough of the disadvantages of managerial changes during the playing season. These cannot be effected without destroying team morale to a marked degree. While the Cleveland club's game this year under Birmingham did not promise to win it much place in the standing, it will be much above its performance of last season. Even at this writing the Forest City aggregation is much closer to the leaders than many pennant winners have been so early in the race. New theories and new doctrines which are bound to come with new management are unlikely to combine toward immediate improvement. The spring training camp is the fitting place to launch a new management.

Birmingham's dismissal emphasizes for me the fact that the baseball situation in Cleveland is a most peculiar one. The team has seldom figured seriously in the pennant fight, in spite of the fact that many times it has had the greatest paper strength of any club in the American league. It is in exactly the same boat as Cincinnati, of the National league.

Cleveland a Hoodoo Town.

In fact, Cleveland has come to be regarded by the profession as a hoodoo town. It is a city of which the ball player wishes to steer clear. There is no doubt in my mind that the psychological effect of this has been noticeable in the bearing of the Cleveland players themselves. I remember that several seasons ago when Cleveland kept well up in the race almost to the end, the winning confidence that means so much to a club was lacking among the players. I said to Larry Lajoie at the time that I thought his club had a mighty good chance to coo a pennant, at last.

"Maybe so," said Larry, "but I don't think so. Too many hoodoos are working against us. Someone is always being injured or taken sick when he is most needed. There seems to be a curse of some kind on the club."

Cleveland split wide open shortly after that. It is quite true that injuries had something to do with it, but it is also true that such sentiment, prevalent throughout the ranks, was not of the kind to stand off any spirited challenge.

The change of ownership in the Yankees alone has been a great tonic for Bill Donovan's club. There was a club in which the idea was set that some hoodoo, spell or curse was militating against success. A veteran who is still with the club told me in all seriousness once that an old woman on her deathbed had cursed the owners. This player is not particularly superstitious, but he accepted the tale as a matter of established fact. I questioned around among his companions enough to find out that practically every player on the club held a like opinion. They thought their team was hoodooed, and, thinking so, it naturally was. I talked to this veteran player a short time ago. Now he is all enthusiasm, and it has shown in his work, for he has been a great factor in keeping the club so prominently in the fight.

Rowland a Genius.

Moral assurance is one of the greatest assets any club can boast. Take Clarence Rowland, the new manager of the White Sox. His players are telling him all seriousness that Clarence is possessed of an hypnotic influence and that in the crisis he can make his men rise to superhuman effort. Jimmy Fournier, the slugging outfielder of the White Sox, these players declare, was converted by Rowland into such by mental suggestion alone. Fournier himself believes it, or at least pretends to do so, and his chances of surviving when the veteran twirlers get their hooks breaking properly are much better than they would be if Fournier were obsessed with the idea that some supernatural power was working to his disadvantage.

I was surprised last winter to hear from the lips of one of the star players of Brooklyn an expression of the conviction that the Dodgers were hoodooed.

"How, otherwise," he asked me, "has our club shown to such poor advantage for years? We have the hardest batting club in the National league, and while our pitching staff was comparatively weak, the team's offensive power should have carried us through to a much higher position."

I tried to assure him from the rumors I heard that perhaps the hoodoo lay in the fact that Brooklyn threw away more opportunities for runs per game than any other club in both leagues. But even this he attributed to the supposed jinx rather than to mechanical faults or errors of judgment. I am convinced that Brooklyn would have done much better last season if such foolish notions had not been prevalent, and I hope Wilbert Robinson has been able to dispel them for his club, with the right spirit working, should do better than it has in the past.

The pennant races in both leagues this year promise to be far more for the good of any team that entertains superstitions. Both seem to be wide open affairs in which hustling, faith and conscientious effort are bound to count heavily. Even the poor old Browns, that we of the middle west had regarded as more or less of a joke, suddenly came to life and put the skids under the sensational Yankees. St. Louis utterly ruined what promised to be a triumphal tour for Donovan.

Red Sox a Problem.

I must confess that the Boston Red Sox have failed to fulfill the fine promise they showed in Detroit. They gave us the time of our lives and seemed to have attained their proper stride at last. I should not be surprised if everything is not running smoothly in the ranks for Bill Carrigan. The recent suspension of Dutch Leonard would indicate that something is amiss.

Carrigan was very hopeful that the team had straightened out for a spurt when I last saw him.

"My men are just beginning to find themselves," he told me. "Tris is in good condition now, and is beginning to hit up to form. My pitchers, who were very bad at the opening of the season, have improved wonderfully. Joe Wood and Vean Gregg need only a little smack of summer. When they are ready the drive will start in earnest."

Something seems to have gone amiss with these calculations. Perhaps the very bad weather that the Sox have encountered on their journey has had something to do with it. Naturally, lacing might be expected to handicap a club that was just rounding to the proper edge more seriously than it would one properly conditioned. Anyway, I still believe Boston is going to give the Tigers every bit as much trouble as will the White Sox. The strength is there, all right, if Carrigan can steer clear of inside politics or dissension.

New York's recent slump should not be taken too seriously, as the team has a wonderful defense, a fair wallop and unlimited speed. The Yankees have looked at little except southpaw pitching in the west and the team's best hitters are left-handers. While the club was on its own grounds it seemed to be able to treat portsiders rather ruthlessly. In fact, a number of these well-known artists of rival clubs were knocked out of the box.

Yanks Need Southpaw.

That the club's hitting left-handed pitching so well now is easily explained. Cottrell is Donovan's only southpaw. He was of great service to the club pitching to the batters in practice. But on the road Donovan does not have the opportunity to employ this stout fellow in his particular specialty, and Donovan's left-handed hitters simply have begun to show in their batting the lack of practice. The remedy lies in home opportunities. If Bill Donovan could secure a good southpaw, one who would take his regular turn, he would add 25 per cent to the effectiveness of his fine staff of right-handers.

The White Sox have been steaming along at a great rate. Eddie Collins, I think, has been a great actor toward this end as Manager Rowland or any other two Chicago players. A second baseman of Collins' caliber comes once in a lifetime, and one of his gangs comes pretty near making an infield every time. And Collins has some pretty capable assistants on the inner line. So long as Chicago's pitchers maintain their present effectiveness the white-hosed clan will continue dangerous to everyone.

It is really sad to see the wreck of the once great Athletics. Connie Mack must reconstruct his entire team. There is little hope for decided improvement in the fragments of the former pennant trust.

CRACKERS TACKLE NASHVILLE VOLS

Open Four-Game Series at Sulphur Dell This Afternoon--Double Bill on Monday.

FREE DETAIL TODAY ON VIADUCT PLACE

The game today between the Vols and the Crackers, at Nashville, will be called in detail at Dick Jemison's matinee parties on the Viaduct. No admission will be charged, but there will be a contribution box at the door, where any fan that cares to help pay the expenses can donate whatever he likes.

The Crackers move on to Nashville today, opening up a four-game series with the Vols at Sulphur Dell.

Two games are scheduled for Monday afternoon, and a single game on Tuesday, after which the Crackers will have an off day on Wednesday.

Thursday the locals open a four-game series in Little Rock, playing a single game on Friday, with a double-header scheduled for Saturday.

Sunday will be an off day, the Crackers opening a four-game stay at Memphis on Monday, closing the road trip with four games in New Orleans, returning to Atlanta June 13, to open with the Mobile Gulls.

Cornell Track Team Wins Intercollegiate Meeting

Philadelphia, May 29.—The Cornell intercollegiate track and field team won the fortieth annual games of the Intercollegiate Association of Amateur Athletes of America here today, scoring 45½ out of a possible 105 points.

Harvard was second with 25 points, one more than the total scored by Yale athletes, with Pennsylvania and Princeton tied for fourth place with 22 points. Dartmouth and Michigan divided fifth place honors with 14 points; Columbia was sixth with 10; Maine 9; Pennsylvania State 6; Johns Hopkins 1½, and Massachusetts Tech and Bowdoin 1 each.

Wesley M. Ofer, of Yale, cleared 6 feet 4⅛ inches in the running high jump, his feat displacing the association record of 6 feet 3¾ inches made by T. Moffit, of Pennsylvania, eight years ago, and the collegiate record of 6 feet 4 inches made by W. B. Page, of Pennsylvania, in 1886.

H. P. Bailey, of the University of Maine, sent the 16-pound hammer 165 feet 5 inch in his preliminary trial yesterday, winning first place without further ado and adding 2¾ inches to the figure established by John R. DeWitt, of Princeton, in 1902. Ted Meredith, of Pennsylvania, equalled the association record of 48 seconds in winning the 440-yard run. Having won permanent possession of the Intercollegiate trophy now, last year, the Cornell athletes gained the initial leg on the new cup by scoring points in ten of the thirteen events on the program.

Throughout the Ithaca squad scored close to 25 per cent of the total number of points, the Red and White flashed across the finish line a first-place winner in one one event. It was in second, third, fourth and even fifth place in the various cinder and turf competitions that Cornell rolled up the winning points.

That applied also to Harvard, which won seven place with five seconds, one third, one fourth and one fifth. Oler's victory in the high jump was Yale's only first, whereas Pennsylvania gained 15 of her 21 points by three firsts. Princeton picked up 10 points with two firsts.

Individual honors were divided, between Meredith, of Pennsylvania, and H. L. Smith, of Michigan, each of whom won two championship firsts. Smith won in both the 100 and 220, while Meredith outran big fields in both the quarter and half-mile races. The individual championships were fairly well distributed.

Dick Robertson Leads Southern League Hurlers

By Dick Jemison.

Herbert Kelly, the Crackers' new southpaw, has won his three starts and is leading the Southern league twirlers, but Dick Robertson, the little Birmingham twirler, is the real leader, with nine wins in ten starts. Frost, of New Orleans, is next in line with four wins in five starts.

Berger, of Nashville, has allowed the most hits, an even century. Gudger, of New Orleans, with 82, is next. Berger has also permitted the most runs to be scored against him, with 53, with East, of Little Rock, second, with 45.

Here are the pitchers' records through last Wednesday, May 26:

ALEXA STIRLING WINS SOUTHERN GOLFING TITLE

Defeated Mrs. T. B. Paine, Also of Atlanta, 9 Up and 7 to Play in Finals at Birmingham Saturday.

ATLANTA GOLFERS WON FOUR BIGGEST PRIZES

Miss Stirling Won Qualifying Round, and, With Mrs. Paine and Miss O'Brien, Captured Team Prize.

Birmingham, Ala., May 29.—(Special.) Miss Alexa Stirling, a 17-year-old Atlanta girl, tonight is the premier golf player of the south.

Miss Stirling captured the honor here this afternoon when she defeated Mrs. T. B. Paine, a neighbor of hers in Atlanta, 9 up and 7 to play, in the championship finals of the Women's Southern Golf Association tournament, which has been in progress here this week.

The victory won by the youthful champion was as brilliant as it was distinct. From the first hole, which she captured 4 to 5, the result was never in doubt. Mrs. Paine fought hard, but the brilliant Atlanta youngster was her master.

Miss Stirling driving, approaching and putting, time after time elicited tremendous applause from the large gallery that followed the play.

Miss Stirling won the first eight holes, but the ninth she lost, winning the tenth and eleventh, won the championship of the south. She received congratulations from all sides.

Match by Holes.

The score by holes was as follows:

Miss Stirling—Out	4	4	5	3	6	5	3	4	5—39
In	5	4	6	4	5	3	4	4	4—39
Mrs. Paine—Out	5	5	6	4	5	4	4	5	5—43
In	5	4	6	5	5	4	4	4	4—41

Her thirty-nine for the first nine holes, six under fives, is remarkable golf, and there are many men players in Birmingham who are unable to make such a score over the difficult country club course.

In addition to winning the championship, Miss Stirling won the qualifying scratch trophy by turning in an 88 in the qualifying round.

The story of the championship finals in detail follow:

First Hole—Miss Stirling drove her ball near the edge of the left bunker, and Mrs. Paine near the edge of the rough to the left. In the approach both ladies overshot the green, for their balls rolled across the green into the rough on the right. From unfavorable positions, however, both got upon the green, the ball of Miss Stirling lying only a few feet from the cup. On the fourth stroke, she occupied the hole, winning 4-5.

Miss Stirling Putts Well.

Second Hole—Miss Stirling drove magnificently and landed just beneath the green. Mrs. Paine's ball, some 30 yards below the green, rolled down hill onto the edge of the water. From that place, however, she cleverly drove her ball into the clear. Miss Stirling, in two strokes, was on the green. Mrs. Paine, in three, making a perfect putt. Miss Stirling captured the hole, 4-5.

Third Hole—Miss Stirling drove nobly, her ball landing just below the green, which she negotiated with her second stroke. Mrs. Paine's ball was driven 25 yards lower down from the green than Miss Stirling's, but she occupied the green, as did Miss Stirling, on her second stroke. Mrs. Paine's attempt to putt was a disappointment, however, and Miss Stirling won the hole by a perfect putt, the count being 4-5.

Fourth Hole—Here Miss Stirling did her most perfect drive of the ball, halted by a stiff wind, landed full upon the green, and in two putts she occupied the hole. Mrs. Paine's drive was to the rear of a bunker, but by a clever shot she occupied the green. She took the hole in a four, Miss Stirling winning, however, 3-4.

Fifth Hole—The green was occupied by Miss Stirling with a strong drive and one more stroke. Mrs. Paine was on the green in three, but her fourth putt carried beyond the cup. This hole Miss Stirling won, 4-5.

Sixth Hole—Both players got off with splendid drives on "long reach." Miss Stirling, however, was in trouble, however, was on the green in four and in the deep rough. Mrs. Paine was also at this hole was wild, and she missed the hole in seven strokes, taking the hole in eight, score 6-8.

Seventh Hole—Miss Stirling topped her ball, but reached the green at first time Mrs. Paine had the advantage in the hole play, however, Miss Stirling rallied magnificently, and Mrs. Paine early got into trouble, twice attempting the green, driving into the water. With a beautiful niblet shot Miss Stirling took the green in five and won in six, score 6-8.

Eighth Hole—At this hole Miss Stirling showed splendid execution. A splendid drive put her ball just off the green. Mrs. Paine's drive took her into the green and won the hole in three.

Ninth Hole—Miss Stirling drove to the left for a bunker, while Mrs. Paine's ball carried to the green. In attempting to overcome the handicap at this hole, Miss Stirling tried for a long putt and missed, rolling beyond the cup. Mrs. Paine occupied the hole in three, while Miss Stirling lost her first hole in a five. Score 2-3.

Tenth Hole—Mrs. Paine drove just into "ground in repair" to the left and was permitted to fetch out and drop. They were both on the green in four, but Mrs. Paine missed two comparatively easy putts, and Miss Stirling won handily, 6-7.

Eleventh Hole—Here Miss Stirling again displayed brilliance in approaching. While Mrs. Paine made a magnificent drive straight for the green, the ball of Miss Stirling shot to the left into the woods from that unfavorable point, however, she drove her ball through the underbrush, and neither had advantage following the second stroke. On the third stroke, Miss Stirling was three inches to the cup, while Mrs. Paine drove beyond the cup and her ball, rolling down the hill, landed in the rough. It required two strokes for Mrs. Paine to get her ball into the green, and another to carry the green. Miss Stirling won the hole, 4-5.

Atlanta Gets Big Prizes.

The four biggest prizes of the tournament go to Atlanta. Miss Stirling won the championship and the qualifying round, while Mrs. Paine was the

OUR COUNTRY BY OUR PRESIDENT

Begins Next Sunday In The Constitution

NOW, of all times, you should know the history of your country. When all of the great European powers are at each other's throats; when there's ever the chance that we may be drawn into the greatest struggle in the world's history---you should know your country's history, what the events were that led up to our previous wars, and how, with honor, we averted other encounters.

You will want to know what the precedents are that England cites as justification for seizing our ships; what our relations have been with France and Germany in the past.

You will want to read not a history, but THE HISTORY of the United States---the history of our country by Woodrow Wilson, our President.

PRESIDENT WILSON

Beginning next Sunday, The Constitution will publish this remarkable story of America. It is written in the clear, easy-to-read fashion of the President's best writings, and his facts are authentic, his conclusions sound.

It is the opportunity of a lifetime to know your country. A page every Sunday. You should not miss an installment. Get The Constitution every Sunday. If you are not already a subscriber, telephone the Circulation Department and put in a Six Months or a Year's subscription. Start at the first.

COUNCIL 505, U. C. T., PICNICS ON SATURDAY

Jester's old mill, 17 miles from Atlanta on the Central of Georgia railroad, will be the gathering place next Saturday, June 5, of Fulton Council, 505, U. C. T., where its annual picnic will be held.

The entertainment committee, after considering the various places suitable for a picnic, decided upon Jester's mill. A special train leaves the Terminal station promptly at 9 o'clock, returning at 6 p. m., giving all a delightful day's outing and reaching home before night.

Practically the entire membership of Fulton council, their families and invited guests will enjoy this annual attraction.

The committee is awarding a suitable prize to the U. C. T. member who brings the largest family.

BEST MAY IN FIVE YEARS FOR RAGAN-MALONE CO.

Things seem to be getting back to where they ought to be, said Walter Harrwell, manager of the notion department of the Ragan-Malone company, Saturday. "It begins to look like old times to see the orders coming in by mail and to handle those brought in by the salesmen. To substantiate this it is only necessary to say that our business for May this year was ahead of any May for the past five years. In the face of certain conditions we think this somewhat remarkable, but it is a fact nevertheless. Virtually we have been under dull and general than for a long time, and while there is not, perhaps, any large order as yet to be gotten in times past, yet the smaller orders are coming in with a steady flow, and, after all, a volume has to do one any May in five years.

"And it just seems as if everybody is going to wear Palm Beach suits the coming season. We have never had such a demand for them. One day last week we had forty-four different orders to fill for them, which gives you some idea of how we are shipping them out."

The Medlure company report the sale of splendid business during the past week, with another good opening order to fill on Monday.

U. C. T.'S SING PRAISE TO GAINESVILLE FOLK

Travelers Were Royally Entertained and a Great Meeting Held.

Editor of Firing Line: The boys composing the grand council met March 20th and 21st of May have returned home and are out again on the firing line. Their service is unquestionably more profitable now than ever before. Gainesville's meeting of the order who was so fortunate to attend or to hear of the wonderful results attained could not but help being a better U. C. T., and that means a greater producer.

The entire membership at the meeting has been talking continuously on the benefits of the order's entertainment, which was absolutely a perfect success from every point of view.

Indeed it was high-class and dignified, such as the U. C. T. are worthy of and deserve, and every future entertainment should be fashioned along similar lines.

There was many things that were of great benefit to the members that I omitted to mention here. The grand council went on record for the raising of the annual assessment proposition.

Everybody is singing praises to J. M. Keely, who presided over the grand council and by his ability there was more business and legislation at this session than any time before and his able efforts will bear good fruits in the years to come. There cannot be too much praise of him.

Again the boys are predicting great and beneficial things from our popular and newly-elected grand counselor, Leon M. Stern.

Judging from his already big record in the order, he will, in the coming twelve months eclipse any previous grand council record.

The members are enthusiastic and expect much greater things for the order and the craft ushered forth with a leader like Leon Stern a happy realization of all expectations will be the result.

From every viewpoint the Gainesville meeting was an unqualified success. Sincerely,

W. G. MOORE,
Deputy Grand Counselor.

FIRING LINE NOTES

Rose-tipped cigarettes, the novel smokers made by the Thomelis Bros company, will soon be distributed all along the Pacific coast. One of the largest jobbers and manufacturers of New York, the S. A. Gunst company, have recently tried out an initial order of these cigarettes, and have liked them so well that they are arranging to handle them all along the coast.

For the first time in about two months, R. C. Jones, who travels southwest Georgia for the S. P. Richards company, was in the house last week for a few days, loaded up on his new line of fall samples and hit the road again Friday.

Arthur Whitmeyer, who has been in the house for some time at the Ragan-Malone company, left last week for his south Carolina territory.

S. G. Jones, who looks after northeast Georgia territory for the Ragan-Malone company, has just returned from a special trip to North Carolina, where he landed some fine business.

Sam Haines, of the Ragan-Malone company, had a fine road week last week.

J. G. Robertson, who makes Carrollton headquarters while looking after the interests of the Ragan-Malone company, blew into the house last week. He is spending Sunday at home, and will get back Monday and then leave with his new fall samples.

R. E. Thornton, who recently was sent on the Firing Line for the S. P. Richards company is giving a good account of himself in Mississippi. A number of nice orders from him last week showed that he had fallen into line and was going after the merchants in that state.

"All our men are out," said Sales Manager Kopplin, of the S. P. Richards company, "and evidently they are hustling, judging from the nice line of mail orders we are receiving from them. The orders include a general line of all our goods, and are an indication that the stocks of merchants generally are low. Only occasionally we have what might be termed a real large order, but all of them are of very good size, and we are getting a much larger number of them than usual."

Fred Thomas, secretary of Rice & Hutcheson, Atlanta, arrived home Saturday from a very successful trip through Alabama and part of Georgia. He had some especially nice business in Montgomery, Opelika and Columbus.

With each man bringing in a nice bunch of orders, the following Firing Liners returned to the Williams-Wyatt company's Saturday: J. P. Armstrong, F. W. Webb, R. H. McWhorter, J. S. Cheek and J. L. Yates.

W. M. Johnson, western Georgia man for Ragan-Malone company, is among the boys who has been sending in nice business the past week.

W. W. Scott, traveler in southeast Georgia for Ragan-Malone company, was in the house a few days last week, but left Friday with his new line of fall notions and cloaks.

An important change in the cigar business of Birmingham was noted last week, when W. G. Patterson, who has been the H. L. Lee agent in that territory for the C. H. S. cigar, consolidated with the R. D. Burnett Cigar company, one of the largest cigar jobbing houses concerns there. Mr. Patterson will take charge of the business of the consolidated company, which concern will be the distributor of the well-known C. H. S. Havana Perfecto. He was in Atlanta a few days ago, calling on E. H. Patterson, who has control of C. H. S. for the state of Alabama, and who is distantly related to the Alabama cigar man.

P. P. Lewis, of the McClure Tencent company, who has been on the sick list for two weeks or more, is once more feeling like a real live wire, and is off for several days, and his friends were somewhat alarmed, but he must needs go to "pull through," and though looking a little thin now, is rapidly regaining his strength.

P. W. Harris, South Carolina man for the A. M. Robinson company, spent a few days in the house last week. He returned to his territory Friday.

F. A. Garrison, representing the Skinner Macaroni company, of Omaha, Neb., will be in this territory next week, working in the trade with salesman Frank Cain & Stamps. Mr. Garrison says that he has just returned from a trip in North Carolina with Harry Ling, where his sales have more than doubled since his last trip through that section.

R. L. (Shug) Smith was in the house of the L. M. Robinson company Saturday. He is due to get out again Monday, but his co-workers are making no doubt as to just when Shug will hit the road again, of course he will, for the mere profusion of pretty girls in the city has anything to do with his prolonged stay. But the boys who know him think differently.

Press Chairman T. P. A. Calls Attention to the Railroad Rate Increase

The following communication from J. H. Andrews, press chairman of Georgia division, Travelers' Protective association, explains itself:

Permit me to call the attention of the traveling and commercial men, jobbers and manufacturers to the shrewd scheme of the railroad interests of the southeastern territory for a general increase in rates, using the fourth section of the long and short haul decision of the commission as a justification for the proposed advances.

"The first on the list has been filed with the commission, and effects an advance from New Orleans to southeastern territory, effective June 15, 1915, under the decision of the commission in the sugar case the carriers were allowed to readjust their rates so as to iron out all inequalities in same, keeping in mind the relation to the present rates of carriers on this class of traffic.

"To give the public a general idea of the adjustment worked out by the carriers the following information was presented to the interesting commerce commission before the suspension board in May, and was made use of to suspend the proposed rates requested to be made effective to prevent giving the public an opportunity to present their side of the case. The representatives of the shippers of New Orleans yesterday showed that the proposed tariff carries to all southeastern points 1925 advances and only 18 per reductions. The increase in Atlanta alone amounted to $18,000, or more than three cents per hundred pounds on sugar. The shippers of Atlanta through their organization of the Atlanta Freight Bureau, employed Mr. William A. Wimisch to represent Atlanta's interests, and he appeared before the commission yesterday on this case. It is to be hoped that Atlanta will be successful in having the rates suspended in order that the commission can make a thorough investigation before the rates are finally approved.

"Based upon the above showing, I feel justified in saying that the purpose of the carriers was not only to mislead the public as to the real objects in view by their readjustment, but the commission itself, in that the effect on the rates should not have their approval not only maintains their revenue, but shows a very large increase, and upon this unwarranted attempt to deceive them I am unable to see how the commission could do otherwise than set aside the proposed rates.

"It can be clearly seen by those who are in a position to see the hidden hand that if the railroads are successful in putting this advance into effect it will mean an increase of the cost of living to approximate $100,000 annually that must of necessity be paid by the consuming public, be they rich or poor, and strike all alike, measured only by the quantity consumed. It was shown that the advance of rate on sugar from New Orleans to Atlanta from 23 to 28 cents was not only unreasonable in and of itself, but was discriminatory, as the carriers established a rate of 24 cents to Chattanooga, a distance of 432 miles, and proposed to establish 28 cents to Atlanta for a distance of only 496 miles, notwithstanding the fact that the class rates from New Orleans to Atlanta were all substantially lower than to Chattanooga.

"If the manufacturers, jobbers and consumers allow the roads to advance the rate on sugar without resistance then similar advances will follow in rapid succession all along the line, in-bound as well as outbound rates to and from every point in the United States, and it is believed that the sugar schedule is but a test case to see what can be done in the long list of commodities the south receives and distributes in large volume.

"The foregoing is a mere outline according to our views and we are of the opinion that every manufacturer, jobber and consumer, and traveling men especially, should get busy and give their cordial support as well as financial assistance toward an organized movement to resist the proposed advances as is being inaugurated by the Atlanta Freight Bureau, which is working in the interests of the entire south. In this connection I want it to be understood that we stand for fair treatment to the carriers as well as to the public, and if the carriers can demonstrate beyond a reasonable doubt that their revenues are insufficient, and if they will take the public into their confidence they will be assured a square deal, but the foregoing case certainly is not conducive to the establishment of that confidence that ought to exist between the carriers and the public.

"Let him who reads remember 'there is no use to lock the door after the horse is stolen.'"

Press Chairman, Georgia Division, T. P. A.

THE ROBINSON LEAGUE

There is much hustling for position among the business batters at the A. M. Robinson company, and it has brought about quite a shift in position for the past week. Here's how they batted last week:

Going to California.

H. A. McDonald, the old "A. K. & N." warehouseman, Traveler's Protective Benefit company, left the city last week for a four weeks' trip to California. Mr. McDonald will visit a son living in the western state for about a week, and will then take in the big San Francisco fair. He is one of the old reliable among the Firing Liners for the Mayo-Newton company, and the fine he was glad to grant him a thirty-day layoff will be appreciated from his trade for about four weeks.

Save Your Hat.

Caution—This is to notify all parties to steer shy of an invitation from Sam Stern, of the H. L. Lee company, to take a ride in his speedy auto. It's all right after you once get into it safe and sound—but getting into it is the rub. Only last week a friend, Alex Simmons, attempted to board the car for a little spin, and he entered the top of a new straw hat—ripped off in some way by the auto top as he stepped in. Sam Stern Bert is now with the ride he got, or will hold Camp for damages. Only last week Bert got spear. But we hope he is—and he don't.

Now in Insurance Game.

The friends of Simon Freitag, and he has many of them, will be interested in knowing that he has entered the insurance field, and is now calling on his friends in the interest of fire, accident, health, automobile and liability insurance. He has offices in the Hurt building. Mr. Freitag was for ten years secretary and treasurer of Gershon Bros. company, and has a large circle of friends among the employes and the business world generally. For years Mr. Freitag has been one of the leaders and active workers among the membership for the Atlanta Credit Men's association, and as chairman of the membership committee has gained many new members for the association.

"Uncle Jeff" Heard From.

C. G. Jefferson, known to scores of friends and customers as "Uncle Jeff" and who travels the country highways for Herbert Hall-Redmine company, has written the Firing Line an interesting letter telling of some of the experiences he has had with them. I am back from Alabama and west Georgia," he writes, "and I will say the most prosperous towns in northeast Alabama, Bowdon, Bowden, Lavonia, Hartwell, Martin, Avalon and Bowersville, all these towns are growing and thriving and some of the best business men in the state of Georgia are very successful business engineers. It is hard to conceive a more beautiful sight than greeted the eye of the traveler as the evening shadows fell through the suburbs of Elberton it seems that every home has a large crimson rose bush in full bloom. Getting out into the country, on one side of the road will be miles of golden wheat ready for the mower. Adjoining will be fields of stunted cotton, green wheat, that was planted later. On the crest of the nearby hill are acres of silvery gray oats, almost ready to turn into a rich saffron. In between these beautiful fields of grain are acres upon acres of cotton, the young sprouts just beginning to turn their leaves open for nourishment and such a stand is simply amazing. It seems that every one planted cotton.

"Numerous farm houses nestled in grotes of green studded with gems of honeysuckles, roses, hollyhocks and poppies. To the commercial traveler as the train came into each of the towns the hundreds of cotton merchants came to mind—men who have wide reputation for courtesy and kindness to all commercial travelers—Attaway and Captain Gunn, at Bowman; Gordon Selms and Berry Holbrook, at Royston; S. P. Cannon, at Bowersville; T. S. Craft, A. N. Alfred and Jack Cavalier and Gene Matheson, at Hartwell; Ed McMurray, O. D. Cannon, at Martin. At Martin is the great family of Yows, Sr. and Jr., with Paul Cooper, the genial prince of Avalon, and in Toccoa is Billy Kligo, doing his level best to protect the interest of the citizens in the great light and water deal. These names are landmarks of integrity and stability, and no traveling man who has ever been on this road has failed to receive a royal welcome from them all.

"Everything indicates that this section of Georgia will produce a beautiful crop of grain and of cotton, and it should be so, for there is no fairer section of the state.

BAKERS LEAVE CITY; HAD FINE MEETING

Were Delightfully Entertained. Trip Through Schlesinger-Meyer Bakery Made.

The big bakers' convention, which was made up of bakers of the southeastern states, and which came to a close Thursday, after three days delightfully spent in the city, was a most successful affair.

The large number of exhibits shown at the Auditorium attracted much attention, and great numbers of Atlanta housewives took advantage of the opportunity to see just how a model bakery was operated, and were visitors to the convention.

During the day of the bakers here one of the most interesting events was the journey to the Schlesinger-Meyer company's bakery where the well-known brand of Uncle Sam bread is made.

The officials of the Schlesinger-Meyer company showed the true Atlanta spirit and real Atlanta hospitality in the delightful manner in which they entertained their guests.

The big front room of the plant was converted into a handsome dining and reception hall, with floral embellishments. The visitors entered they were cordially greeted by the officers of the company, and made to feel thoroughly at home. Delightful cool, soft drinks were served.

During the trip through the plant many complimentary remarks were made by the visitors in deference to the up-to-date-ness of the equipment. And the ladies were especially strong in their praise of the cleanliness of the bakery.

As a remembrance of their visit to the Schlesinger-Meyer Baking company the visitors were given useful souvenirs. Every lady present was given a pair of scissors and every gentleman got a nice pen knife.

"UP A TREE"

Chris Irby had something terrible to happen to him last week.

He left the store of the sales force of the A. M. Robinson company, but that wasn't it. Something worse than that.

He failed to come in to the house Saturday, and the full details of just what did happen—and how it happened—the boys at the house do not know.

The only message they got from him was:

"Can't get in Sunday. Am up a tree."

Taking Chris literally, he would be in a bad fix, but the boys don't believe that "up a tree" is all there is what they really think happened to him. You know, Chris has a habit of tuning up the car—but we won't call any names. The thing is, that Chris was winding it up—or cranking it off—or something like that—and the thing flew off the handle and the momentum sent the little machine sawing up in a treetop somewhere. That's the reason, they think, he couldn't get in for Sunday. He will probably get his car down in a few days, and the Firing Line will come rolling in—the boys think.

ADAMS AND BALDWIN TO SEE BIG FAIRS

Leaving here on June 10 to attend the national convention of the Credit Men's association, to be held at Salt Lake City, Utah, June 14 to 17, Adams will take in all the fairs and expositions that are being operated in the west before their return.

Mr. Adams is the retiring president of the Atlanta Credit Men's association, and Mr. Baldwin is the new president. Both will receive appointments as delegates to the national convention. And while they will not have been selected especially as duly accredited delegates, they will travel and serve as other business men of the city, who will be appointed for the occasion, and will make the trip at the same time, and will also be given credentials as such. Every duly appointed delegate will have the trip at the same time, and will also be given credentials as such. Every duly appointed delegate will have the trip at the same time, and will also be given credentials as such.

After their stay in Salt Lake City they will go on to San Francisco and San Diego to see the wonders of the big fairs held there. They will be away about three or four weeks.

J. A. Sewell, L. B. Robinson, M. L. Crawford, C. A. Smith, R. L. Smith and P. W. Harris were among the boys who checking in at the A. M. Robinson company Saturday.

THE GARDEN OF THE GODS

By N. K. SMITH.

The Elberton Air Line passenger train leaving Elberton at 4 o'clock behind for Toccoa.

This train leaves Elberton at 4 o'clock in the afternoon and on this last week just after a glorious shower, and after make the trip, and as this train has never been noted for great amount of speed, it is not a difficult matter to observe fully both the scenery and the crop conditions on either side of the road. This branch of the Southern railway traverses the most prosperous towns in northeast Georgia, Bowman, Lavonia, Royston, Hartwell, Martin, Avalon and Bowersville. All these towns are growing and thriving and some of the best business men in the state of Georgia are very successful business engineers. WITH COUNCIL 18

Mrs. Julia Davidson, wife of the late J. H. Davidson, past senior council, we are glad to say, is improving.

C. A. Kinimer, of M. C. Kiser & Co., and J. P. Armstrong, of Ridley-Williamson-Wyatt company, made a trip of a week round with the Central, reporting business good.

J. S. Cheek, member of Gainesville council, who was on the committee which so royally entertained the grand council at their recent meeting, was in the city this week.

W. A. Webb, past senior counselor, to show his loyalty to the order, came in from a trip from North Carolina to attend the grand council meeting.

L. L. Cox, who is representing the Bell Overall Company of Windsor, Canada in south Georgia, was in the city recently, having been a delegate to the grand council.

The last regular meeting of Atlanta 18 was one of the most interesting that has been held for some time. Not only were there a good attendance of local members, but several from other councils were present, the distinguished visitors was Brother Stern, the recently elected grand counselor, Brother Stern has been a faithful worker in that council for years, and made a very interesting and helpful talk, emphasizing some of the essential features of the order in the selection of councilors, that we have an able officer, and under his guidance we feel sure that the next year will be a prosperous one. Also, there was present Brother Urkhardt, also of Savannah council, who was elected grand sentinel at the recent meeting of the grand council. Brother Urkhardt also gave a very inspiring talk and held out many lines of encouragement. At the close of the meeting all those present indulged in cooling draughts and a good fellowship.

This is a gentle reminder that if you want to have a good time and really enjoy yourself, do not fail to be present at those meetings of 18, when they are due to come and sorrow and have a grand old time.

C. K. Ayer has returned to the city after a long trip, bringing besides many good orders, secured a large number of reinstatements. In securing these, Brother Ayer heads the list.

H. D. Shackelford, junior counselor, was an attendant at the Gainesville meeting, and was accorded special honors by the grand lodge, which were duly appreciated by the members of our local body.

EIGHTEEN.

Ragan-Malone Taking Stock.

The house force of Ragan-Malone company has been busy the past week taking stock, and many of the Firing Line boys have been in helping them. However, some few of the travelers managed to get away during the week, and are now being heard from with orders for some of the new fall lines with them, particularly on the cloak and notion line, which the company is pushing just now.

Hirshberg Boys Out.

Loaded up to the guns with their new fall samples, the great percentage of which are domestic make, the Firing Line boys for the Hirshberg company left last Monday. During the past week the house has heard good report from them, each man leading in his full quota of orders.

MARTIN & MACKENZIE TO SERVE TRAVELERS

Have Opened Office as Confidential Stenographers in Commerce Building.

Catering to the special needs of the traveling men, whose correspondence must be looked after frequently on short trips into the city, and also treating in a strictly confidential manner other correspondence from business firms or individuals, a new firm has opened offices in the Chamber of Commerce building, and is already meeting with splendid success.

The firm is made up of Mrs. Elizabeth Martin and Mrs. Carmen MacKenzie, the latter name of which is Martin & MacKenzie. Both of these ladies have had several years experience as stenographers, and are not only competent to execute work in an artistic and masterful manner, but by reason of experience and training can successfully handle the business or commercial side of a busy man's correspondence, and in his absence handle all matters confidently for him, if desired.

The establishment of such a bureau will prove a great convenience to business men, and will be especially convenient to travelers who desire their correspondence looked after in their absence.

"We are not public stenographers," said Mrs. Martin, "and are not soliciting permanent stenographic work. What we hope to be able to do—and are doing—is to look after the personal work of a business character, and of a questionable character shall not pass through our hands. We have adopted this as our business policy and intend to maintain it. While we are not seeking public work, still it may be that it would only be convenient for some of the travelers to arrange for work during the day, and we have no objection to making appointments as a matter of convenience on that day."

In the Social Whirl

By Isma Dooly

The season's prevailing fashions are pleasing all women, and, though they bear the stamp still of Parisian influence, it is whispered that the majority of the pretty things of this year are America's own production. There is a practical turn about the modes that is pleasing, and the short coats in vogue, the comfortable walking skirts and the hats, neither too big nor too little, are "a sign of the times." Women are tired walking in the mincing fashion that made them look more silly than anything else, while the bloused waists and lack of stays affected last season were fashions neither dainty nor acceptable to the more conventional element.

While the street and morning costume, and even that for early afternoon, still holds to the coat suit of almost every kind and grade of material, the large amount of al fresco entertaining is creating demand for the airiest and prettiest of costumes, wraps and picture hats. The tea-dances, the early out-of-door dinners and the evening parties out-of-doors scheduled will fill the summer program.

Silk is being more and more used for the dressy coat suit, an example of this in the prettiest toilet designed for any time at any place. The material is taffeta silk, and the pattern is a stripe of black and purple, blending in the threads of the silk as well as in the stripes. The skirt has a suggestion of the old tunic in the way it is cut, and the short coat opens to show a blouse of black chiffon over white, with touches of purple. A brown silk coat suit follows the same style, with the waist of brown chiffon over white. In the striped silk was another serviceable gown, blending the colors of stone blue and violet.

THE AFTERNOON TOILET.

An afternoon costume fashioned for the cooler afternoons of summer was of black taffeta, with silver flowers brocaded on it. The tunic overskirt in scallops hung over a flounce of black tulle and plain taffeta. The corsage showed a little coat of the flowered material over a blouse of black tulle and white, and there were little dashes of silver giving finish.

In a collection of the popular net gowns, some embroidered, some lace-trimmed, was one which elaborately combined with it gold-threaded lisse and ivory-colored charmeuse. The fashion was with the full skirt flounced in net underneath. The corsage of the net was trimmed in the lisse and charmeuse.

A net gown for afternoon wear had a tunic drapery of the net elaborately trimmed in Val. lace and sprays of embroidered mull. The bodice of the embroidery and net was over one of the net, and the combination produced the idea of great airiness and coolness.

A white crepe gown to receive the bouquets of flowers in their natural colors has been chosen to wear to a July wedding, a lace hat trimmed in flowers the same color to complete the toilet.

Court mourning on the other side of the water is going to revive the fashion of the black evening gown, and already they are written of as worn more than almost any other. One of these fashioned for an Atlanta woman who will spend the summer north is of black lace, black tulle and jet. There is a tunic overskirt of lace falling over flounces of black tulle. The corsage is almost entirely of black tulle, with lace trimmings, and giving finish is a rope of jet beads hung gracefully from the shoulders and confined near the waist line. Another black tulle evening gown is trimmed in jet, a dead girdle of jet, with hanging ornaments, and a full corsage of heavy white lace, and the sleeves were of the same.

THE WAR BRIDES.

Gilda Varesi, the marvelous young actress who interpreted the leading role in "War Brides" this week at the Forsyth, brought an interesting story of the success of many young American women on the stage of today and the success of an Atlanta product, Miss Frances Clark, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Clark.

Miss Clark made her debut with the Coburn players, with assurances of success, and left them to go with the company which opened the Little theater of Philadelphia, and made a brilliant record.

More money tempted her back to New York to do one of the vaudeville "skits" which is drawing now the best talent on the American stage. She is doing a short one-act play entitled "Behind the Scenes," which has had a steady run of four months, and is still a drawing card.

Those who saw Gilda Varesi play "War Brides" will not be surprised that she leaves Atlanta today to return to New York to play "War Brides" there during the absence of Alla Nazimova, who is giving the same play this week in Cincinnati, and will make a tour of the west.

Miss Varesi was planning her vacation after eighteen months of meteoric success, when the call back to New York for her and her entire company meant compensation they could not resist.

She took the part of "Jane Hale" in Alice Brown's prize play, "Children of Earth." She won the title of artist at once and has held it. Miss Varesi was born in Milan, Italy, and received her early education there. Her mother was once a grand opera singer and is now teaching music in Chicago, and her grandfather was the baritone who inspired Verdi to create the role of "Rigoletto."

When Minnie Maddern Fiske played Salvation Nell here several years ago Miss Varesi was doing her first important stage work.

SOME CRITICISM.

An amusing incident of Miss Varesi's performance here was the criticism made within her hearing, that she "walked strangely" in the part of "Joan," in "War Brides," and wore large shoes. Probably the hardest work she had to do when she studied to learn that peasant walk, and to learn to walk in the big shoes, for why should Joan, wearing the brown calico gown and living in the peasant home, strut in high heel shoes or creep like a courtesan?

It is strange that in an audience that was pleased with the mere imitation of Charlie Chaplin's shuffling movement by which he conveys his body, in lieu of a walk, there should be any one so fastidious of walks that he or she felt called upon to criticise anything any other performer did the same day or night.

*****

THE OUT-OF-DOOR FETES.

A very beautiful feature of the theater the last week was the group of young women doing the Greek dances under excellent direction. They were not only pretty to look at, but they knew their business and knew not to worry about the familiar faces on the front row.

The forthcoming production of a dramatic play by Mrs. Spiker's class in art and Mrs. Slaton will present a number of Atlanta's most talented people in difficult roles, but roles in which they are being masterfully trained. The setting of the players is of marked beauty, and the audience will have ample space, since the lawn is extensive and a forest of trees is directly adjoining it.

Extending the idea of the dramatic exercises of children, even in their earliest time of training, and among all elements, is the commencement exercises of the little kindergarten children of the Sheltering Arms centers. The exercises will take place next Saturday afternoon, beginning at 4 o'clock, in Grant park. Their kindergarten games and plays will be weaved into folk dances, and the natural grace and ease of the little ones will be a delight to see.

SHAKESPEARE'S "AS YOU LIKE IT."

Shakespeare's "As You Like It" will be produced the afternoon of June 10 on the lawn of Mr. George McKenzie at Brookwood, the site which was selected by the "Ben Greet Players" on the occasion of their first visit to Atlanta. Miss Caroline Cobb is directing the rehearsals of the performance, and imparting to it her knowledge of dramatic art. The star roles are to be interpreted by Mrs. W. C. Jarnagin, as Rosalind; Mrs. William F. Shallenberger, as Celia; Mrs. Hamilton Block, as Phoebe, and Miss Cleveland Zahner, as Audrey. The gentlemen taking part are:

The Duke, W. Frank Smith; Duke Frederick, H. T. McDuffie; Amiens, Richard Bold; Jaques, Robert Moore; Le Beau, Walter Marshburn; Oliver, William Perry; Jaques de Bois, W. C. Clarke; Orlando, Lamar Hill; Adam, Edward Clarkson; Charles, James Dreas; William, Kenyon Zahner; Touchstone, Victor Vietor; Sylvius, Walter Conklin; Corin, T. W. Harland; First Lord, Frank Butt; Second Lord, Francis Pavesich.

The rehearsals are taking place every afternoon at Mrs. Peel's, "Woodbine," on Peachtree road.

FLAG DAY AT EAST LAKE.

Mrs. Allen Coles, the unanimously elected leader of the Joseph Habersham chapter, D. A. R., is arranging a beautiful program for the annual celebration of Flag day, June 14, this chapter having fostered the establishment of the Flag day exercises. The program will be presented in the afternoon at the new clubhouse of the Atlanta Athletic club at East Lake, in which all the chapters of the D. A. R. in the city will take part. There will be an address, a feature centering around the raising of the flag, and patriotic music, the formal program to be announced later.

STEAMSHIP LINES FOR THE AMERICAS

Necessary to Establish Closer Relations—Pan-American Conference Presents Transportation Plan and Adjourns.

Washington, May 29.—The Pan-American financial conference closed here tonight after six days' discussion of problems which have confronted the two Americas because of the European wars.

Concrete results of the meetings may not be apparent for many months, but none of the representatives of the United States or delegates of the Pan-American republics were inclined to overlook its sentimental value and the apparent fact that through it business men of the two western continents have come to a better understanding of each other's views.

What the results of the meetings may be so far as the United States is concerned probably will not be apparent until congress receives the report and suggestions of Secretary McAdoo, presiding officer of the conference.

Of first importance politically and commercially is the question of improved transportation facilities between North and South America.

No Definite Stand Taken.

The conference took no definite stand today on how transportation could be best developed and left the question of ship subsidy or government ownership where it was when the deliberations began. Mr. McAdoo indicated, however, his purpose to make some concrete proposal to congress, saying he expected to urge the president to press for adequate legislation.

The report of the committee on transportation was adopted today without a dissenting vote. The only sign of a disagreement came when William Legendrie, of New York, proposed to amend a resolution offered by former Governor Francis, of Missouri, approving the report. The amendment, urging changes in the American navigation laws, was overruled by Secretary McAdoo.

"We are not here," said Secretary McAdoo, "to discuss government ownership or ship subsidy. We have been anxious above all to keep the political aspects out of this conference. Questions of government ownership of steamships or of ship subsidies have assumed a political aspect in this country and I think this conference should avoid them."

Secretary McAdoo said he would urge upon the president the need of continuing the work of the conference. He pointed out that the delegates had no power to take affirmative action on the question of transportation, but that each country must be left to deal with the matter in its own way. The "group committees" of the conference, which have done the real work, would be replaced, he added, with permanent committees in the United States.

Vanderlip Lauds Conference.

Frank A. Vanderlip, of the National City bank, of New York, summarized the view of the United States representatives tonight in this statement:

"The Pan-American conference was a happy conception. It has turned out better than its very best friends could have anticipated. The results promise to be really substantial, and confined to expressions of good fellowship embalmed in an unopened volume of proceedings.

"The conference has been characterized by practical business sense. It has not been a gathering of mere felicitous speech-making. The results promise to be extremely helpful in giving impetus to the movement for close credit relations, and in removing obstacles that stand in the way.

"There was one point on which every member in attendance readily agreed, and that was that the greatest obstacle in the way of this trade development is a lack of transportation facilities. There were divisions of opinion and to how to meet the demand, but there was unanimous agreement that it must be met before really great results are attained."

A resolution presented by President Fahey, of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, was adopted today, pledging that organization's support to further a better understanding between the two Americas. Mr. Fahey said he expected to meet in New York next week with Mr. Vanderlip and Senor Alda, of Argentine, to draft a code to govern the settlement of commercial disputes by arbitration.

The conference ended tonight with a banquet in the Pan-American Union building. Secretary McAdoo was host. Secretary Bryan, Mr. McAdoo, Assistant Secretary Peters, of the treasury department; L. S. Rowe, secretary general of the conference; John Basset Moore, Senor Triana, of the Colombia delegation, and Ambassador de Gama, of Brazil, were speakers. On Monday the delegates will start on a two weeks' tour of the middle west and east.

In the report on transportation a permanent committee of representatives of the United States, Argentina, Brazil, Chile, Uruguay, Ecuado and Peru, to work for the development of the plans, were recommended. Two subcommittee reports, differing only in proposals of procedure, were submitted.

One signed by Delegate Alda, of Argentina; Cavalcanti, of Brazil, and Cosio, of Uruguay, proposes:

A fast line of 10,000-ton steamers would be installed between the United States and Rio de Janeiro, Montevideo and Buenos Aires, capable of making the voyage to Rio in fifteen days.

As compensation for services rendered, such ships would be exempt for five years from all fiscal charges and enjoy all facilities granted any other vessels.

Bids would be called for not later than December 31, 1915, would be acted upon within three months, and, if possible, awarded to the builder who gives earliest delivery.

The North and South American governments would agree on the division of expense. It was agreed the other members and Delegate Veraga, of Chile, that there should be two lines of fast steamers—one to serve Brazil, Uruguay and Argentina, and the other fro Ecuador, Peru and Chile. Delegate Alzamora, while concurring in the report, did not sign it for lack of authority from his government, as was the case with Delegate Gonzales, of Ecuador.

Government's to Take Shares.

Delegate Veraga, in a separate report, made these proposals:

Organization of a corporation with stock offered to public subscription and any unsubscribed shares to be taken by the United States and Latin-American governments in proportion to be agreed on later.

That the corporation be organized under New York law; that the steamers be registered in different countries in proportion to capital subscribed.

That vessels be of 5,000-ton minimum, and miimum speed of 16 miles an hour.

That the board of directors be chosen by subscribing countries in proportion to their holdings.

The reports were presented to the conference this morning by the entire transportation committee, with the recommendation that "it is the unanimous conviction of the committee that such plans should be adopted as will most speedily establish direct, effective and permanent transportation facilities between the United States and the republics of South and Central America."

Sol Wexler, of New Orleans, speaking today in behalf of the Nicaraguan group at the conference, declared the city of New Orleans was opposed to government-owned steamships, but that he believed some form of government aid necessary. Sooner or later, he said, this all must take the form of subsidy or subvention.

How New Orleans Feels.

"New Orleans," said Mr. Wexler, "feels that steamship lines would better be established by private capital. We feel that operation by the government would lead to constant logrolling, and probably result in the big port with the most influence getting all the sailings.

"I do not believe sufficient capital can be secured without government aid, and while the word subsidy is repugnant to some, you will find that there is not a very decided objection to subsidy: and I believe that before long some such scheme must be resorted to to establish a real merchant marine."

Mr. Wexler commended the treaty proposed by Secretary Bryan between the United States and Nicaragua, and declared its approval would result in stabilitating conditions in the southern republic. Secretary Bryan later told the delegates that the state department was deeply concerned in this treaty, and that he was anxious that Central American nations shall understand that this government does not intend to antagonize the interests of adjacent countries in making such a pact. He said the state department, notified that several countries had fears of this sort, had made it plain that similar treaties conserving their rights would be negotiated with them.

Delegates Go to White House.

Reports from several group conferences were received at the general session today, but it was adjourned shortly after noon so the delegates might visit the white house and take leave of President Wilson before starting on their tour of the country's commercial centers.

President Wilson had received the delegates on the opening day of the conference, but saw them again today as a special mark of his interest in the meeting. With the president during the reception in the red room today were Secretaries Bryan and McAdoo. The president made no address, but told each delegate how pleased he was by the interest shown in the conference and the prospect of definite results.

In reply each delegate assured the president that he would go home much impressed with the United States.

Vice President Quinonez, of Salvador, presented to President Wilson a letter from the president of his country, expressing the warm sentiments of Salvador. The president was told by many of the delegates that when they returned home they would do everything possible to bring about closer business relations between their countries and the United States.

FRANK IS INNOCENT AND CONLEY GUILTY

that the story which Conley told to break the force of this discovery was entirely false. To do so, it is necessary that we have some certain and established facts as land-marks by which to steer.

Fact No. 1.

Fact No. 2.

"Mary Phagan could not by any possibility have caught a car that was scheduled to reach Broad street earlier than 12:07.

Fact No. 3.

"Monteen Stover was in the factory at 12:05, and left it at 12:10. This is a witness whose testimony as to time is exact and altogether credible. Nobody has expressed the slightest distrust of her veracity. The solicitor in his argument expressed implicit confidence in her truthfulness, and I accept it as a fact beyond controversy that it was her purpose to tell the truth.

"Upon the absolute verity, in particular, of Monteen Stover's statement the whole prosecution hangs. Until that fact was ascertained, the detectives had not the slightest hope of showing that Frank had varied anywhere from truth in the statement which he gave them on the 28th of April. Knowing that Monteen Stover was in his office at 12 o'clock and five minutes, they asked him whether he was there the entire time between his return from Montag's at 11 o'clock and his going upstairs at 12:50. He answered 'Yes.'

"From that moment the detectives never doubted their ability to fasten the crime on Frank.

"The prosecution has never sought to escape from the fact that Monteen Stover was in the office at 12 o'clock and five minutes. It has been from the beginning the backbone of their case.

Persons Present in Factory.

"I have agreed to prove Frank's innocence by the state's own evidence. At 6:30 the day watchman arrived; at 7 White and Denham, carpenters or machinists, came and went up to the fourth floor and went to work on some repair job that had to be done. They were shortly followed by Alonzo Mann, the office boy. At 8:30 or 8:45, Frank came. About 9 o'clock Darley came. About 9:10 a young girl named Mattie Smith came. At 9:30, by the testimony of one witness, or 9:40 by that of another, Darley left for the day, going off in company with Frank to Montag's. Shortly before 11 o'clock Miss Hattie Hall came. At 11 o'clock Frank returned from Montag's and found Miss Hall in the outer office. Holloway says he left at 11:45.

"About 11:30 Mrs. White came in. She found Miss Hattie Hall there, writing on the typewriter. When Holloway left the factory he met Corinthia Hall and Emma Clark Freeman some 200 or 300 feet away, coming toward the factory. In response to an inquiry from Mrs. White as to whether she could see her husband, Frank called up the stairs to Mrs. Freeman to tell White that his wife was downstairs.

"Mrs. May Barrett and her daughter were there. Miss Barrett came downstairs, and she and her mother left. Mrs. White followed shortly after, leaving at 11:50. After her departure there was no one else known to be in the building except Frank and Miss Hall. Denham and White were on the fourth floor.

"Let it not be forgotten here as one fact of which the importance is now surely beginning to be manifest, that Mary Phagan left her home, two or three miles away, at 11:45; that Mrs. White left the factory at 11:50; that Monteen Stover arrived at the factory at 12:05, and that Mary Phagan reached a point on Forsyth street, at least an eighth of a mile away, at 12:07, and that somewhere between 11:50 and 12:05 Miss Hall left.

"Mrs. White, returning at 12:30, found Frank standing in front of the safe in the outer office, and with his back to the door. She asked him for permission to go upstairs and see her husband. As Mrs. White went down the steps to the street floor she saw a negro man in the passageway.

"Albert McKnight testified that Frank was at home, a point at least two miles away, at 1:30. The movements of individuals have not heretofore been disputed. Every statement that I have made on the subject comes from the state's witnesses.

Evolution of Conley's Story.

"Concerning the methods of the detectives, after midnight on the 29th of April the detectives, Black and Scott, took Frank out of his bed, and induced him to talk with Lee, in the hope of extracting something. Frank did talk with Lee. He said exactly what the detectives told him to say, and without result. It was widely published next day that Frank had been overheard talking with his partner in crime, and the very words he spoke at Black's dictation are still, in the minds of many men, the ground of a persistent belief in his guilt.

"Up to the 18th of May Conley had insisted to the detectives that he could not write. They got pencil and paper and convinced him that they knew he could write.

"On that day, after deliberating for six days over the peril that obviously threatened him from the discovery of his ability to write, he completed in his mind the fabric of a story that he thought would be believed, and voluntarily told it to the officers. In substance, he declared that he wrote one of the notes, and Frank the other; that, at 12:56 on Friday, the 25th of April, Frank sent for him to come to the office, and asked him if he could write.

"While his first story appeared at the time to impress the police, the public received it with absolute ridicule. The whole story, as told by Conley, implied premeditation. Stunned by the failure of the public to appreciate their acumen, the detectives tried again.

"On May 28 the heavy artillery was brought to bear on Conley. Chief Lanford himself and the principal local representative of the Pinkertons 'grilled' him five or six hours. At last they beat it into his head that some of his statements were 'far-fetched.'

"He admitted on the 28th that the absurd story of how Frank had called in a witness against himself took place on Saturday; and the second affidavit, that of May 28, was born.

"His second statement was an elaboration of the affidavit of May 24, and bringing in the mythical story of the lady in green who 'worked for Arthur White,' and who went upstairs while he was waiting to hear Frank whistle. This lady in green came down in the dark passageway and lumber room on the first floor, where Conley says he was sitting, and stopped to tear open her pay envelope and to take out her money and count it.

"I wonder whether that poor murdered child didn't stop and open her pay envelope there that day by the scuttle hole, just before that wild beast murdered her. But that is a digression. He went on to give an account of how he went upstairs, and how he wrote the first note for Frank, and wrote it three times, and how Frank wanted to know why he should hang, and referred in terms of disrespect to Mrs. Frank. And when he told in this statement of how Frank said he had wealthy people in Brooklyn he didn't forget to add that he himself had never before that time known that Frank's home was in Brooklyn. His statement seems to me as clearly a reflex of the minds and thoughts of his grillers as his statement on the witness stand.

"The affidavit of May 28 represented the full development of Conley's fabric of self-defense and the last of his attitude of antagonism to the detectives. It was the most elaborate of all his stories. On May 29 the grilling lasted 'almost all day.' The detectives even tell us in detail how they did it: 'Anything in his story that looked out of place we told him wouldn't do.'

"Then he made his last statement. The detectives were satisfied and convinced. It dove-tailed and fit to their complete satisfaction. So well satisfied were the detectives as to the reasonableness and consistency of the story, that they went to trial on it, without any further effort to improve it. These pastmasters in the science of probabilities, artists in detecting the inconsistencies of falsehoods, to their utter horror, at the last moment found that the story carried one deadly piece of evidence that would forever defeat its acceptance. According to the story as it was typewritten, Frank had brought forth a roll of paper money and presented it to Conley. Conley could never escape from the necessity of telling what he did with the fund, and that fact dawned upon his satisfied inquisitors.

"And so the grilling was resumed, and Conley had to find an explanation. Frank, who had called up this needless witness, had given him $200 that the bank records and the factory books show he never had, and never could have had, took back the gift and promised instead to 'make it all right Monday.' The explanation was written in with a pen as an appendix to the typewritten affidavit.

"There is the evolution of the story. If Conley had stuck to it as he told it then, and as the detectives wrote it down, it would still have been as demonstrably false as it was when afterwards, to their amazement, in the presence of the jury, his luxuriant and unpruned imagination added new and undreamed-of touches to his now untutored fancy.

Importance of Inconsistencies.

"Whatever it had been previously to his interest to conceal, Conley confessed on May 29, in substance, to the same thing that he told the jury. There was nothing else that could make the case against him either worse or better. So far as concerned their bearings on his fortunes, the story of the 29th of May and his testimony on the stand were exactly the same, no matter what differences in detail there may have been in them.

"Except in the particular matters of variance, Conley expected and intended to testify exactly as he had confessed on May 28. His story had satisfied the detectives, and, in their satisfaction, he saw his safety.

"Where a thing really happens, and the knowledge of it reaches the mind through the primary senses of touch or sight, the witness will tell substantially the same thing about it every time; it tells itself. Where it never happened at all, but was a mere fabrication of the brain, there is nothing concrete to aid the memory. In all such cases there is a percentage of variations bound to develop.

"As long as there were none to doubt it; as long as the detectives were his sole audience, who themselves say, 'Anything in his story that looked to be out of place we told him wouldn't do,' he was kept in bounds.

Analysis of Conley's Story.

"1. Its generally improbable and un reasonable character.

"Before considering the story in detail, I submit that any candid man, not wholly predisposed to believe in Conley's truth, is obliged to be impressed with the utterly unreasonable and improbable character of what he told, when it is considered as a whole.

"Here is a man supposed by the community to be at large, as far as they are acquainted with him, to be of singularly gentle and amiable disposition, modest and retiring, almost timid. Working at a small salary of $150 a month, he is diligent and accurate in the discharge of his duties, even deferential to his employees, though little acquainted among them.

"He was manifestly of a highly nervous temperament, unusually susceptible to the suffering of others. It may be safely said that he was above the average in intelligence.

"Nothing in the record, except Conley's testimony, and Dalton's, suggested that he ever showed anything like familiarity with other people. Conley represents Frank as in the habit of degraded practices. To prove it, the state called a witness named Dalton, of whom eleven witnesses testified they would not believe him on his oath. The very story that he undertook to tell was intended to associate himself with happenings of the most unspeakable and degraded sort.

"Frank had asked Conley, according to Conley's story, to come there that day and 'watch' for him. Yet he didn't watch. From 11:50 until 12:10, during which interval, according to Conley's story, the murder took place, two people came in and went up to the office without interruption by Conley, one of them just before and the other just after Mary Phagan came. But in his testimony he says that his agreement with Frank was, that as soon as the expected visitor came, Frank would stamp his foot in order that Conley might lock the door. He not only says that he did not do anything to prevent interference, but that he heard Mary Phagan scream, and that, after that, he saw Monteen Stover come in and go up, and never lifted a hand to give warning.

"If Conley's story is true, why did he not lock the door? Why did not Frank stamp? The girl came before 12:05. The blow which we are asked to believe produced unconsciousness must have taken place very close to 12 o'clock. Mrs. White was there at 12:30, and it was impossible for her to have gotten in unless she came before the door was locked. When she came, Frank was in his office attending to office work, and, if Conley tells the truth, the door had not yet been locked. We are seriously asked to believe that Frank undertook the contemplated wrong without having the door fastened, and knowing that visitors were liable to arrive at any moment, and were, in fact, arriving constantly.

Conflict With Affidavit.

"1. What became of the mesh-bag was a vitally important question. On the 29th of May Conley said nothing about seeing the mesh-bag. On the stand he gave an elaborate statement of seeing it on Frank's desk, and of Frank's hiding it in the safe. This is pure invention by a witness who has found himself a hero in the estimation of auditors who seem to him prepared to believe anything he tells.

"2. I select now a variance of a different type. On May 29 he did not say a word about Frank's wanting him to burn the body. On the witness stand he told an elaborate story to that effect. This was the result of suggestion.

"The detectives did their utmost to make him say that the plan was to burn the body. It was one of their numerous theories that they tried so diligently to make him sustain them in. It grew and developed, and, at the trial, he told an elaborate story about that. The fact stares us in the face that we are about to put a man to death on the testimony of a witness whom it is essentially dangerous to believe, because no man can be sure now that, if he testified again, he would not tell a wholly different story.

"3. On the 29th of May Conley told the detectives that when he got down to the basement he and Frank took the body off the elevator together and laid it on the ground; that Frank then went up the ladder to watch and see if anybody was coming.

"In his testimony he tells us that when they got to the basement they took the body out of the elevator, 'and I opened the cloth and rolled her out there on the floor,' and says not a word about taking the body back, to the sawdust pile on his shoulder or any other way.

"This change in the story was not invented to explain why the bed ticking was not found on the trash pile, where the hat and the shoes were found, though certainly that question needs to be answered now.

"Dr. Hurt had testified that the condition of the body, the scratches and punctures on the face, the dirt in the mouth and eyes showed that it had been dragged over dirt and cinders. The floor was covered with these materials. If Conley left the body at the elevator it would be an easy inference that Frank went back in the afternoon and did the dragging.

When Did Mary Phagan Come?

"In respect to the time of Mary Phagan's arrival, the state is faced by a serious dilemma. Conley's story not only has her there before Monteen Stover, but has the murder consummated before that time. On the other hand, the evidence of Monteen Stover, who is highly commended by the solicitor in argument, is that she herself got there at 12:05.

"I think Mrs. White's story is true. She says she left there at 11:50 and left Miss Hattie Hall there at work. Is that to be denied now by the state? I hope not. Graham and Tillander were there when she came, and she talked there after that for fifteen minutes with Mr. White. I think Graham and Tillander were slightly mistaken in their time. They say they got there at 11:40. If that is correct, Mrs. White could not have left till 12. She says she left about ten minutes before that, at 11:50, and that seems reasonable. Miss Hattie Hall could hardly have closed up her work and got away much before 12, if any. Say she left at 11:55. Conley says Quinn came in before Mary Phagan and that Monteen Stover came afterwards. These things cannot be made to 'fit.' They are impossible. Now what is the explanation? Mine is that Conley's whole story was a fabrication, built up from the necessity that grew out of discovery that he was the author of the murder notes. What is the state's explanation?

Interruption by Visitors.

"The visit of Miss Corinthia Hall and Mrs. Emma Freeman took place before 12 o'clock. They left before Mrs. White left, most probably about 11:45. There are a dozen witnesses to that effect. In his argument the solicitor himself says they left just about the time I state.

"In Conley's account of what happened he fixes the time of his coming upstairs as very shortly before 1 o'clock. After he had been back, at Frank's command, and found the dead body, he came forward to the head of the steps where Frank was waiting for him, and it was 12:56. After that he says they took the body down and concealed it and came back and sat down in the office to arrange for a subsequent program. Then it was that Frank exclaimed, looking out toward the stairway: 'My God, here is Emma Clarke and Corinthia Hall,' and proceeded to hide Conley in the wardrobe, during a visit that Conley fixes as lasting somewhere from seven to eight minutes.

"If the prosecution made any effort to reconcile this discrepancy, it has escaped my attention. Conley says he was keenly on watch from 11 o'clock until 12. He says he saw Darley then, though, in fact, Darley left at 9:40.

Conley's Statements As to Time.

"Conley says that after he went up he was told by Frank that he had hurt a little girl, and to go back there and bring her forward. As he came back it was 12:56. That hour was in every statement Conley made. The subsequent transactions ended at 1:30 when Conley left, Frank being still in his office.

"The story, as told on May 28, cannot be read aloud in less than eight minutes, and it leaves out the whole story about carrying and hiding the body. Interpolate this account from the direct narrative of May 29 and it takes four minutes more to read. Here are incidents narrated which it takes twelve minutes to read. There is not an important thing stated that would not require from ten to fifty times as long to do as to tell about.

Time Needed For Writing.

"The time needed for the writing alone would have consumed more than the 34 minutes.

"Conley says it took him 2½ or 3 minutes. When we bear in mind that he says he wrote the first note three times, I submit that it would take a rapid penman longer. Illiterate people write very slowly, and the notes in question give ample evidence that they were painfully written.

"There were 113 words written, and if the minimum of time estimated by the witness be used (six minutes), it required well over an hour and a quarter for nothing but the writing. Writing the words myself, at a rate that I estimate, from my observation of negroes as penmen, such a writer would take, the bare writing consumed something over 25 minutes.

McKnight's Testimony.

"Vile as McKnight's character seems to have been, the state ought not to hang Frank on part of what he says and repudiate the rest. Frank was at the factory at the time the state says he committed the crime. He did introduce numerous and respectable witnesses to prove his whereabouts during the whole time testified to by Conley. But the solicitor indicates a high opinion of McKnight. And yet McKnight's testimony agrees with and sustains the white witnesses perfectly on this question. The evidence of McKnight was that Frank was at home at 1:30, the very hour that Conley says he left him at the pencil factory.

"The solicitor did not meet this unavoidable issue. On page 65 of his argument he indicated his opinion that the defense had failed to break down the testimony of McKnight.

"There had never been a hint in any of Conley's stories that Frank had been guilty of shameful practices, or that Conley had been his abettor. Conley did not know, according to this story, why Frank wanted him; and, while the fact that Frank did want him suggests premeditation when we read the story, there was nothing said to Conley, as he tells it, that gave him the slightest hint that a meeting was involved.

"On the witness stand it was all prepared and ready. When he goes upstairs, it is, after arrangements made to watch, with full knowledge that a liason was intended, and full vision of the entrance of the victim. So skillfully was the story altered now that Frank asks him, 'Did you see a little girl,' etc. And Conley tells him, 'I saw two come up and only one go down.' Had the story stayed as it was there could have been no explanation for the confession.

"The crime was committed in 1913. Conley says one page of the notes came off of a brownish scratch pad on Frank's desk. It carries on its face the unanswerable proof that it was a carbon sheet. Its date line, '190—,' is demonstration that it was long out of date. It had been used and torn off of the pad. The number of the order is on it, and legible. The autograph of the man who signed the order can still be deciphered, 'H. F. Becker.' Becker left the factory in 1912. He was the custodian of these temporary carbon memoranda. The order was filled in September, 1909. The old papers out of Becker's desk were emptied in the basement. By the testimony of Officer Dobbs, he found the pad that the white note came from, but he found no pad for the yellow sheet.

"By the silent evidence of things, witnesses that cannot lie, you read the story of the notes, and see their preparation by Conley in the basement.

Conclusion.

"I have finished the proof. There is plenty more. But it is enough.

"Gentlemen of the board, as I understand it, the defendant asks only commutation. He asks but an opportunity to vindicate his honor. As a private citizen of Georgia, deeply concerned for her honor, I think you ought to advise the governor to grant the commutation. If Leo Frank is hung, an innocent man will die, but it is the state will suffer shame, and the day will come when a great revulsion of feeling will follow.

"Grant his prayer. Advise the governor in terms of wisdom, justice and moderation."

"Sick and Disgusted With Life as It Is," Tries to Kill Self

E. V. Abernathy, of 402 Whitehall street, "sick and disgusted with life as it is," as he told Grady hospital physicians, attempted suicide last night at his home by swallowing a grain of strychnine poisoning.

He was rushed to the hospital, where the stomach pump was applied in time to save his life.

Abernathy was asked why he wished to die, to which he replied:

"I am sick and disgusted with life as it is."

"Are you married?" the interne inquired.

"Yes; I have been murdered in my life," he muttered.

CAMPBELL MESSENGER SUSPENDS PUBLICATION

Fairburn, Ga., May 29.—(Spacial.)—With this week's issue The Campbell the past six months, suspends publicaed by E. A. McHan at Fairburn, for the past six months, suspends publication and retires from the field as a local newspaper.

Mr. McHan announces that he will establish a "Monthly Masonic Messenger," devoted to the interests of the York rite of Free Masonry, the first issue is scheduled to appear about June 15.

The Messenger failed for lack of local support, but its retirement by no means leaves Fairburn and Campbell county without a good local weekly newspaper, for The Campbell News has been published continually here since 1871 and gets better as it grows older.

ROBBER IN RED MASK HOLDS UP GROCERYMAN

E. Merlin, a grocer, at 72 Foundry street, was held up and robbed last night about 11:30 o'clock by a negro highwayman, who entered his store and "lifted" $40 in cash from his register.

Merlin had a gun in his cash register, but the robber entered his store so unexpectedly that he was unable to use it.

The negro was masked, wearing a red handkerchief over his face and Merlin was therefore unable to give a very good description to Call Officers Lon Evans and George Maddox, who answered his police alarm.

A burglar broke into the King Hardware company's store at 87 Whitehall street, about 10:30 o'clock last night and secured a large quantity of goods. Sergeant George Bullard and Shaw discovered the burglary shortly after it was committed.

UNITED STATES LACKS TRAINED MEN FOR WAR

South Bend, Ind., May 29.—Josephus Daniels, secretary of the navy, in an address tonight at a banquet of the South Bend Press club referred to the "lack of trained men for war" in the United States.

"I do not like to admit that there is a defect in the military system of the United States," Secretary Daniels said, "but if there is a defect it is not in the equipment, but in the lack of trained men for war. In the heart of the American nation is hope that we will never again go to war, but if we do, it will be necessary that we have young men with military training such as those cadets whom I reviewed at the University of Notre Dame today."

U. S. Tire Company's Nobby Display In Observance of Motorcycle Week

Nobby tread, chain tread and corrugated tires on Indian, Harley-Davidson and Henderson motorcycles

The local management for the United States Tire company is receiving much praise for its very attractive display in the show window of the company on Peachtree street, where they are featuring nobby tread, chain tread and corrugated motorcycle tires.

All of the tires in the display are from the output of the United States Tire company and it is considered a tribute to the tenprise of the United States people and sets a new pace in window decoration of that nature in Atlanta.

The window is attractively arranged with an Indian, a Harley-Davidson and a Henderson motorcycle, which were loaned by the respective branch managers here.

This is national motorcycle week throughout the country, and the United States people hit upon this plan to contribute to the observance and feature some of their leading tires.

Tigers Win Two.

Macon, Ga., May 29.—Macon took two interesting and feature-filled games from Columbus here this afternoon, the scores being 8 to 2, and 3 to 0. Neild hit two long home runs over the left field fence and Stinson made a remarkable catch of a line drive up against the right field fence from which he started a double play which retired Fox at second, in the first game. Both games were marked by brilliant fielding and hard hitting.

Pittsburg, May 29.—St. Louis took one game of a double-header today by a score of 5 to 3, while the other ended in a nothing to nothing tie. The first game was stopped at the end of the fifth inning by rain, with the score tied. After an hour's wait, during which rain fell, the second contest started. St. Louis scored five runs off McQuillan in the first inning. Kantlehner held the visitors runless for the rest of the game, while the locals scored three runs, but not enough to overcome St. Louis' early lead.

ANNOUNCEMENT of the NEW LOCOMOBILE

THE new "1916" Locomobile is now on exhibition, thus opening the 1916 season. You are invited to inspect the new model at the Locomobile Building. You will find it the most wonderful car in Style and Comfort that you have ever seen. It has all of the superiorities for which you have been looking.

When you have tried this remarkable model you will proclaim it superior in riding qualities to any car you ever owned or rode in. The Locomobile has Low Lines and is very smart in appearance. It has a Low Step and Very Wide Doors. It is Quieter. It is Lighter. The New Locomobile is the "Best Built Car in America" in its most advanced state of refinement.

Greatest Number Attractive Features

The only high grade car that combines Low Sweeping Lines with all the marks of the thoroughbred motor car.

The New Locomobile has Four Speeds; Multiple Dry Disc Clutch. Left Drive with Center Control, Left Drive being the "accepted" drive, and used on 95% of all cars today; Closed Motor Bonnet; Clear Running Boards; Spare Tires at the Rear; One Piece Fenders; Full Floating Rear Axel; Distance Rods; Rear Springs shackled at both ends; Brakes that stop the car instead of simply slowing it down.

It is the only car that is Mechanically and Electrically Locked. Your Locomobile cannot be stolen.

Over One Hundred Refinements

New Multiple Dry Disc Clutch, the most satisfactory clutch ever produced. Enclosed Motor Valves. Increased Wheel Base and Decreased Weight. The most complete and most costly Electric Equipment of any car in the world. Drop Forged Distance Rods.

The Body is lower. Running Boards are lower. The low step and wider doors facilitate entrance and exit. New Cowl. Increased slope of Motor Bonnet. Windshield with curved base and curved movable lower glass. New Cushion Upholstery Springs, yielding greater comfort.

The finest combination of luxury, style, ease of maintenance, safety, reliability and accessibility ever offered to the connoisseur of motoring here or abroad.

Our Custom Body Department provides Special Bodies for individual needs, built to order. Mr. J. F. de Causse, for ten years manager of Kellners in Paris, brings to this department exceptional authority.

There is no change in the Locomobile policy of limited production and utmost carefulness. Not more than four cars a day are manufactured.

March 18, 1891—Death of "Plon Plon;" his son, Victor (born 1862), became the pretender.

While the body of Napoleon lay in its lonely, unmarked grave at St. Helena his spirit conquered Europe anew and mounted again the throne of France.

The peoples who had overthrown his empire soon found to their sorrow that they had exchanged a brilliant for a stupid despotism, and the more they saw of the little hereditary tyrants who supplanted him the more they lamented the downfall of the great tyrant. The pledges they had received from their monarchs in the wars of liberation were ruthlessly broken and something like a royalist reign of terror was inaugurated by the holy alliance. That federation, that United States of Europe, under the presidency of the emperor of Austria and with Metternich for its premier, really became a league against popular rights and progress everywhere, and the armies of the continent were converted into an international police force for the suppression of liberty.

THE REVIVAL.

After the death of Louis XVIII., Charles X., the ignorant and intolerant brother who succeeded him on the French throne, determined to drag France herself back into the ruck of autocracy. But when he made ready to set up an absolutism on the ruins of the broken constitution, the people of Paris awakened and took to the streets once more. In three swift days the last of the Bourbon kings had lost his crown and the Bourbon throne was destroyed forever.

Again the tricolor floated over France and the Napoleonic empire might have been restored had not the king of Rome been an Austrian captive. The French turned instead to the Orleans branch of the Bourbon family, and Louis Philippe received the crown, not by right of divine, however, but in the name of the people.

The return of the tricolor brought back the memory of the great captain whose victories had glorified it and a Napoleonic revival rolled over the land in waves of popular emotion. The press being free, a literary torrent burst forth and the stories of the emperor's companions at St. Helena were eagerly devoured as fast as the successive editions could be issued. At the same time, the pens of the poets and the brushes of the artists were busily engaged in transfiguring the emperor into a legendary hero. "Living, he lost the world," said Chateaubriand; "dead, he possesses it. . . . The giant had to fall before I could measure his height." Only his glory and misfortune were recalled. Old men forgot and young men were not taught the price of that glory and the cause of that misfortune.

Then the king of Rome died, and Louis Napoleon, son of Louis Bonaparte and Hortense Beauharnais, offered himself as the legitimate successor of his uncle. But Louis Philippe and his politicians diligently sought to turn the Napoleonic sentiment to their own profit. With one hand they banished the heir of Napoleon to the United States, and with the other rendered homage to the emperor's name. They tore down the Bouron lily from the Vendome column and crowned the shaft anew with a statue of Napoleon, and they missed no opportunity to light up their ever-fading fortunes with his shining fame.

THE RETURN OF THE BODY.

In his will the emperor had said, "It is my wish that my ashes may repose on the banks of the Seine, amid the French people, whom I loved so well." That the body of the exile might be rescued from alien soil and rest by the Seine, was a growing national desire when, as a last resource, the Orleanist king resolved to bring it back in the hope that he might borrow some glory from the imperial lust. And England having graciously consented to release its captive, the king sent his brother, the Prince Joinville, to St. Helena.

While the prince's expedition was sailing on its sentimental voyage, Louis Napoleon, who had remained in the United States only a few weeks, thought it a favorable time for the heir of the emperor to return to France. Crossing over from England, the pretender landed at Boulogne in the dawning of an August day, but only to eat his breakfast in prison the same morning and be condemned to perpetual imprisonment in the Fortress of Ham. And one of the three companions permitted him in his captivity was the Count Montholon, who had shared the captivity of the first Napoleon.

As the count was entering upon this second exile, his surviving comrades in the earlier exile were returning to St. Helena with the Prince of Joinville. Among the pilgrims, faithful even to the grave of their master, were Gens. Bertrand and Gourgaud; Marchand, the valet; St. Denis, the counterfeit mameluke, and three of the old servants at Longwood. With them also was the son of Las Cases, who had brought himself to the attention of Europe by attempting to wreak bodily vengeance on Sir Hudson Lowe in the streets of London. He was now to revisit in manhood the somber scenes of his boyhood, while still another member of the party, the son of Bertrand, was born in exile, his mother having boasted at the time that she had received one visitor without asking permission of the British government.

The sight of their prison house only deepened the unpleasant memories it had left with the one-time prisoners of St. Helena. They went to Longwood as to a shrine of their hero, but they found that it had reverted to its original use and become a stable again. Horses, cows and pigs had been turned into the emperor's study and bedroom and a farmer winnowed his grain in the death chamber.

The grave of Napoleon, however, was still guarded by his zealous captors, as if determined that even his ghost should not escape them. When the visitors made their pious pilgrimage down into Geranium Valley, they found a British soldier posted there on a sentry duty that had never been omitted night or day in the more than nineteen years that the captive had slept beneath the willows.

Reverently the bare, uninscribed gravestones were removed and the coffin was lifted out of the brick grave. But they who had thought to see imperial Caesar dead and turned to clay, drew back in astonishment and awe, when the coffin was opened, and they beheld the emperor, with his Jove-like brow, lying at ease and lifelike, in the green coat of the chasseurs of the Guard, the cross of the Legion gleaming on his breast with undimmed luster.

ENTHRONED AGAIN.

On a December day in 1840 Paris opened wide her gates to receive Napoleon as if he were the still living conqueror returned from a victorious campaign. Mounted upon a stately funeral car and escorted by the aged veterans of the old guard, his body was borne in triumph under his arch of the star and down the Champs Elysees, across the Place de la Concorde and over the Seine to the hotel des Invalides.

There beneath the gilded dome, the king and the royal family, in full court splendor, were awaiting the arrival of the heroic dead, when a chamberlain dramatically entered and thrilled the distinguished assemblage with the announcement. "l'Empereur!" Instantly monarch and princes, generals, statesmen and courtiers rose to their feet; but one among them feebly sank into his chair again beneath the weight of his nearly 90 years. This was Moncey, governor of the Ivalides, who was the last marshal of the empire to give up the defense of the capital when the allies surged against its walls in 1814.

Louis Philippe did not long retain the reflected radiance in which he basked at the funeral ceremony, and he soon found that the throne he had erected for the dead emperor at the Invalides outshone his own at the Tuileries. But while Napoleon reigned in glory from the grave, the living Bonapartes remained under the ban of the Orleans king, the only member of the family permitted to breathe the air of France, inhaling it through the bars of a fortress. One day, however, the prisoner of Ham, with his mustache shaved off and disguised as a laborer, sauntered past his triple row of guards and was free after nearly six years' incarceration.

THE SECOND EMPIRE.

Soon came the revolution of '48, which sent a tremor through the European continent. The thrones of the Hapsburgs and the Hohenzollerns rocked; Metternich fled Vienna and Louis Philippe decamped for England as plain Mr. Smith. Almost the only throne that escaped the shock were Napoleon's in the Invalides.

A republic was hastily improvised in France, and Louis Napoleon, returning at 40 to the land which had exiled him at 7, was chosen president by some 5,000,000 votes against 2,000,000 for his opponents. Under the fostering care of his administration the idealization of Napoleon took on new zeal, with Theirs chronicling and Hugo singing the grandeur of the empire. In four years more the French were ready to acclaim a live emperor, and the prince president ascended the throne as Napoleon III.

Radiant with ardor, France once more had set her feet in the path of martial glory. Paris blazed in a dazzling brilliance while for two and twenty years in all the lesser Napoleon held the Tuileries, where the greater had ruled only fifteen years.

Lifting the eagles of Austerlitz from the mud of Mt. St. Jean, Napoleon III. sent forth his imperial legions. They marched and battled from Mexico to the Crimea, but only to furl their standards forever at Sedan—60 miles from Waterloo—when one day the nephew of the master of Tilsit became the captive of the son of Queen Louise. For the third time under the reign of a Napoleon the Germans pitched their tents in the Champs Elysees and the Uhlans watered their horses in the Seine. For the third time, too—1814, 1815, 1870—a Napoleon had left France smaller than he found her.

> Thousands of ages will elapse before the circumstances accumulated in my case draw forth another from among the crowd to reproduce the same spectacle.—Napoleon to Las Cases at St. Helena.

DEMOCRACY REIGNS.

The downfall of the second empire taught a new generation of the French the lesson their grandsires had received from the wreck of the first—whither the path of military conquest ever leads.

And neither princes nor dukes nor marshals stayed to settle the account they had opened. None but the same humble, patient, toiling, thrifty common people who had poured out their blood on the leaden altar of war now poured out their savings to ransom their captive motherland, and they sent the conqueror away with a thousand million dollars of their hard earnings. In that hour of stern reckoning the French masses learned the awful cost of the glory of arms and the simple truth that only they who have to pay the bills ought to have the power to incur the debt.

For fourscore years the little people of France in their self-distress had been looking to the great people to save them and free them; but the Maribeaus and the Lafayettes, the Dantons and the Robespierres, the Bonapartists, the Bourbons and the Orleanists had shown themselves helpless when the test came. It was only when all the great people had failed that the little people falteringly turned to themselves. They composed no preambles and made no declarations; they issued no bill of rights and framed no constitution, but the reign of the French democracy has long outlived that of any dynasty since the Bourbons went into bankruptcy in 1789.

THE FATE OF THE BONAPARTES.

Meanwhile the Orleanists are crownless wanderers. Of the four Bourbon crowns of France, Naples, Parma and Spain, only the Spanish diadem remains, and uneasy indeed lies the head that wears it. All the crowns that the sons and daughters of Letitia Bonaparte gathered unto themselves in five years, more in number than any other royal family ever gained in five centuries, have vanished. A traveler in 1810 could have crossed Europe from north to south, from east to west, from the Mediterranean to the Baltic, from the Atlantic to the Ionian Sea, without leaving the realms of the Bonapartes. But after 100 years not an acre of sovereignty was left them, and the only living Bonaparte who had held high place in any government was that grandson of the disinherited Betsy Paterson who had sat in the cabinet of a president of the American republic.

The family name is kept alive only in the descent from Jerome. Joseph had no sons, and Louis' race was extinguished in the wilds of Africa, where the young prince imperial of Napoleon III. and Eugenie, while recounting to his British comrades the Italian campaign of the Little Corporal, received a Zulu spear in his heart. Like l'Aiglon, this heir and hope of the second of the Bonapartist emperors was buried in a foreign uniform, leaving Eugenie, his widowed and childless mother, to bear alone the crown of sorrow which is the sole legacy of the Napoleonic race.

With the death of the prince imperial the succession passed to the blood of Jerome, whose son Napoleon, but more familiarly known as "Plon Plon," married to the daughter of the great Victor Emmanuel, became the Bonapartist pretender until he died in 1891. His dying wish was that his body might rest in the Invalides, failing which honor he requested that he be entombed in the rock of one of the Iles Sanguinarie at the mouth of the Bay of Ajaccio, where the wind and wave of the sea "would be emblematic of my life, its agitations and torments." But "Plon Plon" was denied a grave anywhere in the soil of the republic, as his two sons have been refused a roof beneath the French flag.

The younger of these, Louis Napoleon, has gained rank in the Russian army, while his elder brother, Victor Napoleon, has maintained the pretendership from Brussels with ever-diminishing seriousness. Until the opening of the year 1914 neither brother had a son, and there was no young Bonaparte in Europe to preserve the name. But now Victor has a son by his wife, the Princess Clementine, daughter of Leopold, late king of Belgians, and on him will fall the fading shadow of the imperial throne.

By right of birth, however, the Baltimore branch should take precedence of the Wurtemberger branch, from which the Brussels pretender descends, and the present Jerome Napoleon Charles Bonaparte of Washington should be the head of the house of Bonaparte. This son of the late Colonel Jerome Napoleon Bonaparte is the grandson of that Jerome Napoleon who was born to Betsy Paterson while she was in England vainly trying to rejoin her bridegroom from whom the emperor had separated her. Happily for him, however, he pretends to no other sovereignty than that with which every American citizen is unalienably endowed.

This American and the child of the Brussels pretender are the only male Bonapartes of the fourth generation, and to them alone is entrusted the perpetuation of a name at which the world grew pale in other days. For nature all but joined the allied monarchs in their resolve to exterminate the Corsican empire.

Lucien's latest male descendant, Prince Roland Bonaparte, married the richly dowered daughter of that one-time waiter, M. Blanc, whose croupiers raked in for him a harvest of gold from his gaming tables at Monte Carlo. But no son was born of that golden alliance between the purple and the green, and the only child is the wife of Prince George of Greece, the oldest brother of King Constantine.

JOSEPHINE AVENGED.

History has not been content to set at naught all of Napoleon's dynastic ambitions, but it has also visited with biting irony his sacrifice of Josephine on the altar of that vain ambition. Although he put away his wife that the imperial succession might be established in his own blood, it remained not for a son of Marie Louise but for a grandson of his divorced empress to retire his dynasty and wear the crown.

The grandchildren of Josephine mounted no less than four thrones, for besides Napoleon III., a daughter of Prince Eugent Beauharnais married a Braganza and became an empress of Brazil; a son wedded the Queen of Portugal and became the royal consort of that sovereign, while another became the husband of a sister of the Czar Nicholas. But the strangest prank that fortune played was the marriage of a daughter of Eugene and a granddaughter of Josephine to Oscar, son of Bernadotte and of Napoleon's early sweetheart, Desiree Clary. As the wife of Oscar I. this princess sat on the throne of Sweden as Queen Josephine and gave a daughter to the royal house of Denmark. Thus the descendants of the Creole empress hold today two of the thrones of Scandinavia.

AT THE INVALIDES.

Although no drop of Bonaparte blood now courses beneath a crown, Napoleon I. still is enthroned under the golden dome of the Invalides. That vast soldiers' home has lost the purpose to which Louis XIV. dedicated it, when he opened it to the wrecks of his battles, and has become a great shrine of war, whose chief deity is the martial emperor of the French.

The magnificent tomb of Napoleon is in one of the two chapels of the immense pile, which is mainly given over to the exhibition halls of a museum, crowded with the jumbled relics of ages of warfare. But always the visitors to the museum throng thickest about some Napoleonic souvenir. The rude funeral car which bore him to his St. Helena grave, a gift from Queen Victoria; a simple wooden settee, which was the favorite seat of the throneless monarch in his exile; the walking stick which supported him who once had carried the weight of empire on his shoulders; the rough, frightfully rough, draft of his appeal to the prince regent before going aboard the Bellerophon, and other of his undecipherable scrawlings; the writing table upon which he poured out his dreams while a hungry lieutenant at Auxonne; his camp bed, camp desk and camp book, and the whip and sword and gun of the king of Rome. But the gray overcoat, the green undercoat, the white breeches and the black chapeau of the conquerer drew the curious closest and held them longest.

In the chapel of St. Louis a silvery bell tinkles the half hours among the tombs in the Aisle of the Brave; where the soldiers of France sleep in a timeless eternity. There lie Marshals Bessieres, Moncey, Serurier, Oudinot and Jourdan. There also is the heart of Kleber, which the unerring knife of an Egyptian assassin found, and so, too, is the heart of that first grenadier of France, La Tour d'Auvergne.

Of Napoleon's twenty-six marshals it is strange that only three, Lannes, Bessiers and Poniatowski, should have met a soldier's death and that all but eight died in their beds. Four were killed in the period of their master's downfall, Ney by the Bourbons, Murat by the Neapolitans, Brune by a mob, and Berthier by falling from his window, while Mortier was struck down by a bomb thrown at King Louis Philippe in 1835.

Massena, Augureau, Perignon, Kellerman and Lefebre did not survive the empire, and died before Napoleon. But 13, or precisely one-half of the marshals outlived the emperor, and Grouchy, Victor, Oudinot, Marmont, Soult, Moncey and Bernadotte were still living when his remains were brought back to St. Helena.

THE TOMB OF NAPOLEON.

The chapel of the Dome, in which Napoleon lies, was erected by the grand monarque as the royal church in the Invalides, 150 years before the usurper of the Bourbon throne found his grave in front of its high altar. Yet it was the emperor himself who converted it to a mortuary purpose, when he brought to the chapel the body of Turenne and the heart of Vauban, those two marshals of Louis XIV. and gave them sepulture there.

The lofy wooden dome, with its now neglected and shabby gilding, rests like a gigantic helmet on the tomb of Napoleon, which sits beneath the very cupola and in an open circular crypt, 20 feet below the floor of the church. As if to armor him against invaders of his quiet realm, he lies in no less than six coffins of oak, mahogany, ebony, lead and tin, which in turn are guarded within a massive fortress in the form of an imposing sarcophagus, standing nearly 15 feet high.

The rear red prophyry of the sarcophagus came from that Finland, which, at Tilsit, Napoleon permitted Russia to take from Sweden, the czar cheerfully consenting to the quarrying of it with the remark that since Russia had overthrown him, it was only fair that she should entomb him. But the son of the blue sea is shielded from those alien stones, cut on the frozen shores of the White Sea, by a lining of the warmtinted granite of his own native Corsica, while the base of all is a block of that green granite with which nature has fortified the Gaul against the Teuton in the mountains of Vosges.

Like sentinels about the tomb stand twelve colossal Victories in Carrara marble. But even as the empire made the fatal mistake of exalting force above justice, so Napoleon's victories of peace are celebrated in the dim shadows behind his victories of war, where in bas-relief on the ball of the crypt are carved symbolical representations of his undisputed titles to the gratitude of posterity—the Code Neapoleon; the execution of great public works, the founding of the University of France; the establishment of the Legion of Honor; the protection of commerce and industry; the regulation of the public finances; the Concordat; the creation of the council of state; the reform of the civil administration and the restoration of public order.

Only four personages of the empire were specially chosen to be their emperor's attendants in death. His brothers, Joseph and Jerome, have their tombs in chapels on either side of the entrance to the church, while downstairs, on either side of the bronze doors of the crypt the bodies of two of his most devoted followers are entombed in the walls. One of these is Bertrand, who followed him in his two exiles and to his two graves. The other is Duroc, who followed him in peace and war until he fell by his side in the Saxon campaign of 1813, when the emperor, in his bitter contempt for the ingratitude of man, praised his fallen servitor for having the faithfulness and affection of a dog. Like a dog, then let it be, the grand marshal of the palace still keeps watch at the door while the master rests in untroubled sleep.

Nothing in the Invalides better emphasizes its monumental grandeur than three slabs of stone in one of the small rooms of the church. They are the uncarved covering of the unmarked grave beneath the willows at St. Helena. But this grave at the Invalides, too, has been left nameless, for, after all, whether with sword or pen, with ax or scythe, a man cuts his own epitaph.

IDOLATORS AND ICONOCLASTS.

Following Sedan there was a violent reaction from the Napoleonic idolatry of the second empire. Skepticism and condemnation swiftly ran to an extreme as great as the blind credulity of the idol worshipers. The Napoleonic legend was furiously torn to tatters and its central figure was transformed from a mythological deity into the scapegoat of modern times; from an impossible demigod he was distorted into an impossible demon.

Time has checked that reaction and softened the rage of the iconoclasts, who no sooner overcame the base habit of looking up to Napoleon than they fell into the opposite baseness of flattering themselves by looking down on him. It is difficult to take a horizontal view of one whose life and character touched heights so lofty and sounded depths so abysmal. But as the world increases in understanding, men will be enabled to look a Napoleon in the eye and view him on a level with themselves, when, perhaps, he will lose their awe, but gain their charity. As history grows democratic it will become more and more like nature herself, careless of the single life and careful of the type. We are now too prone to magnify a man and to minify mankind, to forget that no one stands—or falls—alone and that all men are creatures of circumstances.

PICKED OUT OF THE CROWD.

We have seen Napoleon at 24 a drifting, unambitious man, apparently of the common mold; mediocre in school; an indifferent soldier; unkempt and awkward in the salon, emitting not a flash of that genius which he was so soon and suddenly to radiate before a dazzled world. We saw him unstirred by the great revolution, when it had been raging about his head for a half dozen years, and deaf to the loud knockings of opportunity, which had aroused so many of his comrades. We saw him shunning military service, running away from France and trying all the while to stay in his native island.

We saw him aimlessly loitering in the streets of Paris, where, like a juror at a coroner's inquest, he was called out of the crowd and placed on horseback. Surely 500, maybe 1,000, army officers had more experience and reputation. He was nobody, not even a Frenchman; but authority and law, rank, wealth and seniority had all been swept away in the revolution. The whole structure of society was turned upside down, and the slate was wiped clean. Thereupon the mighty social forces, clamoring for an agent, seized on this chance passerby and flooded him with their overwhelming energy.

"The moment the boy put on a general's hat he seemed to have grown two feet," said Massena.

The shiftless, dawdling Corsican flew above the Alps. He leaped the Mediterranean. He dashed across the desert. "I saw the world spinning beneath me," he said, "as if I were being carried through the air." His young head grew dizzy. The ruler of Italy at 26; the despot of Egypt at 28; the dictator of France at 30; the master of Europe at 32, his youth was a grievous misfortune. The constitution of the United States bars men even from the senate until they are 30, and from the presidency until they are 35. Caesar was 40 when he really began his career. This man had run his course before most rulers gain supreme power.

"I am called to renovate the social world," he said; "and this confidence insures my success." He threw himself against the gate of the Orient, and its hinges, rusted by 500 years of disuse, were shattered. He smote slothful Europe and its medieval systems crumbled to dust.

He infused with the electric force of the revolution armies, lawyers, artists, builders, and at his command codes were formulated, arches and bridges rose, roads were made and canals were dug.

THE FATAL DELUSION.

The politicians of Europe, naturally enough, thought his power came from himself. "The world invited me to govern it," he said. "Sovereigns and subjects vied with one another in hastening beneath my scepter."

His ambition grew on what it fed. Inevitably he came to share the general belief that he was the source and not merely the medium of the might with which he was invested. He attributed to the favor of Fortune. He was the child of destiny. A lucky star must have shone at his birth. He assumed that he must have been born to rule. Therefore he crowned himself. He could ennoble men by his touch, and a new aristocracy sprang into being. His omnipotence must be in his blood. Therefore he crowned his brothers and sisters and divorced his wife that he might surely transmit the divine spark.

He found himself the superman, set above and apart from his kind, and condemned to solitary imprisonment in a splendid but pitiable isolation. His fanatical egotheism, his self-worship repelled his wives, his brothers, his sisters, his associates, whom he loaded with coronets and domains without making a friends among them all. Awe, dread and envy cut him off from the affections of men and women and left him filled with the bitterness of Byron's cynical lines:

> "He who surpasses or subdues mankind
> Must look down on the hate of those below."

He despised men and challenged the impossible. "I may find the pillars of Hercules in Spain," he boasted, "but I shall not find the limits of my power."

But he had struck down the revolution, silenced the people and chained the forces that had filled him with the strength of Colossus. He was still borne on, it is true, but only by the original momentum, and where once he had won campaigns with 50,000 and 60,000 republicans, he now led 600,000 imperialists to disaster. At last no military genius was required to overthrow him, either at Leipsic or at the gates of Paris. Wellington only stood still at Waterloo and let him spend himself.

Nevertheless, France brought him back from the grave after a quarter of a century and stirred his ashes, in the vain hope that she might find a live cinder wherein to kindle her glory anew. She transfused his living blood from the veins of Napoleon III. into the anemic body politic, but only to collapse at Sedan. Then at last she turned from the tomb to discover the true source of her power in the red blood of her people.

REIGNS, BUT DOES NOT RULE.

But the exile has his wish. His ashes repose on the banks of the Seine, where the earth-hungry conqueror who felt himself pent and stifled within the wide boundaries of Europe rests in the narrow empire of the grave—4½x13 feet.

There, facing the altar of the king of kings and of that other victor of Mt. Tabor whose invincible sword, however, is not of the flesh and whose everlasting kingdom is not of this world, he is enthroned with the vain, almost theatrical pomp and splendor of his brief imperial days. Five afternoons a week he holds his crowded court, with all the races of men for his courtiers. And while they lean and muse on the marble balustrade, gazing down upon his majestic tomb, the slanting rays of the sun, transmuted into pure gold by the stained glass windows of the chapel of the dome, light up his violet red throne with a glory not of war nor of earth.

Spite of all efforts to banish him from memory and consign him to an eternal exile, this man who was picked out of the street to embody common men, to be anointed, crowned, sceptered, empurpled and enthroned above the monarchs of long descent; this man who made a mockery of the divinity of kings and the sacredness of ancient systems and customs, never has lost his dominion over the imagination of men. His latest bibliography, compiled by a German, contains the titles of no less than 80,000 books that have been printed about him. In the catalog of the British museum he distances every other man of action, only Jesus and Shakespeare receiving more space on the shelves of that great library. He remains supreme in the admiration and the disappointment, in the applause and the reproach of men:

Had he not lost his touch with the people he would rule the globe from his grave. Had he kept his face to the future and not turned it to the past the earth would be his empire and the human race his subjects. Had he only seen and welcomed the dawning of this age of democracy he would be its prophet, and the Invalides would be more than a brilliant spectacle: it would be the shrine of mankind.

THE END.

Society

GRIFFIN, GA.

Miss Louise Durkee entertained informally Saturday afternoon in compliment to Miss Marjorie Hayes Wolcott, who has recently returned from a several months' stay in New York, and Miss Susie Hatcher, of Columbus, the guest of Miss Henrietta Searcy. Twelve guests were invited to meet the honorees. Dorothy Perkins roses, with their beauty, graced the occasion. Assisting the hostess was her mother, Mrs. Fred Durkee.

Mrs. Will H. Taylor was hostess on Sunday at a beautiful dinner in honor of her guests, Mrs. J. L. Stroziet, of Greenville; Mrs. Charles Newell, of Atlanta; Mrs. A. J. Henderson and Mrs. Newton J. Baxter, of Hampton, and Mrs. John Williams, of Greenville.

Other social attentions shown Mrs. Newell, Mrs. Williams and Mrs. Stroziet were the dinner given on Tuesday by Mrs. John V. Chunn, at her home on South Hill street, and the spend-the-day party at which Mrs. A. J. Henderson entertained at her home in Hampton on Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. Willis Huddleston were delightful hosts Thursday evening at their country home near Griffin at a supper party complimentary to Miss Inez Lyman, of Cordele, the guest of Miss Mamie Slade.

Miss Mamie Slade entertained informally Monday evening in honor of her guest, Miss Inez Lyman.

Twenty guests were invited to a theater party Monday afternoon, at which Miss Lura Baker entertained in honor of her guest, Mrs. A. G. Smith, of Gadsden, Ala.

Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Thornton entertained Sunday evening at a beautiful dinner in compliment to Mrs. A. G. Smith.

Mrs. A. G. Smith was the guest of honor at a family dinner on Sunday given by Mrs. William H. Baker, the other guests being Mrs. Washington Manley and Mrs. Emmett Milner, of Concord; Miss Lura Baker, of Atlanta; Miss Martha Baker and Miss Conley Baker, of Gadsden, Ala.

An enjoyable occasion of Tuesday evening was the moonlight picnic on the church grounds, at which the Sunday school entertained the members of the First Baptist church. Several hundred guests were entertained.

Miss Maude Cumming entertained the members of the graduating class of the high school Thursday evening. In the class are Miss Olivia Brown, Miss Ethel Williams, Miss Mary Beeks, Johnson, Miss Corinne Tucker, Messrs. Chagle Sanders, Walter Binford, Howell Brisendine, Otis Blake and Charlie Phillips.

Pulaski chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, met Tuesday afternoon with Mrs. Thomas J. White. Miss Florence Giesner and Miss Laura Giesner, at the home of the former on West Taylor street.

Mrs. Alva Moore was hostess at a forty-two party Wednesday afternoon with Mrs. Jack Gerald Gunter, of Atlanta, the guest of Mrs. J. A. Scott and Mrs. Frank Kaye, of Meridian, Miss., who is the guest of Mrs. Joseph Persons, as the honorees.

Miss Olivia Brown and Miss Alta Bell gave a beautiful piano forte recital Tuesday evening, and were given diplomas by their teacher, Mrs. D. A. Latta.

ROME, GA.

Miss Louise Moultrie was hostess Monday evening of a pleasant bridge party to honor Miss Emily Dixon, of Birmingham, and Miss Martha Latady, also of the Magic City.

Celebrating the anniversary of the marriage of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Moultrie, Miss Moultrie surprised them with a dinner party to which several intimate friends were bidden. Mrs. Moultrie's two sisters, Miss Mary and Miss Margie Gwaltney, of Columbus, Miss., were guests at the happy occasion.

Miss Margaret Hamilton entertained at a beautifully appointed luncheon Tuesday at noon in honor of Miss Emily Dixon, of Birmingham. Covers were laid for eight, beside hostess and honoree.

Mrs. C. S. Sparks entertained informally at dinner Tuesday evening for Mrs. W. W. Martin, of Atlanta, who was en route to Washington Springs, Va., for the summer.

Mrs. W. L. Hume entertained fourteen members of the Parish Aid of St. Peter's church Tuesday, to honor Mrs. Henry Landell, of Atlanta, who, when she resided here, was an active member of the society.

An interesting event following the golf tournament of the former week was Mrs. Burnet Norton's golf tea party. Mrs. Norton was the successful contestant for the trophy and her guests were the tourney contestants and the greens committee of the club. On the Country club green small tables were set and a tempting supper was served at 7 o'clock.

At the conclusion of Shorter college commencement Wednesday, Miss Sara Joyce King entertained a house party of students for the remainder of the week, Miss Blanche Vail, of Arlington, Mass.; Miss Ophelia Davis, of Columbus, Ga.; Miss Louise Bennett, of Quitman; Miss Mary Sanders, of Pensacola, Fla., and Miss Angeline Davis, of Albany, forming the congenial party.

Miss Elizabeth Betts also is hostess to a coterie of Shorter girls, her congenial house party including Misses Letitia Burks, Katherine Beggs and Miss Pauline Strossson.

Miss Sophy Hughes left Thursday for Montreat, N. C., to be a member of a happy house party of fifteen couples to be given by the Beta Theta Pi chapter of Davidson college.

Mrs. Frank Maddox tendered the New Cemetery club a porch party Wednesday afternoon at her attractive home on East First street. Sewing was the pastime and the guests lingered until evening.

Miss Margaret Pruden returned from Agnes Scott Wednesday accompanied by her friend, Miss Margaret Phillips, of LaGrange. A series of entertainments began for them Friday and will continue throughout the attractive guests' visit.

BRENAU NOTES.

The closing chapel service of Brenau for the year 1914-15 was held today. The exercises on this occasion are always of peculiar interest, consisting of formal talks by members of the faculty and of the student body. The Brenau spirit was manifest in the expressions of devotion to their Alma Mater by the students. Among the students who spoke were Miss Katherine Lumpkin, of Columbia, S. C.; Miss Rita Durden, of Graymont, Ga.; Miss Ethel Harrell, of Roanoke, Va.; Miss Rita Talbot, of Lake Charles, La., and Miss Octavia Hunter, of Shreveport, Louisiana.

Miss Hunter is the retiring president of the student union, and Miss Durden is the newly elected president.

Visitors from all sections of the country have already begun to arrive for the commencement, which begins Friday. There are twenty-eight states represented at Brenau, and there are in the graduating class representatives of twelve states, namely: Georgia, Florida, Alabama, Tennessee, Virginia, South Carolina, Mississippi, Louisiana, Michigan, Indiana, Pennsylvania and California.

The alumnae banquet will be one of the most interesting features of commencement. It will be presided over as toastmistress by Miss Dozier, of the class of '93.

The class of 1915, of which Miss Carol Dean, of Gainesville, is president, will hold its reunion during commencement.

The baccalaureate sermon will be preached on Sunday by Dr. R. A. Torrey, of Los Angeles, Cal., and the literary address will be delivered on Tuesday morning by Dr. E. C. Dargan, of Macon, Ga.

DECATUR, GA.

Mrs. George Watts is the guest of friends in Columbus.

Mr. W. G. Flake spent the week-end as the guest of his family.

Mr. Milton Candler has returned from a visit to North Carolina.

Miss Mary Will Montgomery is visiting in Lawrenceville for a while.

Mr. and Mrs. Wyatt and family have left for Clearwater, Fla., where they will spend several months.

FUNERAL OF DANIEL WILL BE HELD TODAY

Services Will Be Conducted in Griffin by Odd Fellows This Afternoon.

The funeral of Judge Robert T. Daniel, grand sovereign of the Odd Fellows of America and past grand incohonee of the Red Men, will be held in Griffin this afternoon at 3:30 o'clock before one of the largest number of friends, officials of the lodges and members of the Griffin bar which has ever assembled on a similar occasion in the town. In order that the great numbers attending may be accommodated the services will be held in the vestibule of the First Methodist church with people seated in front of the church and in the yard.

The Rev. J. H. Eakes, of Rome, will officiate, assisted by the Rev. G. F. Venable, the Rev. J. E. Sammons and the Rev. Fletcher Walton, of Griffin. The order of Odd Fellows, of which the deceased was the grand sire, will have charge of the services at the grave. The active pallbearers will be composed of the following past grand masters: T. H. Robertson, Gainesville; Alexander Dittler, Atlanta; John A. Hynds, Atlanta; John W. Bennett, Waycross; R. B. McCowen, Augusta; John P. Davis, Rome; L. B. Clark, Atlanta, and W. S. Coleman, Atlanta. The honorary escort will be composed of the remaining past grand masters, together with the officers of the grand lodge and the officers of the grand encampment of Georgia.

Other sections of the honorary escort will be composed of the Knights Templars, the tribe of the Improved Order of Red Men and the Odd Fellow lodges, the Baraca class of the First Methodist church of which Judge Daniel was teacher, the board of stewards of the First Methodist church of which he was chairman, the city officials of Griffin and the bar associations of Griffin and Flint circuit.

The obsequies will also be attended by 300 Odd Fellows and Red Men of Atlanta, who will leave on a special train today at 12:30. A special round trip ticket is on sale for $1.

Upon the arrival of the body of Judge Daniel in Griffin, Saturday, it was met at the depot by an escort of 300 prominent men and officials and accompanied to his home, where it lay in state through the day.

Leading Red Men Here.

Wilson Brooks, Chicago, great chief of records of the United States Improved Order of Red Men, and William H. Hyronemia, Nashville, past great incohonee, reached Atlanta last night en route to attend the funeral of Judge Daniel at Griffin, Sunday. They were met at the station by a committee of Red Men, headed by Judge Thomas Jeffries, and were taken to the Ansley hotel.

During their stop in the city they will be entertained by Judge Jeffries, great senior sagamore of the United States, and Walter C. Hendrix, great senior sagamore of Georgia. They will accompany the Atlanta Red Men and Odd Fellows on their special train to Griffin tomorrow.

FUNERAL SERVICES OF MRS. COVINGTON

Mrs. Mary A. Covington, mother of Mike Covington, federal parole officer of the local United States penitentiary, and widely known in Atlanta and throughout the state, died Friday night at 8:45 o'clock at her home, No. 5 Marion place.

Mrs. Covington was 69 years of age, and is survived by six children, M. L. Covington and F. Z. Covington, of Atlanta; Mrs. Amanda McBride, of Lawton, Okla.; H. E. Covington, of Manitau, Okla.; Mrs. Lillie Mae Edison and Miss Nora Covington of Atlanta.

The funeral services occurred Saturday afternoon at 4 o'clock at the residence in the presence of a large number of close friends and relatives. The remains will be taken this morning to her ancestral home, Pine Log, in Bartow county, for interment in the old family burial grounds, where four generations of her forbears now rest.

Mrs. Covington was a life-long member of the Methodist church, and was held in high esteem by all who knew her. The funeral services were conducted by Rev. Dr. Burgg, for years her pastor.

WAYCROSS STORE IS ROBBED THREE TIMES

Waycross, Ga., May 29.—(Special.)—For the third time burglars have robbed the Haines avenue store of J. T. Edwards, a brother-in-law of Mayor Scott T. Beaton. The third robbery was discovered yesterday. A rear window had been opened, glass being broken so that the window could be unlocked, and then an auger used to bore sufficient holes to make a 2x2-foot opening in the wooden blind on the inside. A store in the same block was also entered, but nothing taken. Mr. Edwards reported to the police that a suit case and a variety of clothing had been stolen. Two men entered the store, according to tracks found in the place. One of them changed some of his clothing while in the store, leaving his old garments on the floor. Neat hauls have been made each time the Edwards store has been robbed.

Germs Can't Stay With This Treatment

No Impurities Can Retain A Foothold—They're Driven Out.

The action of S. S. S., the famous blood purifier, is direct from the moment it enters the stomach. Unlike food that must be acted upon by the digestive juices, S. S. S. goes at once into the blood, and in less than five minutes has traversed the entire circulation.

It now rapidly spreads its medicinal action in the fine network of blood vessels and is like giving the blood a thorough bath, overcoming eczema, blood risings, boils and other eruptive conditions. It can not harm any part of the system. It does not lodge in the joints as do mercury, arsenic and other minerals frequently to be found in blood remedies. It is a natural medicine for the blood, just as essential to health if germs have gotten the upper hand as is nutritious food if after a spell of sickness the body calls for nourishment. Wherever you go you are sure to meet some one who used S. S. S. for the blood and is a willing witness to its wonderful power to overcome blood troubles. You can obtain S. S. S. in almost any drug store in the U. S., a significant fact as to its worth and its sterling reputation. Get a bottle today. It will do you good. Write to The Swift Specific Co., 104 Swift Bldg., Atlanta, Ga., if the directions with the bottle do not fully cover your case.

PASSES C. P. A. EXAMINATION

ERNEST CLAYTON.

As a result of night study, Mr. Clayton, credit manager and auditor for Fielder & Allen company, has recently passed the Georgia certified public accountant examination and has been admitted to practice accountancy and be styled and known as a certified public accountant. Certificates are issued by the governor upon the recommendation of the board of examiners, of which Mr. Joel Hunter is chairman, Mr. Clayton is also an attorney-at-law, he having passed a former state bar examination.

Railroad Executives For Yearly Revision Of Railway Mail Pay

Railroad executives representing 90 per cent of the entire mileage of the country, among them officials of leading southern railroads, at a recent meeting, approved the course of the committee on railway mail pay in its efforts to secure from the United States government adequate compensation for transporting the mails and urged that congress enact a law giving the interstate commerce commission the same jurisdiction over mail traffic that it now has over the other classes of traffic.

Unanimous approval was given the following reforms of the present law, which the committee has urged.

1. That the mails be weighed, and the pay adjusted, at least once a year on every railway mail route, instead of once in four years, as at present.

2. That the railroads be paid for, or relieved from, the duty of carrying the mails between railroad stations and postoffices.

3. That the railroads be paid for apartment postoffice cars—for which the recent law allows no pay—on a pro rata basis with the compensation for full railway postoffice cars.

Among the lines operating in the south represented at the meeting were Southern railway, Norfolk and Western, Chesapeake and Ohio, Illinois Central, Louisville and Nashville, Nashville, Chattanooga and St. Louis, Richmond, Fredericksburg and Potomac, Atlantic Coast Line and Seaboard Air Line. The General Managers' Association of the Southeast and the Short Line Railroad association were also represented.

CONYERS HAS ARRANGED THREE-DAY CHAUTAUQUA

Conyers, Ga., May 29.—(Special.)—The Conyers board of trade has arranged for a three-day chautauqua, June 3, 4 and 5. The first day, Thursday, June 3, will be "Home-Coming Day," on which every former citizen of Rockdale county is cordially invited to come to Conyers, spend the day and renew old acquaintances. A committee on arrangements for this day is busy making plans for a dinner, auto drives and other entertainments.

Joseph A. McCord, formally of Conyers, but now governor of the regional bank of Atlanta, will be the principal speaker. Other short talks will be made and it is expected that this will be a great day. Judge Nash R. Broyles will deliver an address on Educational day, June 4, and an expert on farming from Washington will give demonstrations on Agricultural day, June 5.

THIRD DISTRICT COLLEGE FACULTY IS RE-ELECTED

Americus, Ga., May 29.—(Special.)—The faculty for the Third District Agricultural and Mechanical college, at Americus, the largest of Georgia's eleven district colleges, has been elected for the next scholastic year, beginning in early September. The fact that the entire present corps was again elected evidences the efficiency of these instructors.

Superintendent John M. Collum is again chosen as the head of this institution, over which he has presided so efficiently since the establishment of the school.

Aside from the loss sustained in the destruction by fire of the main academic building, the college has had a season of prosperity. The enrollment has been around 110 pupils all of the session.

ENDYMION PRESENTED BY LUCY COBB GIRLS

Athens, Ga., May 29.—(Special.)—Commencement at Lucy Cobb institute, the fifty-seventh annual exercises, began this evening with the presentation of "Endymion," directed by Miss Helen Moore, on the lawn-theater of the institute campus. The play, difficult though it was, was faultlessly presented.

The annual concert is to be given in Seney-Stovall chapel Monday evening, the commencement sermon is to be preached by Bishop Thomas F. Gailor, of Tennessee, Sunday morning, the graduating exercises will occur Monday evening on the campus, and the annual reception by the associate principals, Misses Brumby and Gerdine, will be Monday night from 9 to 12.

DEATH OF A. J. COLBERT IS MOURNED IN MACON

Macon, Ga., May 29.—(Special.)—A. J. Colbert, vice president of the Burden Smith company, died at his home here today following a brief illness caused by typhoid fever.

His passing is mourned by hundreds of men in all walks of life for if there ever was a self-made man, "Jack" Colbert was one. Beginning as a "wrapper" boy in a dry goods store he rose from one position of trust to another until he became the buyer and vice president of the company he was with at his death. He leaves an estate the estimated worth of which is close to $100,000.

Mr. Colbert is survived by two sisters, Misses Orrie and Carrie Colbert. The body will be interred at Butler, Ga., tomorrow.

IS HELD AS MURDERER OF SAVANNAH OFFICER

Waycross, Ga., May 29.—(Special.)—Suspected of being the murderer of a Savannah policeman, a negro giving the name of Sam Lee was caught on the western outskirts of Waycross today by county officers. With him was Dave Charles, whose suspicious actions caused officers to believe he is wanted. Lee is a mulato, 24 years old, and claims Columbia, S. C., as his home.

Alleged Thief Caught By Officer in Presence Of a Crowd on Viaduct

The Atlanta police may be rated "slow runners" when it comes to catching thieves and getting on the job, but a record was established Saturday afternoon by Traffic Officer Jack Clarke, on the Whitehall street viaduct, in front of the Germania Savings bank, in the presence of a large crowd, who gave the traffic cop quite an ovation for his quick work.

C. S. Loyd, of Greensferry avenue, had uttered a cry for police when he felt some one tugging at his pocket book, which was in his hip pocket. At the same time, Loyd quickly turned his head, expecting to catch a glimpse of the thief before he disappeared with his "leather."

Instead of seeing the escaping pickpocket, Loyd saw Officer Clarke holding both his pocketbook and the alleged pickpocket before him. Clarke was walking shortly behind Loyd when he saw the negro, who gave his name as Robert Bigby.

Laura Roberson, negress, living at 41 Butler street, told Officer Clarke shortly afterwards, that Bigby last Saturday snatched her purse from her, which contained $21.60.

Bigby was jailed at police barracks on the charge of being a pickpocket.

BREWER'S SERVICES ARE ASKED BY ITALY FOR RED CROSS WORK

Dr. Walpole Brewer, the widely known former house physician for the Hotel Ansley and fraternity leader, is now having an abundance of excitement.

Right at present Dr. Brewer is being detained in Genoa, Italy, by Italian troops, who want to commandeer his services in the Red Cross corps. Dr. Brewer was en route to take an assignment with the Austrian troops. An appeal has been made to the United States Red Cross officials for Dr. Brewer's services. It is said that the appeal will be denied, and Dr. Brewer ordered to his original destination.

In the meanwhile, however, he is being detained.

Change Philippine Regiments.

Washington, May 29.—Secretary Garrison is arranging to change three regiments in the Philippines before October 1. The Seventh and Eighth cavalry and the Twenty-fourth infantry will be replaced by the Ninth cavalry, now in Arizona, and the Fifteenth cavalry, and the Twenty-seventh infantry, in Texas. Assignments of the returning regiments have yet to be determined.

Thomas County Teachers.

Thomasville, Ga., May 29.—(Special.) The Thomas County Teachers' association held an interesting all-day meeting today at Miller's spring, on the Ochlocknee river, a large attendance being present. Reports from all the schools in the county showed that the attendance this year has been the largest in the history of the schools, and the interest and enthusiasm along lines of educational work is greatly increased. The meeting was in the nature of an all-day picnic and there were many pleasant social features connected with it.

THE GREATEST ROMANTIC WRITER OF OUR AGE

The popularity of Stevenson's Works is very great, and nowhere is it more in evidence than right here in this city. On the walls of countless homes hang mottoes selected from his favorite writings. "Treasure Island" is the best story of adventure since Robinson, and has been adopted as a model of good writing by most schools. "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde" surpasses Poe at his best. "The Garden of Verses" is read and admired wherever children are found, and Stevenson's other writings are masterly examples of perfect English, correct style and interesting narrative. The complete set of Stevenson's works should be in every library, to be read and re-read by every member of the family.

The Constitution Offers You an Exceptional Opportunity to Secure Stevenson's Famous Works---An Opportunity You May Never Have Again

The offer which The Constitution makes at this time to readers is possible only through the enterprise of Thomas Nelson & Sons, the well-known Bible publishers of London, Edinburgh and New York. The books have been brought out in a new Balmoral Edition which they wish to introduce under the most favorable terms and as quickly as possible in this country. By special arrangement with them The Constitution will, for a limited time only, distribute this attractive Six Volume Cloth Set for one Free Library Coupon and $1.50. The $1.50 is all that you pay to absolutely own the complete set of six volumes.

The Stevenson Books are uniform in size, binding and paper with other sets of world-famous authors distributed recently by The Constitution. Mail Orders will be promptly filled, when 15c is added for prepaid postage or express.

"Bill" Stoddard, Pacemaker, Pays Tribute to His Maxwell "25" Car

Pacemaker Stoddard, who piloted the "Seeing Georgia" tour 630 miles, and the car, he says, "did its full duty" every mile of the way.

A glowing tribute is paid the Maxwell 25, used as pacemaker by W. J. Stoddard in the "Seeing Georgia" tour, just ended. He makes the statement that never in his experience has he driven a car that gave better satisfaction or performed more perfectly than did his mount in this test.

The Maxwell, Stoddard says, covered the entire distance of 630 miles without one bobble or the necessity of a single adjustment. Not even tire trouble of any nature was experienced, and the machine responded to his every wish.

The going was not boulevard travel at any time, and in some sections it was awfully tough plowing, but the Maxwell plunged through every sort of road and kept up the pace until the end.

One stretch in particular is told of by Stoddard. The 167 miles from Valdosta to Macon, carrying 1,015 pounds of passengers and baggage, the car shot through 38 miles of heavy mud and 34 miles of deep sand at a clip of 22 1-10 miles per hour. The actual running time for this leg of the journey was 7 hours and 42 minutes.

A rather remarkable fact about the Maxwell in this tour is that it was a 56-inch tread and in the deep sand of south Georgia, where 60-inch width cars are invariably used, it was necessary for the Maxwell to make its own track. With the wheels plowing deep into this terrible loose roadbed, the pacemaker ground out mile after mile with unvarying accuracy.

Stoddard is bubbling over with enthusiasm over the car. He says that in all his experience on the speedway, hill climbs, road races and tours he has never experienced more genuine pleasure than he obtained from this tour in his pacemaking Maxwell.

His letter to J. P. Headley, district salesman of the Atlanta branch, follows:

Maxwell Motor Sales Corporation, Atlanta, Ga.—Gentlemen: For your information I would like very much to submit the following letter on the Maxwell 25, five-passenger touring car, used by me as the pacemaker's car on the first "Seeing Georgia" tour, which left Atlanta May 22 and returned May 27, covering a distance of 630 miles.

I would like to call especial attention to our trip from Valdosta to Macon, which was 167 miles. The actual running time was 7 hours and 42 minutes. We carried four passengers, weighing 715 pounds; 300 pounds of baggage and equipment, a total of 1,015 pounds. With this added weight we ran through 38 miles of heavy mud and 34 miles of deep sand with the remarkable average of 22 1-10 miles per hour.

In all my experience as a race driver and tourist I have never driven a car that performed any better than the Maxwell. No mechanical or tire troubles of any kind was known. All that was necessary was to feed her gasoline and oil and very seldom a little water.

In view of the fact that this particular car was a 56-inch tread and the 60-inch tread is almost exclusively used in south Georgia, the Maxwell had to plow through deep sand and make its own track. I think the performance wonderful. Yours very truly.

W. J. STODDARD.

Philadelphia, May 29.—Boston broke even with Philadelphia today, the home club winning the first game, 2 to 1, and the visitors the second, 6 to 5. Ruth held Philadelphia to one hit in the first eight innings of the opener. In the ninth, with third and second occupied and two men out, Harry Davis batted for Davies and singled, sending in the runs which decided the contest.

Boston took a big lead in the second game by hitting Bressler's delivery hard in the second inning. Wagner's two errors in the ninth were followed by Kopf's double and Murphy's single, netting three runs. Shore, however, closed the game by fanning Walsh. Lajoie was unable to play, owing to an injured foot, making five of Philadelphia's regulars, Lajoie, Schang, Oldring, Strunk and McInnis, out of the game with injuries.

Costs less to Buy

Certainly does—at $1385, this Studebaker SIX costs VERY much less, hundreds of dollars less, in fact, than any SIX that begins to approach it in QUALITY. The low price is made possible only by the resources of Studebaker—one of the largest manufacturing organizations in the world manufacturing motor cars. You don't have to spend one dollar more than $1385 to get ALL that a SIX can give.

Just take the cars that cost more and study them side by side with this Studebaker SIX at $1385. You'll find one SIX that's priced at nearly $4,000 that has a semi-floating rear axle—one of the old-style axles that Studebaker has long since replaced with the SAFER FULL-floating rear axle. More costly to manufacture—but QUALITY comes first with Studebaker.

Take another of the Sixes that costs a few hundred dollars more than this SIX and you'll find that it has no brake-equalizer—while the only other brake-equalizer like the one that Studebaker uses is on a $5,000 car.

Other Sixes, you'll find, all of them higher in price, drive thro' the springs—don't care to go to the expense of a design that calls for radius rods, even tho' radius rods save your springs and make the car EASIER-riding. Others are using ball bearings and annular bearings, where Studebaker uses more costly but better Timken bearings.

And so you can go straight thro' this Studebaker SIX from "stem to stern" and find QUALITY that no other SIX within hundreds of dollars of its price begins to give. Quality that's built into it"—because it's a

—to Run

And so, too, when you get this Studebaker SIX on the roads, you find that you keep on paying less. You find that if it's ECONOMY to buy it—it's even more ECONOMY to run it.

For the simple reason that it's the LOW-upkeep-SIX.

Built to be—that's all. Low upkeep is as important as any quality in a car. When Studebaker engineers designed this car, low cost of maintenance was one of the BIG things they had in mind.

And you can see the results the minute you begin to study this SIX. For you'll find, for example, drop forgings and pressed steel used in this car where castings are used in other cars. Forgings and pressed steel are stronger, but MUCH LIGHTER, too, than the castings that other cars use.

And then, you'll find a wonderful BALANCE in the car. The chassis has been simplified by three years' of continuous and concentrated study. Every one of its units is placed with the idea of best distributing the car's weight.

The engineers have given it balanced lightness. They cut the cost of upkeep—the cost of tires and the cost of fuel. They made it a car that's easier to drive—a car that steers at the touch of two fingers, a car that hangs to the road at 60 miles an hour and a car with marvelously improved riding qualities.

And with its dignity of design and its elegance of finish, this Studebaker SIX is one of the handsomest cars you ever saw. Your eyes will tell that. But the BIG thing now is to ride in it, to drive it and to KNOW what Studebaker "balanced lightness" means. Come in and see this SIX that costs less to BUY and less to RUN—we'll welcome any test.

To Lighten the Housewife's Burdens

The Housekeeper's Council Table

Conducted by Dorothy Dolan

A Word of Advice to the Bride

By DOROTHY DOLAN.

JUNE is the bride's month. It is the month of marriage. It is the time when love realizes itself in new ties, in the founding of the home and in the making of new social relations.

Much as this great step means to the man, it means more to a woman, because if she is the normal type of woman she knows instinctively and has been reared in the thought that love, home and the ties made by husband and children are the richest and worthiest gifts God can bestow on womanhood.

She, even more than her husband, is thrilled with joy, alive with hope as she enters for the first time the cozy, attractive spot which they call their home. Whether large or small, simple or splendid, it is rightly her palace.

The Bride's Dream.

This is her dream and that of many a bride as they step across the threshold of their homes for the first time. After the flush of enthusiasm is over and she looks about the home in a quieter and steadier way often the first moment of doubt appears.

The dream has changed to reality, and she wonders if the future is to be everything she had imagined and hoped it would be. As she stops and weighs this important question she recalls the fact that many of her young friends are very happy; there are a few that are less happy. The more she thinks the more she wonders to which class she will belong.

This is the fancy picture I paint of you—young, pretty, and enthusiastic bride—as I see you settle down into a homemaker and housekeeper. Do not deceive yourself by thinking that every day in the week and every month in the year is to breathe with the perfume of joy and the sunshine of blessed contentment. There are bound to come moments of doubt and perplexity which you cannot help and over which you will have little control. Even these moments will be easier and the trials made less if you will take stock of conditions. You married your husband not because he was rich or poor but because you loved him. If you want to keep that love and want it to grow you must learn how to adapt yourself to present conditions.

The housekeeping problem can be lightened or done away with altogether if necessary, but do not rush into it ignorantly without knowing the work it implies. You may know of a home that has been wrecked because the homemaker did not know anything about homemaking and, furthermore, she did not care.

You perhaps married the man with a slim salary because you loved him when you might have had the one with a large fortune. You made a choice and now be true and loyal to the love you wanted. You have kept your hands fine and delicate, embroidering and playing the piano. Yes, they may be less fine and soft after you wash the dishes, clean the pots and pans and do the weekly washing. All these things and much more must be done conscientiously and well if you want to make your home clean and attractive.

You know your husband is a fine, energetic young man, fired with the right kind of ambition for his family. Though he cannot boast of wealth, he came from a good, comfortable home. His mother is a capable and practical housekeeper. This means that she is an experienced cook. Do not waste your time and his patience apologizing for the poorly made and tasteless dishes you have been giving him ever since you were married. Instead of giving your time and allowance with your music or dancing lessons expend them in becoming a good cook. If you have no natural aptitude it will take time and patience, but if you stick to it perseveringly your failures are bound to lead to successes. Try at first to learn by yourself, for experience is the hardest and therefore the safest teacher. You will find the menus and recipes in the daily papers and the housekeeping department in some of the women's magazines of splendid assistance. After making an honest effort, should you find the work taxing, take some cooking lessons at a school or in a class with some of your friends.

Cooking Is Easy.

After a month's time of stumbling and failing, you will adapt yourself to the kitchen and dish washing problems, but you still have failed, because your grocery and butcher bills are enough to break a bank. Dear young woman, you must learn that love means economy and thrift, so, instead of ordering over the telephone, do your own marketing every day. Learn without any further waste of time and money just what your family needs are. Try to get the best food for the least money. It will not take you long to learn that mutton chops are a good sive parts of the beef

THIS illustration shows the connection made by two columns. In the opening a three or four paneled screen may be set when preparations for a meal are in progress or company is being entertained in the living-room part. No curtains are hung and the screen may be removed, as the dining-room furniture is not objectionable. The walls in both rooms are plain, with a dropped border in cream to match the ceiling.

Home Decoration and Furnishing

By MME. MAISON.

THESE lines surely are from the heart, and the truth portrayed is a vital one, for with the responsibility of a home and "one glad woman's eyes" many a man takes courage to go out and battle to the death to keep that same home and the dear woman in it safe and comfortable. Real estate dealers say that small houses and even one-story cottages are increasingly in demand. Living-rooms combined with the dining-room are quite in favor where space must be utilized to the utmost, and with careful handling such an arrangement may be made not only pleasing but economical.

The illustration shows the connection made by two columns. In the opening a three or four paneled screen may be set when preparations for a meal are in progress or company is being entertained in the living-room part. No curtains are hung and the screen may be removed, as the dining-room furniture is not objectionable. The walls in both rooms are plain, with a dropped border in cream to match the ceiling.

There is no plate rail, and while many people still cling to the overtable lighting I would much prefer to depend on the side lights, with candles on the table. However, four or five chains with lights in dull opalescent shades are not as bad as the hideous domes which were the accepted thing in flats for so many years. Rugs to match should be used in both rooms, and a rather good arrangement is to put sections of bookcases on either side of the column up three or four feet, thus making a division that is easily removed should the space be needed for a dance or a reception. The tops furnish a good place for bowls and jars of flowers. A room I saw divided in this way was charming.

Redecorating a House.

I have a front living-room facing southwest which needs redecorating. My rug is new and has many soft colors in browns and Indian pinks, with a little green oriental pattern. The room is high (eleven feet), with front bow window; room fifteen feet square opening into dining-room at back, and hall on left done in dull red. Can you suggest an artistic effect? The woodwork I would like done over again in white. The walls were paneled in green heavy crepe paper before, with cream ceiling and drop, as walls are high. I have to replace curtains, so can get them to harmonize with walls, but thought as the rug was rather conspicuously figured perhaps plain would be in better taste. Shall I use overcurtains and shall I take down the scrollwork between double doors? If you will kindly make a suggestion I will be very thankful.

M. W. S.

Use a putty or taupe color in the living-room, and I hope you can do the dining-room in the same color, using a soft rose in the hall. Have the woodwork ivory white, and take down the grillwork. Use a plain net for curtains with side and cross drapery (lambrequins) to take away from the height. Cretonnes could be used if you keep the walls plain. A soft old blue or a dull rose would go well with the walls. As your ceilings are so high you should do all you can to make them appear lower, so drop the border and have a picture molding.

HOME.

By James Whitcomb Riley.

I CRAVE, dear Lord,
No boundless hoard
Of gold and gear,
No jewels fine,
Nor lands, nor kine,
Nor treasure-heaps of anything—
Let a little hut be mine,

Where at the hearthstone I may hear
The cricket sing,
And have the shine
Of one glad woman's eyes to make,
For my poor sake,
Our simple home a place divine.

Novelties In Home Entertainment

By DAME CURTESY.

MEMBERS of a senior class who were graduated gave their fellows a most charming evening as a "farewell." The best of all was the entire class participated and co-operated on arranging a series of "life" pictures which they did in pantomime. I can only give the outline, for such things must be worked out individually with all the local color that makes them entertaining. The first scene was "The Beginning of the Year." One can imagine the girls and boys arriving, some with suitcases, the janitor with a trunk on his shoulder, the hand-shaking, the few tears shed by a homesick one, etc.

Scene two may be "The Initiation," with weird red and blue lights, a goat dimly outlined and the trembling victims.

"The Spread" will be an especially interesting picture, with pickle bottles, cheese and fudge, with the participants in grotesque costumes.

After this should come "The Office," with the culprit in dejection before a stern "head master." If there has been a notable school victory in athletic games, this will make another title, with pennants, yells and ribbons in evidence. A "Sleigh Ride" makes another attractive "picture," or any portrayal of an especially interesting happening. At last show "The Farewell," the members of the class saying good-by to the principal and teachers as they softly sing the class song.

The setting for these pictures may all be carefully worked out and I assure you the work will be well worth while. We are just beginning to wake up to the value of pantomime, and the popularity of moving pictures will continue,

House Warming Shower

A charming girl who was married away from home was honored when she returned by this unusual and very acceptable shower.

The couple went right into the cottage which the bridegroom had built, and about two dozen of their best friends went there one evening soon after the arrival (having announced their coming by telephone), each one carrying a parcel marked "for the new house." All the packages were placed in a clothes basket, and what overflowed were tied to the handles; some of the boys (I should say, men) carried brooms, feather dusters, a wash board was fastened about one chap's neck bearing a placard saying "Cleanliness Is Next to Godliness"; he produced soap from his pockets and carried a large scrubbing brush and a package of "Gold Dust."

The gardener of the crowd had a hoe, rake and spade; another man trundled a wheelbarrow; one had a pair of clipping sheers and one a small sickle.

The girls had dusters, tea towels, bath towels, kitchen aprons, pantry shelf paper, broom bags, etc. I assure you it was the merriest kind of a time. At 10 o'clock an innocent looking suitcase was produced containing sandwiches neatly wrapped in waxed paper, olives, salted nuts and a jar of potato salad. Coffee was made on the new stove and paper napkins and plates were used, the bride producing her wedding spoons for the occasion.

A Budget of Questions.

When married outside of your home town, should you send announcement cards to brothers? They already know of the event. In writing a note of thanks for a wedding gift, how do you word it? Does the bride acknowledge it in her name only? What size stationery do you use? Upon what occasions do you use cards 5¼ by 3¼ inches with monograms engraved? Will not have time to embroider my linen before marriage. Expect to do it afterward. In that event whose initial shall I use? In engraving silver and linen to give as wedding gifts, whose initials are used? Does a lady arise to acknowledge an introduction? Who is introduced first, lady or gentleman, younger or older person? CURIOUS.

While it is not absolutely necessary to send brothers the cards, I should advise doing so, for they doubtless would be glad to see them and perhaps keep them among the family archives. Use the cards mentioned or note paper. A stationer will supply the correct size with envelopes to match. The bride should acknowledge the gifts in the name of herself and husband. If you will send me a self-addressed envelope in care of the paper I will be glad to tell you more about writing these notes of thanks. After you are married use your initials as you now sign your name with the last letter of your new name, thus making a monogram of two, three or four letters, as the case may be; or you can use just the last initial for your married name. It is polite to rise when being introduced, the man's name is mentioned first and a young person is presented to an older one.

TALKS With the WOMAN WHO WORKS

THEY were three girl friends—they were more than friends — they were chums. Had they been men, they would have designated themselves as pals. Their work had brought them together and similarity of tastes had made them friends. They took their luncheons together every day, talked over their new clothes and enjoyed most of their amusements in common.

They had never had a heated argument until they undertook to consider the important question of their summer outing. It did not take them any time to decide that they wanted three weeks instead of two, and that they wanted as much fun as any three happy girls could possibly have for their money.

"It is all settled in my mind what we shall do to have an ideal outing," exclaimed the youngest of the three. "Let's go to a summer resort where they have tea every afternoon and dances every evening. It is just the things we get so little time for when we are working. Every girl wants to be a high-flyer sometimes."

The oldest of the three young women was surprised and, worse still, displeased by the suggestion. She answered: "Look here, young woman, if this is your idea of a vacation, be sure and do not count on me. I have my nerves strung to a high key all year round, and do not think I shall look upon all this excitement as a vacation. I want a chance to rest, to have plenty of peace of mind and body. I want to sleep and lounge about in a wrapper to my heart's content."

"I tell you you're both wrong," exclaimed the third girl. "It is just as foolish to rust out as to wear out. You only imagine that you need 5 o'clock teas every afternoon supplemented by dances every evening to give you a good time. As for you, Kate, do you need a wrapper and a rocking chair to give you renewed strength and energy? You know that you can get rest without rusting out completely.

"I am sure my plan will meet with your approval. Let us play camp fire girls as though we were children. This means we are to spend our three weeks' holiday in a camp near a turbid stream. We won't have to buy a camp because I can borrow one from some friends. They have a canoe and I'll be the teacher and show you girls how to paddle. Don't get frightened, you won't drown. You must have absolute confidence in me as your teacher. This is the secret I have been holding from you ever since we got to know each other. I am determined to give you girls something of a vacation like those I enjoyed when I was a camp fire girl. Our morning baths will be taken in a cold turbulent stream to the music of splashing and plenty of laughter.

"There will be plenty of time to rest and loaf, but we shall have to earn our repose. Yes, earn it by washing dishes, cooking over a camp fire and tidying up as well——"

"I don't see where the dancing and fun is coming in at this rate."

"You need not worry, Miss Society Girl; you will have your share of parties and dances. We are going to invite some of our friends, week-ends. There will be a small camp for the men, and the girls will double up with us."

"Capital!" exclaimed the Society Girl. "Most splendid," added the one seeking repose. Less than an hour's time and a little pleasant argument helped to decide how these three girls are to enjoy their summer's holiday.

For the Woman Who Works at Home

There are many ways of making a home if you will only stop to think and reason things out. If you have a large and attractive home in the suburbs or in the country you can rent it out for three or four months. You may like a change from the country to a summer resort or a long trip for part of the summer. This will pay for your outing and a part of your winter's household expenses.

VIVIAN'S Heart to Heart Chat

SHE was a plain-looking woman with an average education and ordinary personality. She came from a middle-class family. So you see she had no special beauty, charm, no fortune to recommend. She would not have been surprised had fate marked her for a spinster.

Therefore she, even more than her friends, was surprised beyond words when one of the wealthiest brokers in New York asked her to become his wife. She was so abashed that it took her six months or more to realize what had happened, and their anxious friends composed themselves in the thought that the wealthy broker would realize that he had made a mistake in taking this kind of woman for a wife before a year had passed.

The first year of the marriage was marked by the fact that in spite of their wealth they were both happy and even more in love than when they married. They celebrated their tenth, twentieth and even twenty-fifth anniversary. He showed himself prouder of his wife and their affection than he was of his fortune and his successes.

This seemed paradoxical, for he appeared to be a materialistic type of man. His friends thought he was too greatly absorbed in stocks and money matters to value affection even in his wife.

The entire mystery of their love and happiness was cleared in this toast he drank to his wife at their anniversary celebration:

"I am a happy man because I love my home and you. You were the first and only woman who taught me what love meant and retained the love you called into being.

"This you have done by your untold devotion, by your sunshiny disposition and abundance of common sense. These are qualities which every man looks for in the woman he weds, because he nearly always lacks one and sometimes all of them. Though I am one of those unfortunate men who had none of these qualities until you gave me the superabundance of your virtues.

"You have proved to me through twenty-five years of daily experience that love is the greatest thing in the world. Everything else is nothing compared with the love which can exist between husband and wife.

"I wish to tell our lady friends who are with us that if they want to hold their husbands' affections they can do more with a charming smile and common sense than with handsome gowns and costly jewels.

"Do not forget, women, that you can look well in your husbands' eyes if you are always cheerful and make the best of conditions. We men do not always make the best of things because we have many things to try us, and some of us are naturally bad-tempered. You women by tact and poise can iron out the wrinkles and make our lives sweet and worth while. That is what my wife has done for me and what every women can do for her husband if she makes an earnest effort. This is my toast to my wife and advice to all the ladies present."

Dear Vivian—I asked my husband to give me an allowance and we agreed on a sum which we considered fair with his income. For a while I managed fairly well, but as soon as I commenced to buy a few extra clothes and furnishings for our home I got into debt. The whole sum was $50, but by economical management I have been able to reduce the amount one-half. I do not see any way of paying the entire amount. What would you advise?

A WORRIED WIFE.

By all means tell your husband. If there is anything that will destroy love it is deception practiced by either husband or wife. If you want your husband to play fair with you in all things you must do the same by him. He will think well of you for confessing, though this confession involves a partial failure on your part. He will show you how to become a better manager.

Appetizing Menus for Your Sunday Meals

BREAKFAST.

Strawberries and Cream.
Poached Eggs on Toasted Muffins.
Tea, Coffee or Cocoa.

DINNER.

Consomme in Cup.
Boiled Salmon. Shoestring Potatoes.
Steak in Buttered Crumbs.
Coleslaw. Toasted Crackers with Cheese.
Peach Shortcake.

SUPPER.

Broiled Sardines with Brown Sauce.
Cheese Potatoes. Vegetable Salad.
Marshmallow Pudding.

Steak in Buttered Crumbs—Take two cupfuls bread crumbs. Turn on to a platter. Cut two pounds of rump or round steak in palm-sized slices. Butter on both sides and season with salt and pepper. Cover well with crumbs. Broil over a bed of redhot coals. Be careful not to scorch. Serve with browned potatoes, celery relish, stewed tomato macaroni, or creamed cabbage.

Boiled Salmon—Set fish on with cold water. Let come to a boil slowly and simmer until well done. Throw in one tablespoonful salt and serve with plain drawn butter sauce.

Shoestring Potatoes—Wash as many potatoes as you think you will need. Peel and lay in water for three hours. When ready have your fat almost boiling. Slice your potatoes lengthwise as fine as shoestrings. Put into a wire basket and set it into fat. It will brown in four or five minutes. When they come to the top of the fat they are done.

Marshmallow Pudding—Take one-half pound of marshmallows and cut into quarters. Pour over these a can of shredded pineapple. Dust with powdered sugar and let stand. When ready to serve whip a cupful cream and cover pudding with same.

Coleslaw—Put a small, fine grained cabbage through a meat chopper. Add one small grated onion. Mix well; springle with salt. Add French dressing and serve in nests of lettuce leaves. Garnish with cubes of aspic jelly.

Society

MARIETTA, GA.

Miss Lamar Latham has returned to Washington, on account of her mother's illness. Miss Latham has been a guest of Miss Evelyn Clay.

Mrs. Wayland Camp and Mrs. Tom Read gave a handkerchief shower for Miss Willie May Blair on Tuesday afternoon, at which the blue-bird idea predominated. The entertainment was at the pretty new bungalow of Mrs. Camp on Kennesaw avenue. Daisies, white lilies and bluettes were used in decorating the living room and dining room, with flights of blue birds on the walls and suspended by invisible wires. White candles and white mints were used. The ice cream was in the form of blue-birds, and the cake was white. Punch was served by Miss Frances Wilkie, assisted by Misses Christine Blair, Pauline Manning, Nannie Connor, Pearl Roberts and Pauline Read. Miss Blair wore white French organdie with pink hat trimmed in pink plumes and pink roses, and she wore Killarney rosebuds. Misses Cora Brown, Jean Wallace, Annie Waddell, Christine and Emmie Dobbs assisted in serving.

The graduating exercises of the Marietta High school occurred on Friday evening, May 21, at the auditorium. Those receiving diplomas were Misses Gertrude Smith and Annie Gober and Messrs. Steve White and Eugene White. After these exercises were concluded, the class, assisted by a few from the third class, presented Goldsmith's play, "She Stoops to Conquer," under the direction of Miss Earle Carter, who also took part in the play. The parts were well assigned, and the acting very creditable, indeed.

Mrs. Edward Massey gave a hosiery shower for Miss Willie May Blair on Thursday afternoon, at her pretty home on Cherokee street. Tables were set on the lawn and games were played. Mrs. Willie Milner, Mrs. James Harbin, Miss Cambles, Mrs. Howard McNair and Mrs. Bruce Little received prizes. Refreshments were served by Misses Christine Blair, Julia McNeel and Jeannette Anderson. Mrs. Grover Cohen, Mrs. J. R. Brumby and Mrs. Floyd Northcutt assisted the hostess in entertaining the guests. The shower was arranged on a table with a "Maypole" in the center decorated with red rambler roses and satin ribbons. The gifts were attached to the ribbons. The honoree, Miss Blair, was dainty and sweet in flowered taffeta.

Mrs. Len Baldwin entertained at her home on Forrest avenue on Tuesday, the 18th, in honor of Misses Gerdine and McMichael. The others present of the city schools were invited, and a delightful afternoon was spent.

MISS LOUISE COUPER,

The lovely young daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hamilton Couper. She received her diploma last week from Washington seminary.

AUGUSTA'S SOCIAL SIDE

Augusta, May 29.—(Special Correspondence.)—The marriage of Miss Bessie Walton to Mr. Harold Sloan Lewis, at noon on Wednesday, in the First Baptist church, was witnessed by a large company of their friends. The chancel was attractively decorated with palms, ferns and smilax, with many candles gleaming through the green. Similar designs were the flowers used, and ornamental baskets filled with these showy blossoms, surrounded all pedestals at effective points in the decorations. As the Lohengrin wedding march was sounded first came the ushers, Mr. Robert Walton, Jr., with Mr. E. A. Hayden and Mr. C. P. Bailey with Mr. Charles Lewis. These were followed by the bride's sister, Miss Virginia Walton, as maid of honor. Next came two dainty little flower girls, Mildred and Happy Walton, strewing pink roses in the aisle. At the altar, who then entered with her father. The groom, with his best man, Mr. Bertram Dales, met them at the altar, where Rev. M. Ashby Jones pronounced the marriage ceremony in an impressive manner. Immediately after the wedding the bride and groom left on a sojourn in the North Carolina mountains. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Walton, of North Augusta, and is a young woman of charming personality and many graces, who is much admired by a large circle of friends. The groom is a handsome young business man, who is at the head of the Municipal Improvement company, and after their stay in the North Carolina mountains, he and his bride will be for some time at Medina, S. C., where his company is engaged upon an extensive contract.

Miss Alberta Glerken entertained the members of the Coterie club with a luncheon at Charnicleide's club on Thursday afternoon. After a pleasant motor trip to the country there were three tables of bridge, after which a tempting luncheon was served. The high-score prize went to Mrs. Ulrich Olofson, who received a pair of silk stockings. The two guests of the occasion, Miss Frank and Miss Pritchard, received dainty boxes of correspondence cards as souvenirs of the pleasant occasion.

The schools of the city, public and private, are entering upon their examinations and public exercises, and these are trying days for those on the anxious seat, and an important era in the life of those who have the public stunts to perform. The girls are full of military boys, plays in some of the schools and commencement essays, addresses and class songs in others signalize "the day" for which all other days were made."

The congregation of the First Presbyterian church enjoyed a most inspiring at the Telfair building last night under the auspices of the Pastor's Aid society.

Several of the Augusta dancers who made such a hit at the recent "Musicales" have been secured to repeat their special dances in the "Revelas" to be given by Mr. Eugene Traders, in Waynesboro, on June 8. Miss Adele Petit, Miss Alice Hull and Miss Elvira Baxter will be among the stars of the occasion.

RUSSIA OFFERS FIELD FOR AMERICAN TRADE

Goodyear Tire and Rubber Co. Official Returns With Story of Interest to Dealers.

"The field for American business development in Russia is unlimited," says W. V. Logan, of the Goodyear Tire and Rubber company, who has just returned from the czar's domain. "All evidence is that Russia is having a great awakening, and there is no end to the possibilities there for American business institutions—whose representatives study Russian conditions and prepare for business realizing that Russia is not the United States, and that American business methods must be modified and adapted when applied there.

"Germans have had much of Russia's commerce. No matter what the outcome it will be long—if ever—before the war feeling subsides. And that makes America's opportunity. Few people in this country appreciate Russia's vastness, its lack of development in industries of its own and its possibilities.

"Take the automobile industry; when the war started there were only 12,500 motor vehicles in Russia—trucks, pleasure cars, large and small. The government purchased between $15,000,000 and $20,000,000 worth while I was there. After the war American automobile products will be very well known. The introduction is now being made. It is up to American manufacturers to follow the introduction if they care for the enormous business that can be theirs."

Mr. Logan sailed from New York in January. To reach Petrograd he went first to London; to New Castle by rail; by 850-ton steamer to Bergen, Norway; thence to Christiana and Stockholm; from there, instead of across the Baltic, he went to the north of Sweden, within 36 miles of the Arctic circle, going around the north of the Baltic in reindeer sleighs; through Finland; then by train to Petrograd, the trip from London requiring seven days. He remained in Petrograd ten weeks, except for two short trips to Moscow.

"In Russia it seems that people either have plenty of money or none at all. Those who have are great spenders. Food supplies are apparently plentiful, but city prices—hotel prices—are away up. I saw strawberries at 35 cents apiece; apples at 75 cents. Hotel fare is affected now by the fact that most of the better cooks and chefs are with the army.

"I want to say just a word in tribute to Ambassador Marye, at Petrograd. Nothing can exceed the friendliness, the courtesy and untiring energy with which he and his staff are performing their difficult duties."

Mr. Business Man:

Why Not Make a Vacation Out of Your Tour West?

Many of the most successful and widely-traveled business men are booking their family parties with us, as they realize the perilousness in undertaking alone so long a journey. They prefer to leave the details and responsibility to those who are making it their life-time business. In fact, several party organizers who have been conducting local parties to Europe have joined forces with us because of its multitudinous complexities and endless detail. To be candid, we have given two years of every-day effort to complete the many details that there might be nothing left undone that would add to the pleasure and comfort of our patrons. In fact, 100 distinct contracts have been made necessary in order to leave no worthy feature out. Then, with us, you have no worry about your baggage, Pullman and hotel reservations. All of which we entirely relieve you, making it a restful Tour of pleasure and sight-seeing.

Our next Tour leaves June 2, and every two weeks following. A few more reservations yet available.

A Cushion Tire For Light or High-Speed Trucks

The call for a Cushion Motor Truck Tire, essentially practical, has been answered—answered so completely that countless commercial car owners have ceased to concern themselves further as to tire equipment.* Here are solved the problems of economy of operation, increased mileage, utmost car-protection and car-durability. Whether for light Commercial Delivery Car or light Truck, you'll find Motz Cushion Tires ideal.

MOTZ Cushion Tires

How It Was Done

Men asked, "How can such a tire be built? How can a tire, without compressed air, give the car ample protection?"

A combination of the following structural features has accomplished it:

First—The Motz Cushion Tire is chemically different from the ordinary tire. Only the famous "417" rubber is used. These tires contain no hard rubber or metal. They are lively rubber throughout.

Second—The Motz Cushion Tire contains more rubber than other tires of corresponding carrying capacity—almost FIFTY PER CENT more. This extra volume of rubber adds further resilience.

Third—But the biggest feature is the form and outline—the physical construction. Note the double treads, the undercut sides, the slantwise bridges; patented features that others can't use.

The dual treads give great tractive area. The undercut sides permit the tire to give and yield quickly, thus absorbing sudden shocks; the slantwise bridges, when the tread is depressed, are stretched. They pull the tire back to normal shape quick as a flash.

These features, combined, produce a degree of resilience hitherto unknown, save in pneumatics.

Fits All Rims The Motz Cushion Tire fits all standard pneumatic rims of clincher type. For further information, call at our store in person or by phone.

BIG TIME PLANNED BY WIRE SOCIETY AT VARIETY SHOW

Unique and original cards have been issued announcing a "Telephone Variety Show" to be given at the Atlanta theater on Thursday evening, June 3, by the Telephone and Telegraph society of Atlanta, an organization composed of more than a thousand male employees of the Southern Bell Telephone and Telegraph company, the Cumberland Telephone and Telegraph company, the American Telephone and Telegraph company, the Western Union Telegraph company and the Western Electric company.

The entertainment will be in the nature of a minstrel and vaudeville show, and many amusing stunts will be pulled. The society has given several of these affairs in the years that which have always afforded much pleasure to the members of the society and their many friends. A small admission fee of 25 cents will be charged to defray the expenses. It is not given for the purpose of profit, but purely for pleasure and enjoyment.

The following poem aptly expressing the nature of the show has been printed on the announcement cards:

"If you dearly love to cry
And to sit with fishy eye
Watching funerals roll by—Stay away!

"But if you're out for fun
You can get it on the run.
Save two bits on, my son—
It will pay."

Kitty Gordon Coming, And Jack Wilson, Too, To Forsyth Next Week

Kitty Gordon is vaudeville's foremost star and has never been seen in Atlanta because she has been in the larger cities. She was headliner last week at the Palace theater, in New York, and with her company registered one of the greatest hits ever recorded in that theater. Determined to give Atlanta folks the best that the profession affords, Jake Wells induced the beautiful star to take a trip to Atlanta, and she will headline the bill the week of June 7.

Miss Gordon and her company will be a treat, one of the genuine events of a season that promises to break every amusement record of the days thereafter.

Just to be sure that there is going to be a sure enough show, Mr. Wells contracted for the appearance of Jack Wilson as the added feature to the bill. Jack Wilson is the most popular of the funmakers who have been introduced in Atlanta.

The advance sale will start tomorrow morning, and with Long Tack Sam heading the bill this week the box office men are going to have to work overtime all week.

Johnson Purchases Dakota Hotel Lease; Plans Improvements

OLIVER JOHNSON.

Oliver Johnson, assistant manager of the Hotel Savannah, Savannah, Ga., has purchased the lease and furnishings of the Hotel Dakota, Atlanta, from Mrs. Lowry Porter and Mrs. Crass, the owners, and will assume charge of this well-known Atlanta hostelry on June 1.

Mr. Johnson is planning to expend about $10,000 in refurnishing and redecorating the interior of the Dakota.

Mr. Johnson not only has hundreds of friends in this city, but all over the entire south. He was cashier of the Aragon hotel when it was first opened.

For the past year Mr. Johnson has been assistant manager of the Hotel Savannah, and previous to that he was six years in Los Angeles operating hotel and cafe, and also in Seattle, Wash. He has also been with many Florida resorts.

Lincoln Highway "Movie" Men Are Given Wonderful Receptions on the Route

The enthusiastic receptions accorded the motorcade of moving picture representatives of the Lincoln Highway association are making progress extremely slow for the three automobiles. Every city and town has arrayed itself in its best bib and tucker, and brought forth its most prominent citizens so that the camera will record its most charming side. In several instances the back track has been taken to catch pictures of civic scenes that were impossible on the first visit.

Mayor Blankenburg welcomed the three machines, one of which is a Studebaker, to Philadelphia in a speech delivered in the court of the city hall. The camera could not record his words, but it caught him in the act of telling the tourists what a national force for good he considered the highway.

Return trips were made to Newark, Princeton and Trenton. The last word from the Studebaker press car was that the party was hard at work filming the battlefield of Gettysburg.

PRINTERS WILL PAY HONOR TO DEAD TODAY

For several years the last Sunday of May has been set aside by the International Typographical union for the observance of memorial services for the dead of the order. This occasion will be observed in Atlanta by exercises in the afternoon at the printers' lot in Oakland cemetery and a special sermon at the Second Baptist church in the evening.

R. L. Whites, president of the local union, will preside over the exercises of the afternoon, and there will be a song service in addition to a prayer and an address by the Rev. Jere Moore, chaplain of the union. After the reading of the death roll by N. H. Kirkpatrick the graves will be decorated by the woman's auxiliary.

"The Power of Love Among Men" will be the subject of the sermon in the evening by Dr. John E. White. There will also be special solos and singing by the choir.

ENGINEER GREEN HIT BY UMBRELLA SHED

Waycross, Ga., May 29.—(Special.)—Hit by the umbrella shed at the union station here J. A. Green, well-known Atlantic Coast Line engineer, has a painful gash in his head, above the left eye. He was hurt while bringing the "Dixie Flyer" into Waycross. In leaning from his cab to see the cause of his engine's failure to move as he thought she should, he got his head too far from the window and struck the shed before he was aware of his danger. Luckily, the injury was more painful than it was serious.

"HE DIDN'T GOLIGHTLY."

The Atlanta National Bank was an easy winner over the Southern Railway Traffic Office, by score of 12 to 1. Southern Railway's only run was the result of a home run by Corrie in the second. Golightly pitched a great game, striking out nineteen and giving up only four hits, and besides his hitting was a feature, he getting four hits out of four times up. Ewing scored four runs. Wasser pitched good ball until the seventh inning, but the Bank boys got next to him and scored three runs. The umpiring of Grist was good.

JACKSON HILL WINS.

By Frank Taylor.

Before a good crowd, mostly of the fair sex, Jackson Hill defeated West End Presbyterian by the score of 15 to 7. The features of the game for Jackson Hill were the fielding and hitting of Slider and Bedingfield; each of these lads secured three safties. For West End, Hamilton and Grennor played good ball. Until the fourth round Jackson Hill was not able to get on, but in this round they came to life and made eleven runs. Cook, for Jackson Hill, only gave up four hits, pitching superb ball throughout the whole game. The game went like this:

Boys' Club League.

BRAVES BEAT SENATORS.

The final game in the first session of the Boys' Club league was played at Piedmont Park Saturday morning between the Braves and the Senators. Each team had played five games and each had lost but one. Great enthusiasm was displayed because the teams were very evenly matched.

The Braves were able to get the long end of the score through some lucky hits, which with proper playing of the infield, would have been easy outs. Freeman pitched splendid ball for the Senators, but was very poorly supported. The Senators failed to come across with the necessary hits in the pinches.

The winners of this game will be banqueted next Friday night at the Young Men's Christian association building.

The captains for the new league have been elected and they are: B. P. Wood, J. T. Freeman, Harry Markeles, Schaul Greiniman. They will select their teams next week. The first games of the new league will be played at Piedmont Park next Saturday.

CENTRAL LOST.

Central Presbyterian suffered a defeat at the hands of St. Luke's by the score of 8 to 5, at Ponce de Leon hollow. Features of the game was the batting of Hurt and Hubert for St. Luke's, and the fielding of Bearden for St. Luke's and Burnett for Central Presbyterian.

With two men on bases in the eighth Hubert came to the platter and slammed a three-bagger over left fielder's head. This practically won the game for St. Luke's.

EXPO WON AGAIN.

Expo Mills defeated Fulton Bag Saturday by the one-sided score of 13 to 1. Lawson was invincible while he was in the box, not allowing a hit for six innings. Walt Vinson was the hitting star of the afternoon, getting four two-base hits out of five trips up. Williams, of Fulton Bag, did better than Bailey, who preceded him, and but for ragged support might have kept the score closer.

The Southern Railway Freight Traffic team is one of the strongest amateur organizations in the city. The nine is in the city league, and so far has won one and lost two, giving them a percentage of .333 and a ranking of third in the league standing. The team has been strengthened recently, and it is expected that the rest of the city league will have to go some to head them off. The men in the picture are: Top row, from left to right, H. B. "—as compact as a Swiss watch"

The motor of the Chalmers New Six is "as compact as a Swiss watch."

It is an entirely new type of high speed valve-in-head motor with overhead cam shaft.

It's this motor that makes this car so economical, especially in repair cost.

It's this motor that makes the car so efficient—

Makes it get away like a racer, climb hills like a chamois.

And it has a brand new type of spring suspension which makes it ride like a Pullman.

Sold at the lowest price that a Chalmers car was ever sold—$1400.

It's a thoroughbred.

The Little Convent Girl who lost Two (2) Husbands in a Day.

"O, Gee! I'm Glad I'm Free," Sang Genevieve Baisden as She Danced Out of Her Lawyer's Office—She Had Two Husbands When She Didn't Care for Even One, so No Wonder She Is Going to Fight Clear of Marital Waters for Some Time to Come.

Genevieve Baisden Accepted One Husband Through Error, Had Another One Thrust Upon Her as a Dinner Favor and Disposed of Both in One Divorce Decree.

By BERT LENNON.

A JUDICIAL wand was waved over the head of pretty Genevieve Baisden—and, lo and behold, two husbands passed out of her life. It was all so wonderful, to her so like the tales from the Arabian Nights, that the girl turned a rosy red cheek to her lawyer and beseeched him to tweak it.

"I want to be sure that I am not dreaming," she said. Convinced that she was very much awake, Genevieve Baisden danced out of the lawyer's office singing, "Oh, gee, I'm glad I'm free—no wedding bells for me." And to prove that she meant every word of the lilting melody the girl has since been deaf to the proposals of several admirers.

In order to relate how "The Beautiful Genevieve," as she is known to her friends, came to have two husbands at one and the same time we must go back seven milestones in the life of the girl whose career has been kaleidoscopic, to say the least. She was then 16 years old. Ten of these sixteen years had been spent in a Cincinnati convent.

Finds First Love In Southland.

During a semester vacation the girl, then known as Genevieve Hannan, went to visit friends and relatives in Dalton, Ga. There she met Albert V. Baisden. A fine looking fellow, he had personality and magnetism—a combination that worked havoc with the heart neutrality of this mere child. Besides, he told her of the brilliant future that lay before him. Baisden was a mining man, so the girl understood, and in the mountains of Cuba lay hidden his fortune.

Genevieve listened to the love song of her Prince Charming, and ere her brief visit in the South was ended she had become the wife of a man old enough to be her father. It was a distinct shock to the family of the young bride.

The newly married couple moved to Chicago. After a month or so it was rumored that all was not well in the Baisden home. Genevieve had seen no returns from the Cuban mines. She bore her suspicions bravely for a time, and then asked Baisden for an explanation. He gave it—but the child wife was not satisfied. They quarreled.

Genevieve talked of "going home to mother" when the household bills remained unpaid. Before she could carry the threat into execution cruel fate took a hand. The Hannan family had suffered business reverses, and if Genevieve returned SHE WOULD HAVE TO GO TO WORK TO HELP DEFRAY EXPENSES. This for a girl who all her life had been accustomed to luxuries.

First Aid to Broken Heart.

At the end of three months of married life the couple separated. Genevieve told of having been pitched from a second-story window; also of being thrown so violently across a bed that she became ill.

In Colorado lived a grandfather of Genevieve Baisden's. He held a well-paying government position, and, hearing of the girl's plight, wrote her a letter. Would she not come West to recuperate? The mountain air would bring back health and strength. Genevieve went to Colorado.

Though the color returned to her cheeks, she remained broken in spirit.

"I was deceived, lied to and abused," she told her grandfather. "I do not want to be known as Albert Baisden's wife longer." And so to appease her the doting grandfather got hold of some court papers, filled in the blank spaces with names and legal verbiage, and showed them to the girl.

"Here is your divorce, Genevieve," he said.

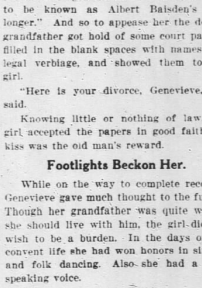
Knowing little or nothing of law, the girl accepted the papers in good faith. A kiss was the old man's reward.

Footlights Beckon Her.

While on the way to complete recovery Genevieve gave much thought to the future. Though her grandfather was quite willing she should live with him, the girl did not wish to be a burden. In the days of her convent life she had won honors in singing and folk dancing. Also she had a good speaking voice.

Why not go on the stage?

At first Genevieve rebelled at the thought. From convent to footlights was a far step—but she needs do something; so casting aside her puritanical ideas, and assuming the name of "Billie Lee," she sought an engagement in a Denver theater.



Goes on the Stage.

She made good, as the critics say, right from the start. Her particular part on the program was impersonations.

Not long afterward her grandfather died without revealing his deception about the divorce. The mother of Genevieve knew that such a decree had not been granted, but put off telling the girl. Baisden had disappeared and Genevieve, in the five years that passed, gave no hint that she again contemplated matrimony.

One night in February, 1914, Genevieve Baisden, or "Billie Lee," as she was known to stage friends, was about to retire in a hotel at Los Angeles when the telephone bell rang. An actress friend was on the other end of the line.

"Oh, Billie, you must not go to bed," said the voice over the wire. "I have discovered three acquaintances in Los Angeles. They want me to arrange a little party. You must join us at supper. Beulah says she will come."

Beulah also was an actress.

Genevieve consented to join the party. One of the three men was Arthur N. Harris of Dallas, Texas, said to be the son of wealthy parents. He paid no little attention to Genevieve during the meal, and spent his money lavishly. The wine bill ran into three figures.

"Really, I must turn my glass down," said Genevieve.

The others expostulated.

"Have one more sip," said the youth from Texas. "It will revive you."

Genevieve remembers he had big, brown eyes and a wealth of brown hair. He was not altogether bad to look at. She took another sip.

Ten Years in a Convent.

First Marriage at Sixteen.

Gets Her Bogus Divorce.

Married While You Wait.

What happened after that is hazy in the mind of Genevieve. She recalls that the girl friend who got her to join the party said she was going to marry one of the young men—and right away.

"Let's all three couples get married," suggested Beulah.

"A capital idea," said the others (all but Genevieve) in chorus.

The youth with the big, brown eyes and the wealth of brown hair took Genevieve's hand in his. And he asked her to become his wife. She did not consent. She did not refuse. She could not have said a word just then if her life depended on it.

The Feast That Led to Second Nuptial.

The Joblot Marriage Party.

Flees Her Second Husband.

Genevieve remembers of being assisted into an automobile, and of visiting an officious person who gave them some papers—the marriage licenses, no doubt; of a wild ride along a country road to the home of a person who married them. After returning to town Genevieve recalls entreating her husband to bring her back to the hotel. He did not remain there with her, but said he would come back the following day.

On awakening the next morning Genevieve found a letter that had been slipped under her door. It was from her mother, telling, after six years, how the grandfather had deceived Genevieve about being divorced from Baisden.

Genevieve was shocked. But imagine her feelings a few moments later when there came a knock at the door and the voice of young Mr. Harris exclaimed: "Hello, wifey dear!"

The occurrences of the night before filtered through the girl's mind.

Surely, she was a bigamist!

"Come back at noon, Mr. ——?" She could not even recall the last name of her newly acquired husband, let alone his given name.

"Call me Arthur," came the reply from the other side of the door. "I shall see you at noon, Genevieve."

Young Harris had no sooner stepped down the hall than the girl jumped from bed and hastily threw her belongings into a trunk. She paid her bill, and, caring not for such a thing as a theatrical contract with the penitentiary staring her in the face (?), boarded a train for the East.

She went directly to the office of a lawyer on arriving in Chicago and told him her troubles.

"I see," said the lawyer. "You want to divorce Baisden so that you can become the legal wife of Harris."

"All wrong," replied Genevieve. "I am through with the game of marriage for life."

And so, in the course of a short time, she received a decree of divorce from Baisden and an annulment of her marriage to Harris—all in one judicial decree.

Genevieve sent a nice little note to the latter, telling him not to feel sorry.

Of course, you are just dying to know if the other two girls stuck by their nuptial bargain.

"They were still married and happy the last I heard from them," said "The Beautiful Genevieve."

How Uncle Sam Protects His Soldiers

By DELIA AUSTRIAN.

THERE are few places where science has penetrated with such efficient effect as in the American army. During the last fifty years scientists have made the nations of the world realize the fact that it is as necessary to protect soldiers against disease and plague as it is to give them efficient military training and to equip them with the right kind of ammunition.

Among all the diseases of camp and hospital none is so feared as typhoid fever. Here the science of investigation has again gained the victory by means of anti-typhoid inoculation. The immense advance in camp sanitation and the great value of typhoid inoculation may be illustrated by comparing the experience of the maneuver division of regulars in Texas during its concentration from March until August, 1911, with that of the second division, Seventh Army Corps, which was organized at Jacksonville, Fla., about June 1, 1898, and remained there in camps until October.

✦ ✦ ✦

The two divisions were encamped in nearly the same latitude and for about the same length of time. Each had a good camp site and an artesian water supply of unimpeachable purity. The mean strength of the second division of the Seventh Army Corps, assembled at Jacksonville, Fla., was 10,759.

There were 2,693 certain and probable cases of typhoid, with 248 deaths from typhoid fever and 281 deaths from all diseases.

The table showing for the organizations composing the maneuver division at San Antonio, Texas, the morbidity and mortality from typhoid fever March 10 to July 10, 1911, was as follows:

The total number was 12,801; the cases of typhoid fever, certain and probable, 1; death from typhoid fever, none, and deaths from all diseases, 11.

The health of military commands is usually measured by the constantly noneffective rate which represents the average number constantly sick in each thousand men. This was for the maneuver division 22 per 1,000. The rate was 34 for all the troops in the United States for the year 1910.

The sanitary inspector usually deals directly with the regimental sanitary officer and is accompanied by him on his inspections. The latter is held responsible for the sanitary conditions of his camp, and if sanitary defects are found he is considered to be at fault unless he can show that he has made proper efforts to have them corrected.

All apparatus connected with the sanitary system is of the simplest kind, so that it can be installed quickly by the troops. Storage of garbage and kitchen refuse is forbidden. The last ten years has given a very extended experience to army veterinarians, not only in the United States, but in tropical islands, and they have become familiar with all known diseases of animals. Many of the most serious ones have never been introduced into this country. These horses are often attacked by a disease called thrush and a sickness of the heels called "scratches."

✦ ✦ ✦

Some of the foremost sanitary results have been accomplished in Porto Rico and the Philippines. This is most noticeable in the regeneration of the old Spanish prison called Bilibid in Manila. The mortality reached the abnormal proportion of 238 per thousand. Through relief from overcrowding, improved diet and proper sanitation it was reduced to 70 per thousand. By trying to combat other diseases caused by improper sanitation the death rate finally fell to 13 per thousand.

The United States took another important step in this direction when Colonel W. C. Gorgas made Cuba and the Panama Canal Zone healthy and habitable places. Less than fifteen years ago Colonel Gorgas was an inconspicuous unit in the sum total of a necessary but unnoticed department of the American army. He was a post surgeon on the plains of the West and the Southwest, attending soldiers in times of peace, together with the wives and children of officers. He recognized the mosquito as the direct cause of malaria and yellow fever. He and his assistants determined to put an end to yellow fever and malaria by destroying the mosquito. After a series of experiments, remarkable alike in their inception and successful culmination, the yellow fever was run to cover.

When Colonel Gorgas went to the Canal Zone he started his important work by fighting the mosquitoes. He found a strip of country ten miles wide and forty-six miles long with a considerable settlement of houses between. He followed the method which had rid Havana of yellow fever, of a scourge that had been epidemic for 150 years. He stopped the fever in sixteen months in the City of Panama alone. Each house was fumigated three times. They burned 100 tons of pyrethrum, 200 tons of sulphur and a large quantity of other disinfectants.

While they fought the yellow fever mosquito with chemicals and screens, they destroyed the breeding place of the malaria mosquito and drove him back several hundred yards from the camps and villages. They put wire netting into the houses and advised every one to take three grains of quinine a day. Through the efforts of Colonel Gorgas and his assistants the Canal Zone has practically been rid of yellow fever and malaria.

SAVANNAH SOCIAL NEWS

Savannah, Ga., May 29.—(Special Correspondence.)—For the brides of June a series of parties has been begun, although they will be less formal than those of the spring. For Miss Patience Barrow, whose marriage to Mr. Lionel Drew Hill will be one of the most important of the June taking place June 2, Mr. and Mrs. David C. Barrow will entertain the bridesmaids and groomsmen with an all-day yachting trip. Miss Janet Menzies, one of the bridesmaids, will give a luncheon at Bannon lodge, and Miss Mary Shotter will also give a luncheon for the bridesmaids.

For Miss Lucy Dancy, whose marriage to Frederick A. Hoyt, of Atlanta, takes place June 1, several parties have already been given. Miss Catharine Charlton entertained the bridesmaids at a bridge luncheon Monday, using Shasta daises for decoration. Mrs. R. H. Roux will entertain for her today, and Mrs. Hammond Eve, her sister, will give a luncheon before the wedding. There are a number of out-of-town guests here for both these weddings. The marriage of Miss Dorothy Harrison to Mr. Samuel Hagood Clark, on June 16, will be quieter, owing to the bride's mourning, there will be no entertainments.

Announcement was made this week by Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Scudder Nichols of the engagement of their daughter, Mary Battey, to Mr. Edward Descombe Wells. Their marriage will take place Wednesday afternoon, June 9, at St. John's church.

Mrs. Louis W. Haskell entertained Thursday for Mrs. George Haskell and for Mrs. Pierre Holst, of Sanford, Fla., who is visiting her mother, Mrs. Mulnerlyn. Mr. and Mrs. Frank P. McIntire are at their summer cottage at Tybee.

Miss Elizabeth Candler entertained with an informal on Wednesday afternoon for Miss Lucy Dancy, whose marriage to Mr. Frederick Hoyt, of Atlanta, will take place on Tuesday, June 1. The lovely decorations in the room were vases of daisies, and the afternoon was a charming one, the guests including the bride's attendants. Those present were Miss Dancy, Miss Estelle Royster, Miss Marie Dancy, Miss Elizabeth Drummond, Mrs. Hammond Eve, Mrs. William Dancy and Miss Doris Dinkins.

Mrs. Hammond Eve's party Thursday morning for Miss Dancy will be very attractive and quite informal, the guests having been invited to bring their sewing. Besides the bridesmaids, the guests will be Mrs. T. P. Bond, Mrs. Harry Hoyt Lattimore, Mrs. R. H. Roux, Mrs. Hamilton O'Connor, Miss Catharine Charlton, Miss Carrie Bassett, Mrs. C. R. Woods, Mrs. Carp Cameron and Miss Ella Clare Curtis.

Mr. and Mrs. Drew and the Misses Drew, of Cambridge, Mass., will be guests next week of Mr. and Mrs. Frank McIntire for the Barrow-Drew wedding. Miss Maude Bryan Foote, one of the bridesmaids, is here from Elizabeth, N. J., visiting Mr. and Mrs. George A. Cosen and Miss Eleanor Cosens.

Mr. and Mrs. James Menzies and Miss Helen Menzies are expected from Wilmington, N. C., June 10 to visit Miss McAlpin.

Miss Janet Menzies, who is to be one of Miss Barrow's bridesmaids, is the guest of Miss Ernestine Cutts.

Mrs. Charles Brookfield and Miss Nora Cook, who are both English by birth, left this week for England, where they will enter the war hospital service. Mrs. A. U. Hocock, Miss Cook's sister, accompanied them for a visit at home.

Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Mackall are at their summer home, The Lawn, Va. Mrs. Lester Karow will join them later.

Miss Jessie Dixon has returned from New York.

Mrs. Montague Boyd left this week for Atlanta, to spend a month with her daughter, Mrs. W. F. Shallenberger.

Mrs. Oscar R. Teague is spending a week in Jacksonville.

Mr. C. C. Bell and Miss Kate Bell returned this week from Atlantic City.

Mr. and Mrs. George A. Mercer have opened their summer home at Vernon View.

EATONTON, GA.

Miss Martha Edmondson entertained the Daughters of the Revolution on Friday at her home at Meda. A most interesting and instructive program was enjoyed by the guests, after which a course luncheon was served.

Mrs. Hamilton Reid entertained at a spend-the-day party recently in honor of Mrs. Preston Brooks, of Athens. A delightful course dinner was served in the prettily-decorated table. Those present were Mrs. A. S. Edmondson, Misses Mattie Edmondson, Julia Burnett and Marian Byrnes, of Sparta and Burnett Harris.

A delightful auto party spending the past week-end in Madison with Mr. and Mrs. M. Atkinson was composed of Misses Nina Julia Wingfield, Annie Louise Barkaloo, Mary Clay, Messrs. Atkinson, Roy Stubbs and John D. Watterson.

Miss Eunice Bronson is entertaining a most delightful house party at the "Colonnades." Those in the party are Misses Alice and Vera Crackma, Thelma Weeks, of Mississippi. Miss Jessie Davis, of South Carolina; Miss Eunice Wells, of Perry, and Louise Marshall, of Tennille.

Mr. and Mrs. Gale Riley, Misses Louise and Virginia Riley and Mary Clay, of Rogersville, Tenn., left Tuesday for St. Simons Island.

Mrs. S. R. Dighton will spend June in Virginia.

MISS HELEN PHILLIPS,
Pretty Asheville, N. C., girl, who will be delightfully entertained this week as the guest of Mrs. Henry C. Peeples.

Visitor From Asheville and Mrs. E. S. Ault entertained at a beautiful tea in honor of the visitors.

Mrs. William Leavey, of Birmingham, Mrs. William Huff, of West Point; Miss Ada Lee Timberlake, of Wake Forest, N. C., and Miss Edith Pollock, of Philadelphia.

Miss Flora Burbank entertained four tables at "42" Saturday, complimenting Miss Ada Lee Timberlake, of Wake Forest, N. C., the attractive guest of Mrs. E. C. Benton.

Mrs. William Leary, of Birmingham was honor guest at the auction and "42" party given on Thursday afternoon by Mrs. P. R. Turner at her home on College street. Mrs. Turner was assisted by Miss Inita Janes, Miss Mary Wood and Miss Caulle Ledbetter.

Complimenting Miss Ada Lee Timberlake, the guest of Mrs. C. E. Benton, Miss Myrtis Reeves was the charming hostess at "42" Monday morning. Assisting her were Miss Lena Burbank and Miss Mary Wood.

Miss Timberlake, of Wake Forest, N. C., was the honor at the enjoyable theater party Monday afternoon, given by Miss Rosa Vance and Mrs. Morgan Russell.

WEST POINT, GA.

An informal reception was held at the home of Mr. George Poer on Tuesday afternoon in honor of his seventieth birthday. The porch of this pretty home was decorated beautifully with ferns and sweetpeas. The guests were received on the porch. Assisting Mr. Poer in receiving and entertaining were his wife and children, Dr. and Mrs. John Poer, Mrs. Mary Oslin, Dr. and Mrs. Norman Poer and the grandchildren—Isabella Poer, John M. Poer, Jr., George Cobb and Norman Poer, Jr. The friends assisting were Mrs. C. O. Williams, Miss Mary Joe Williams and Mrs. George Cobb.

Mrs. Hugh Hill entertained the following guests at a lovely spend-the-day party: Mrs. Ike D. Askew, Mrs. Mary De Lamar, Mrs. John Horsley and Misses Susie Hayes and Alice Askew.

Little Miss Elizabeth Barker entertained quite a number of her friends on Tuesday afternoon at a lovely party in honor of her eighth birthday.

The Fort Tyler chapter of the U. D. C. held the regular meeting on Tuesday at the home of Mrs. D. D. Winston, conducted by Mrs. Robert Hemperley. The study of the Shiloh program was led by Mrs. L. E. Combs in most interesting manner. The same officers were re-elected to serve another year: President, Mrs. W. B. Hinson-Pitcham; vice president, Mrs. D. L. Adams; second vice president, Mrs. T. T. Zachry; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Helen Herzberg; recording secretary, Mrs. L. M. Harris; historian, Mrs. Ozcéola Smith; auditor, Mrs. J. C. McKenzie; custodian of relics, Mrs. E. F. Lanier; custodian of history, Mrs. D. L. Adams; chairman of literature, Mrs. Eunice Winston.

ROCKMART, GA.

Miss Mattie Carlton was a charming hostess to the Fidelis class Wednesday afternoon. After transacting the business a social hour was enjoyed. Mrs. H. F. Joyner was an honor guest.

Mrs. Arthur Finch delightfully entertained the Woman's club on her summer porch one afternoon of the past week and two new members were enrolled.

The commencement exercises, which closed Wednesday evening, were among the best in the history of the school and the auditorium could not seat the great throngs which came each night. The graduating exercises were especially attractive and those who received diplomas were Misses Ellen Carmichael, Marie Carpenter, Theimia Calhoun, Jeannette Spinks, Mabel Hodges, Mary Beasley, Ruth Wilson, Maudie Lee Chafin, Myrtle McGoldrick, Frances Cowden and Messrs. Jodie Kingsberry and Earl Hidez. The school has closed a very successful year and the credit is due the splendid corps of teachers.

MONROE, GA.

The graduating exercises, which took place in the school auditorium on Wednesday evening, were most beautiful and impressive. Witnessed by several hundred friends and relatives the program opened at 8 o'clock. Mr. Willis Wells, the only young man of the class, was first on the platform. His topic was a combination of instrumental solos and essays.

Music added to the pleasure of the evening, and the numerous guests in-

Sunday's Constitution carried the announcement of the engagement of Miss Linda Felker, of this city, to Mr. Walter P. Barnes, of Griffin, the marriage to take place in June.

The DOCTOR'S ADVICE

by Dr. Lewis Baker

The questions answered below are general in character, the symptoms or diseases are given and the answers will apply in any case of similar nature.

Those wishing further advice, free, may address Dr. Lewis Baker, College Bldg., College-Ellwood Sts., Dayton, O., enclosing self-addressed stamped envelope for reply. Full name and address must be given, but only initials or fictitious name will be used in my answers. The prescriptions can be filled at any well-stocked drug store. Any druggist can order of wholesaler.

Avoid excesses and dissipation, and it will not be necessary for you to discontinue your studies. Take the tablets regularly and start using them now.

"Tiny" says: "I'm so very thin that my friends call me Tiny. I would like to increase my weight 20 pounds. How may I?"

Answer. The continued use of three grain hypo-nuclein tablets with your meals should increase your weight in a very short time. I seldom hear of a case where the use of these tablets fail to increase weight and strength. They are highly recommended.

"Engineer" writes: "My work brings me out in all kinds of weather. I had a severe cold and it settled on my kidneys. They pain me very much and I don't urinate much. My sleep is restless, and I don't rest at night my feet swell. Have some fever and often have chills. Please prescribe for me. Never had trouble like this before. It has been several months since I noticed the pains in my back, and they keep getting worse."

Answer. Symptoms indicate your kidneys are in bad condition. Likely some congestion and inflammation. Get a tube of kidney tablets and take regularly according to directions. Try not to take cold and be a little while you should feel straight again.

"L. P. W." writes: "I think I need a medicine to build up my blood and make it pure. Also I have chronic constipation."

Answer. Necessarily you have a sallow complexion, coated tongue and bad breath, with fever and headache result from impure blood, which is the result of constipation, indigestion, etc. A real medicine is three grain sulpherb tablets (not sulphur). I have prescribed these thousands of times with great success.

SOCIAL LIFE IN MACON

Macon, Ga., May 29.—(Special Correspondence.)—With the month of brides close at hand and half a dozen June weddings already booked, society is all a-flutter with the pre-nuptial affairs for the charming brides-elect. The Wise-Stetson wedding is the first occurring Wednesday, June 2, at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Giles Harding. Miss Wise has charming visitors. Misses Margaret Addison, Jessie Alexander and Mary Lyon, of Augusta, and Louise Wise, of Wilmington, N. C., who will be her guests until after the wedding. Following a beautiful family dinner party given for Miss Wise and Mr. Stetson by Mrs. Elsworth Hall, Miss Wise was honored Monday evening at a delightful dance at the home of Mrs. Charles Hall. Tuesday evening Mr. Von Johnston complimented her with a most enjoyable dance at the Idle Hour Country club. The interior of the clubhouse was gaily decorated with pink sweet peas, deep blue larkspur, bright yellow and white daisies and rich green ferns. Mrs. R. J. Cooke, in a becoming toilet of black and white taffeta, trimmed with lace, received with her brother and Miss Wise. The beautiful young honoree wore white silk dancing dress over taffeta with narrow ruffles of lilac, pink and blue. Miss Margaret Casey was in blue tulle over blue silk with trimmings of gold lace. Miss Mildred Hollis, of Americus, wore pink charmeuse draped with pink chiffon, trimmed with crystal passementerie. Miss Elizabeth Burke was in light blue silk, elaborately trimmed in cream lace. Miss Martina Burke wore a delicate pink chiffon embroidered in rhinestones. Miss Gladys Schofield's exquisite evening dress was of soft French mull, entirely of pink roses and combined with pink taffeta. Miss Louise Callaway was lovely in corn-colored silk crepe with tulle and touched of black velvet. Miss Fleta Holmes wore white taffeta with overdress of tulle embroidered in rhinestones, and Miss Helen Barnes was in blue charmeuse trimmed with tiny pink rosebuds. Thursday afternoon Mrs. E. Saunders Walker and Mr. Walter Stevens were entertained for Miss Wise and Mr. Stetson at a barbecue and dance at their attractive country place, Hygeia, a special train on the Central leaving with the guests at 3 p. m. and returning at 11 o'clock. Friday Mrs. P. W. Martin gave a lovely afternoon tea for Miss Wise at her charming country home, Ashantee. Saturday morning Miss Louise Callaway gave a beautiful bridge-luncheon in honor of Miss Wise. Miss Ida Holt has issued invitations to a bridge luncheon for Tuesday, complimentary to her, and still there are others.

Mrs. Washington Jessup, Jr., was hostess at a 5 o'clock tea on Thursday afternoon, a pretty tribute to two prospective brides. Miss Alice Birdsey's marriage to Mr. I. L. Domingos occurs early in June, and Miss Julia Butler, whose marriage to Dr. C. L. Strubi will take place June 15.

Miss Mary Chambers returns to Bloomfield tomorrow after a short visit to Mrs. Marguerite Nisbet and Miss Gray Goodwyn. Miss Chambers' marriage to Mr. Alex S. Cassells, of Savannah, will take place June 29 at the Mulberry Street Methodist church. A number of Macon friends will entertain for her prior to the interesting event. She will be attended by Miss Gray Goodwyn as maid of honor, with Misses Wylene Keller, of Savannah, and Marjorie Beckwith, of Tampa, Fla., as bridesmaids. Mr. Cassells will have as best man Mr. Sam Hayes, of New Jersey. Among the out-of-town guests at the wedding will be Mr. and Mrs. James Rogers, Mr. and Mrs. Rogers Wilson and Miss Ethel Rogers, of Savannah, Miss Valeria Cassells, of Thomasville. Little Misses Ethel Rogers, of Savannah, and Martha Nisbet, of Macon, will be ribbon bearers, and four of the groom's Savannah friends will act as ushers. Following the ceremony an informal reception will be held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. McDougald Nisbet in Vineville.

Miss Dora Dunwody was hostess at a pretty sewing party Thursday morning, given in honor of Mrs. Frederick Neely, one of the recent brides. A profusion of roses and daisies adorned the pretty rooms. The flowers no more beautiful than the young girls in their airy summer gowns. The list of guests included Mrs. Frederick Neely, Mrs. Frank Rogers, Mrs. Richard Lawton, Mrs. Albert King, Mrs. Malcolm Goss, Mrs. Lake Lea, Mrs. Roy Neal, Mrs. James Cowan, Misses Nina Cornelia Adams, Miss Annie Gault, Mrs. Clayton Buchanan, Jackson, Misses Hessie and Maude Stubbs, Misses Grace Stone, Martha Sparks, Katherine Wilson, Jessie Lewis and others.

Miss Mildred Hollis, of Americus, is being pleasantly entertained while the guest of Mrs. Oscar Kinsey. Wednesday morning she was guest of honor at a bridge luncheon given by the hostess. There were five tables of players, those present being Misses Mildred Hollis, Louise Callaway, Myrtle Humphries, Martina Burke, Gladys Schofield, Margaret Casey, Mamie Adams, Iola Wise, Louise Hill and Helen Barnes, Mrs. Robert Flournoy, Mrs. Thomas Holt, Mrs. Virgil Tharpe, Mrs. George Gault, Mrs. Walter Harris, Mrs. E. Tris Napier, Mrs. Herbert Haley, Mrs. Richard Hines and Mrs. Frank Hazlehurst. Another delightful affair given for Miss Hollis was Mrs. Herbert Haley's bridge party Thursday afternoon.

Mrs. Walter J. Grace entertained informally at bridge on Monday afternoon, complimentary to Mrs. James Howard Howard, of Barnesville, the guest of Mrs. Warren Woodward. Tuesday morning Miss Martha Riley gave a porch party to twelve of her friends, complimentary to Mrs. Howard, of Barnesville, and Mrs. Clarke, of Leesburg. Tuesday afternoon Mrs. Howard returned to her home in Barnesville.

Hurt Building Is Meeting The Popular, Modern Demand

The Hurt building occupies a block to itself in the business center of Atlanta. Safety and convenience have been the dominating thoughts in planning its construction. Its offices are all outside. The rooms are well lighted and well ventilated. The risk to life and property is reduced to a minimum. It is the lowest in this country. The fire insurance premium is less than one-quarter of 1 per cent.

The exterior of the Hurt building is most beautiful and tastefully designed. The coloring blending from light to darker shades adds exquisite tone.

The service of the building is unexcelled and is being constantly improved. A man's office requires, next to his home, most of his time. It should afford the best facilities.

How well the building is meeting the popular modern demand may be seen by its classified directory of tenants. It has become the business home of over two thousand people. By actual count its elevators carry over 11,000 people a day. These figures are significant when considered with the fact that it has been open to tenants but a few months only, and in a period of general business depression.

Atlanta grows as the south grows. It never stops for any cause.

It is a faith in Atlanta, its people and its future that has produced the Hurt building and other structures and other office buildings that has given Atlanta the reputation that no other city enjoys.

TRUST CO. GEORGIA BUILDING PRAISED

Is Located at One of the City's Busiest Points and Equipped With Modern Conveniences.

This building, formerly the Equitable, was one of the first office buildings of steel frame to be erected in the south. It was formally opened in 1891.

The building is located at one of the busiest points in the city. Two years ago the name was changed from the Equitable to the Trust Company of Georgia building. It is owned by the company which has a fine suite of offices on the ground floor on the North Pryor street side.

The building has a large frontage on both Pryor street and Edgewood avenue and is constructed so as to give plenty of light and ventilation to the halls and stairways as well as the rooms.

The offices are equipped with electric lights, steam heat, lavatory and private lockers; and tenants are furnished with free janitor service.

There are 35 offices, most of which are occupied by large insurance companies or agencies. It is said that fully 75 per cent of the offices are rented out to insurance concerns, and the building holds more of such companies than any other in the south, is the claim made for it.

The main ground floor office is occupied by the Lowry National bank.

The elevator service, with four cars, is said to be among the best in the south.

Fourth National Building in Heart Business District

The Fourth National Bank building occupies the famous old Norcross corner, at Five Points, and is in the very heart of the business district of Atlanta.

It was opened to the public eleven years ago, in 1904, and from that day to this has enjoyed a well-deserved popularity. It contains 270 rooms, each having an outside exposure for light and ventilation. The manager reports that every room is rented.

It is owned by the Fourth National bank and is said to represent an investment of $750,000.

There are five elevators of the best type and the service is all that the most exacting tenant could demand.

It opens on Peachtree street and also fronts on Marietta street. Commanding as it does an outlook on Five Points, a fine view can be had of the city from nearly every room.

The Fourth National bank first occupied offices in the old building, and when the success of that institution demanded larger and better quarters, the Fourth National Bank building was planned and built. The old Norcross building was torn down to give place to one of Atlanta's tallest and best sky-scrapers.

It is said of the Fourth National Bank building that once a tenant is secured he stays, which is pointed out as proof positive that the building is popular and the service satisfactory.

ATLANTA NATIONAL BUILDING POPULAR

Tenants Are Among Atlanta's Most Prominent Business Concerns and Professional Men.

The Atlanta National Bank building, named after the banking institution that owns it, stands on one of the principal corners of the city—Alabama and Whitehall.

It has thirteen floors with the floor space of 285 offices.

It was opened in January, 1903, and has never failed to enjoy an immense popularity, as its large population will show.

Four elevators are kept running night and day, and the service is excellent.

The building is constructed of pressed buff brick and stone facings and a steel frame. The hall floors are of terrazzo, with marble facings.

It has all the modern conveniences to be found in a first-class, up-to-date office building, with toilets, hot and cold water, rest rooms, etc.

There is not a room in that entire building which is without an outside exposure, giving all the light and ventilation needed.

The main offices on the ground floor are occupied by the Atlanta National bank, owner of the building.

The tenants are of Atlanta's foremost business concerns and professional men.

Healey Building Among South's Most Modern Office Buildings

The Healey building was opened in June, 1914. It is one of the most modern office buildings in the south and has sixteen floors above the ground and two in the basement.

It contains 500 offices and several of the largest and best storerooms in the city. It is built of terracotta and granite as an exterior over a steel frame.

The building opens on four streets, Forsyth, Broad, Poplar and Walton. It is so constructed as to give perfect ventilation and light to every office. Throughout the building the floors are laid with tile.

Six Otis elevators of the largest and best type take care of passengers and freight.

Hot water, cold water and ice water in summer can be found on each floor.

The toilet arrangements are modern and up to date and every floor has its separate toilet. On one floor is a rest room for the ladies employed in the building.

The architect, it was stated when the building was first planned, would sacrifice floor space rather than ventilation and light, and the result is that not a single office in the building is without outside light and ventilation.

Under good management and perfect janitor service the building has attracted the very best class of tenants.

The architecture is an ornament to the city and is always looked up to and praised by the visitors to Atlanta who view with wonder the city's great and wonderful skyscrapers.

ATLANTA'S STRIDES FROM DAY TO DAY

J. H. Whitten, manager of rents of the M. L. Thrower company, and one of Atlanta's most popular realty dealers, who has been sick for several weeks at his home, is reported to be much better, and will be out again within a few days. This news comes as a source of delight to Mr. Whitten's many warm friends in the city.

Summary. Building and Real Estate.

While building the last half of May has been decidely dull, there have been many small real estate transactions, with an occasional large one. The situation of a few months ago when real estate was dull, and building fairly good, seems to have reversed itself.

The building deficit for May is now 50 per cent, most of which was made during the last two weeks, for building secured a good start the opening week of the month.

The approximate figures are: May, 1915, $200,000; May, 1914; $424,000.

City Buys School Lot.

Mr. Eubanks, of the Thrower agency, has sold for E. S. Morris to the city of Atlanta, a large lot on Lucile avenue, near the intersection of Gordon street, which is to be used for school purposes, for a cash consideration of $5,000.

Mr. Eubanks also sold for H. J. Carr to a client a vacant lot on North avenue for a cash consideration of $1,200.

West End Church Buys Lot.

L. O. Turner, of the Thrower company, has sold a vacant lot on Gordon street, near the intersection of Lucile avenue, to the West End Methodist church. This property was sold for E. S. Morris, at a cash consideration of $2,850.

Mr. Turner has also sold for a client to A. C. Newell a lot on Moreland avenue, near Highland, for cash, $5,750.

Lower Taxes Urged.

The members of the Atlanta Real Estate Exchange, of which R. R. Otis, of Otis Bolding, is president, met Friday at the Winecoff hotel. Friday night, banded together to work for lower tax rates on property loans.

President Otis laid stress on legislation, and said that lenders are being driven from the Atlanta market because they had to pay excessive loan taxes.

"Loan taxes," said Mr. Otis, "reduce the 6 per cent loan to 3% per cent. I think that an arrangement should be made by which the owner of the property and the lender could jointly lighten this burden."

Besides attacking excessive taxes on loans, the Atlanta Real Estate Board also entered a new field of activity, taking upon itself matters of civic interest.

Mr. Otis, in this connection, stated that city council had been asked for an appropriation for more street signs, an appropriation for more curved street corners, and other appropriations for condemning certain squares in the city, and utilizing the space for park purposes, thereby enhancing property values.

GREATER PROSPERITY TO FOLLOW THE WAR

According to Judge Gary, of Steel Corporation — Urges Stronger American Navy.

New York, May 29.—Elbert H. Gary, chairman of the United States Steel corporation and president of the American Iron and Steel institute, in an address at the institute's annual meeting, declared that after the war there would be among the nations such a race for supremacy as the world has never witnessed.

"There never has been," he said, "so great a necessity for wise and disinterested statesmanship or for loyal and honorable conduct upon the part of practical business men.

"After all differences are adjusted," continued Judge Gary, "the nations now or to be engaged in this colossal conflict, though terribly crippled, will take a new start and in many respects a new course, and will begin immediately to build on a better and firmer and more permanent basis for success and high achievement in everything that adds to national wealth, power, energy and enterprise. These nations will not remain inactive or despondent or indifferent. We shall see the most active and persistent efforts to rebuild and extend and to succeed in the international race for supremacy that the world has ever witnessed.

Greater Prosperity.

"From adversity will come greater prosperity than ever before. From necessity will spring thought and study and effort that will enable the survivors to reach greater heights of success than ever before supposed to be within the reach of humankind. The people of all the different countries, suffering in their industries of the past, will be inspired to greater exertions in their efforts for the future.

"It is not too much to believe that, after the close of the war, there will be a feeling almost universal that there must be established and maintained a court of arbitration, simple, comprehensive, effective and permanent—that will secure the adjustment of all future differences without any resort to war or general test by armed forces.

"What should the United States prepare for? If we conduct our affairs properly, if we make the most of our opportunities, if we co-operate with another, if the government and governmental agencies and the business people are allies one with the other, we shall become stronger and richer and more potential in our influence, and we shall be able to occupy a position in the van of nations, progressing toward results more satisfactory than ever before."

Stroner Navy Urged.

Pointing to the probability of a great extension after the war of the nation's commerce, Judge Gary advocated a stronger navy.

"We must not remain in a position," he said, "which permits the navy of any country to dominate the seas."

Judge Gary also made a plea for more encouragement by the government of business enterprise, and expressed the opinion that "the lack of continuous business prosperity and success in this country for a number of years has, in part, been the direct result of undue, ill-considered or unjustifiable assaults which have been made by governmental agencies or by the erroneous and unwise policies of different branches or departments of government."

"There has been an admonition," he said, "against 'rocking the boat,' and we approve the sentiment, but we submit the business men have not been rocking the boat."

CHILDREN ARE GIVEN RIDE IN AUTOMOBILE

In taking her first automobile ride since she sustained an injury six weeks ago, Mrs. F. M. Robinson had a thought for the children of the Atlanta Child's Home and driving Saturday to the institution at Ponce de Leon park she carried a dozen of the little folks into her big car and treated them to a ride over the city. Mrs. Robinson is president of the board of trustees of the home.

Great interest has been shown in the home since the opening of the big new building and scores of people visit the institution each week. It is open to interested friends on week days and Sunday and they are invited to pay a visit to the home and inspect its work for unfortunate children and mothers.

Flynn Bests Bell.

New York, May 29.—Dan ("Porky") Flynn, of Boston, outfought Colin Bell, of Australia, in a ten-round bout here tonight. Each weighed 197 pounds.

DR. LEN G. BROUGHTON TO LECTURE HERE SOON

Atlanta people and, in fact, thousands throughout the south will no doubt be glad to learn that Dr. Len G. Broughton, founder and many years pastor of the Baptist tabernacle here and of recent years pastor of Christ church, London, England, has consented to appear in lectures in several leading cities. He recently returned to America and has taken charge of the pastorate of the First Baptist church of Knoxville, Tenn.

Dr. Broughton will lecture at the Baptist tabernacle in this city on Monday evening, June 14, and will use as his subject, "The Great European War, and I Have Seen It, Heard It and Know It." It will be illustrated with one hundred specially selected stereopticon views.

It was Dr. Broughton, through the aid of his congregation in London, who began the work of caring for Belgian refugees shortly after the opening of the war. He spent six months working among those unfortunate people and Dr. Broughton conversant with actual conditions in Europe.

An admission fee of 50 cents for adults and 25 cents for children will be charged. Half the price will be charged for seats in the second and third galleries of the tabernacle.

Not only will Dr. Broughton speak of actual war conditions in Europe, but will tell of the opportunity of America to open new avenues of trade with those countries, which he says will be reaching out at the close of the war for new commercial fields.

RECITAL AND SHOWER FOR THE OLD SOLDIERS

The inmates of the Old Soldiers' Home, who are unable to attend the reunion at Richmond, Va., will be entertained Tuesday afternoon at 3 o'clock with a recital and a shower by the pupils of Miss Carolyn Cobb, the well-known teacher of expression.

The recitations will be taken largely from selections which are concerned with the old south and the cause of the confederacy. These will be interspersed with songs and instrumental numbers.

The shower will take the form of gifts dear to the old men, such as tobacco, stationery, magazines and other articles. Should other persons interested in the Soldiers' Home wish to send gifts they will be received by Mrs. Hettie Moore Monday and Tuesday at 11 o'clock at the studio of Miss Cobb, which is connected with Phillips & Crew Co.

FIGHT GROWING WARM FOR FIRE CHIEF'S JOB

Chief Cummings and Captain Cody Now Appear to Be Leading the Field.

For the first time since the organization of the paid Atlanta fire department a lively campaign is being conducted for the selection of a chief. In past years there has been little difficulty in choosing a chief, but a split in the board of firemasters and general council over Chief Cummings, the incumbent, has caused several entries in the race to oppose Cummings, who is standing for re-election in July.

Chief Cummings and Captain Cody, the latter one of the oldest men in point of service in the department, are apparently leading the race. Supporters of both candidates were busy Saturday holding conferences and visiting members of the general council, and both were claiming a lead.

It was stated Saturday that former Chief W. R. Joyner, now state fire marshal, is using his influence to secure the election of Captain Cody. He has written letters, it is said, to several members of council indorsing Cody and requesting support for him.

Mayor Woodward, one of Captain Cody's strongest supporters, is using his influence to secure his election and is said to have expressed himself as feeling confident of his election on the second, if not on the first, ballot.

Chief Cummings' friends are just as active and hundreds of letters are being written to doubtful members of general council soliciting their support. These letters are from business and professional men, laboring men and those whose property has been saved from fire loss by the department during the service of Chief Cummings. Some of his supporters have claimed nineteen votes already pledged, which would insure his election, while others say that if he fails of election on the first ballot he will be beaten.

Several votes have been pledged to Captain Terrell, another candidate for chief, on the first ballot, but they are not pledged after the first unless he makes a good showing and carries eight or ten votes.

The candidacy of Captain S. H. Pressley is also to be seriously considered by some members of council, who say that if there is a "dark horse" they will throw their strength to him. He has been in continuous service in the department twenty-seven years, and like the other three candidates, is considered a high-class fireman and executive.

Trunks of Travelers Must Now Be Valued Before Being Checked

Beginning with Thursday, June 3, all trunks of travelers must be valued by the shipper before they can be checked to their destinations and the signed declaration left with the baggageman. According to railroad officials who have studied the provisions of the Cummins act, which is an amendment of the interstate commerce laws, the undesvaluation of baggage on the part of the shipper will be construed as much a misdemeanor as the overestimation of its worth.

The railroads now carry trunks and other baggage not exceeding 150 pounds in weight free with tickets of transportation and assume liability in cases of loss or damage up to $100. They declare they cannot assume unlimited liability as permitted under the Cummins act, but will accept the alternative of assuming the $100 liability on each piece of baggage checked and insuring the passenger for all over that amount on a basis of 10 cent per 100, the rate laid down by the interstate commerce commission.

The railway companies assure the public that they are doing everything possible to facilitate the handling of crowds making declarations of valuation in the rush preceding the departure of a train. It is, however, anticipated by them that the new law will be considered a great obstacle by the traveling public and that many tempers will be tried during the tourists' season.

HATFIELD CLAN LEADER IN CRITICAL CONDITION

Charleston, W. Va., May 29.—Anse Hatfield, leader of the Hatfield clan in the famous feud with the McCoy family of Kentucky and West Virginia, and known the country over as "Devil Anse," is critically ill at his home in the mountains of Island creek, Logan county, according to reports received here. Since the feud ended about twelve years ago, Hatfield has been active in the pursuit of farming. Less than a year ago, he came here to enter vaudeville, but after appearing several times at a local theater, he found that an old federal court order prohibited him from leaving the state, so he returned to his cabin home.

Spain Declares Neutrality.

Madrid, May 29.—(Via Paris.)—The government today officially declared the neutrality of Spain in the war between Austria-Hungary and Italy.

CAPITALIST ACCUSED OF MAKING MOONSHINE

Alex Porter, Father-in-Law of Candyman Huyler, Arrested at Asheville.

Asheville, N. C., May 29.—J. Alex Porter, retired capitalist, was arrested here yesterday by United States internal revenue officers charged with operating a "blockade" distillery. At the same time, Wes Patton, a farmer, was arrested in Haywood county charged with having furnished Porter with materials for making whisky.

The officers allege that the still was operated on the property of Porter at Biltmore, N. C., near here, with his knowledge and consent.

The arrests were the culmination of an investigation lasting several months. It created a sensation here.

During January, Deputy United States marshals seized and destroyed an illicit still on Porter's property. At that time no arrests were made. The officers now claim to have unearthed evidence connecting Porter and Patton with it.

Porter and Patton both deny knowledge of the moonshining operations. Porter declares the first intimation he had that a still was located on his property was when it was seized and destroyed.

Porter is the father-in-law of Porter Huyler, wealthy New York candy manufacturer.

KILLED JUNK PEDDLER AND BURIED HIS BODY

Boston, May 29.—Two unidentified men killed Samuel Cohen, a junk peddler, today when he refused to give them his money, buried his body in the cellar of a house to which they had lured him on the pretense that they had old metal to sell, and escaped.

Morris Taitel, another junkman, was locked in a closet by the thieves after surrendering $16. He heard the arguments and the shots which preceded Cohen's death. He remained a prisoner until released late in the day by the tenant of the house.

"BLUE GUIDE" OUT; GIVES USEFUL DATA

The "Blue Guide," a compendium of useful and generally desired data concerning the city and local happenings, has just made its appearance. It is edited each month by Robert Sparks and published by the Atlanta Monthly Guide company. The earnest endeavor of the publishers to bring the booklet "down to the minute" is patent in the wide range of information concerning the streets, the capitol, even the baseball schedules, and numerous other facts of daily value.

SPLENDID BILL AT VICTORIA THEATER

"Man of the Hour," Presented Monday, Portrays Best Types of American Manhood.

In addition to the usual good bill of Mutual releases, in which all of the Mutual stars will appear, the Victoria will feature three World film pictures, "The Man of the Hour" Monday, starring Robert Warwick. "The Pit" Friday, with Wilton Lackaye in the leading role, and "The Seats of the Mighty" on Wednesday. The success that followed the release of Robert Warwick's picture of "The Dollar Mark" compelled William A. Brady to have Mr. Warwick star in the five-part feature based on George Broadhurst's famous "The Man of the Hour," released exclusively through the World Film corporation.

In the film version of "The Man of the Hour," types of American manhood and womanhood are portrayed with that same tensity and virility that has made this play famous on the stage, augmented by the voice and the footlights. It is just such films that tend to show to what marvelous stage of development the moving picture business has grown.

Modern city life in America is portrayed and a compelling love story of novel character is said to furnish the greatest strength of the picture. This vivid feature play deals with the subject of municipal graft. The characters are types of individuals familiar in the daily life of every American, no matter in what part of the country he lives. It is more than a mere entertainment. It has an educational value to it, inasmuch as it is a well-planned illustration of what actually occurs in American politics.

In "The Man of the Hour" the "machine boss" wishes the city council to pass a bill granting to a certain street railway a perpetual franchise. Young Henry Garrison is selected as the candidate for mayor, because it is believed that the actions of a most easily be dictated. He accepts the nomination for the sake of the woman he loves, a niece of the financier who is backing the railway, who says that, to prove himself worthy of her, he must show he can do something.

Garrison suddenly develops an unexpected determination to govern according to principles of honor. In the end he wins his sweetheart, and at the same time he saves her fortune and his honor, but for a time it seems that everything is against him, because of his determination to do the square thing by the public that elected him.

Complications arising out of the political scheming, the effectively love affair and the contrasts afforded in faithful representations of high and city life, furnish a gripping command on the attention of the audience.

"The Man of the Hour" is bound to succeed wherever it is acted in the United States, because it shows American men and women of all classes as they really are.

THE ALPHA PRESENTS AN ARRAY OF STARS

Bob Leonard and Ella Hall, in "Shattered Memories," on Monday's Program.

Robert Leonard, Ella Hall, Hobert Rawlinson, Anna Little, Princess Hassan, William Dowlan and a score of others prominent in filmdom, are the stars at the Alpha this week. "Quite an array of 'reelites.'"

Monday's program holds two attractions of unusual merit. The episode No. 11, of "The Black Box," "The Desert Vengeance," will be pictured, with the scenes of the African desert, in its compelling reality. The Gold Seal, three-part drama, "Shattered Memories," will be the other intensely interesting picture, featuring Robert Leonard and Ella Hall.

"Shattered Memories" is a Memorial day drama and is released under the Gold Seal brand. Some of the battle scenes are of the most spectacular character. In many of the scenes more than 1,000 actors take part. "Shattered Memories" relates the adventure of a northern soldier who, in a hand-to-hand fight with a confederate, spy, loses his memory, as a result of his injuries.

The soldier has varying exciting adventures until years later, the sight of his sweetheart's old home and marching troops restores his memory. He is finally reunited to his faithful fiance, who waits beneath the old tryst tree for him. The scenario of "Shattered Memories" is by Grant Carpenter and the play has been splendidly produced by Robert Leonard.

Supporting the principals, "Bob" Leonard and Ella Hall, are Harry Carter, Betty Schade, T. Burton, Charles Hickman and D. Vinard.

Tuesday's program includes a Laemmle drama, "Trickery," in two reels and an L-Ko with Hank Mann in "Broken Hearts and Pledges."

Thursday, Violet Mesereau will star in "You Can't Always Tell," a two-reel Imp drama, and a Nestor comedy featuring Billie Rhodes will complete Thursday's bill. "You Can't Always Tell" a beautiful young girl leaps from a taxicab, unmindful of the cries of her middle-aged companion to return. He follows her, but is stopped by Spencer, a young reporter, who has been taking a stroll during the wee sma hours of the morning, to get inspiration for his feature story. Spencer accompanies Violet home and by the time they reach the house a mutual attraction has come to them.

The following day Spencer reads a story in the paper, relative to how a charming young girl stole a diamond ring and left it as security from a wealthy broker while they were riding in a taxicab. Whether Violet is involved in the affair or not remains to be seen, but "You Can't Always Tell."

The renowned Princess Hassan will appear Saturday with Lee Moran and William Dowlan in "Under the Crescent," the latest production of Egyptian harem life, as seen by the princess.

Viola Allen arrived in Chicago May 15. She will begin work in the Essanay studios in "The White Sister," her well-known stage production.

PROGRAM AT GRAND INCLUDES MANY STARS

Marguerite Clark in "Pretty Sister of Jose" Opens Bill for Week.

Controlling some of the best feature films on the market, the Grand announces a great program for the coming week.

The program includes such stars as Marguerite Clark, Edith Storey, John Mason, Marguerite Leslie and Frederick Perry.

The dramas are "The Pretty Sister of Jose," a Famous Players production; "The Island of Regeneration," Vitagraph's most pretentious offering, and "Jim the Penman," a Daniel Frohman drama produced by the Famous studios.

The dainty, magnetic little star, Marguerite Clark, surpasses all her former achievements in "The Pretty Sister of Jose," the famous romantic play by Frances Hodgson Burnett, and Maude Adams, starring vehicle.

The title role of the photo-play has been so constructed as to exhibit to the fullest extent Miss Clark's versatility and charm. It is that of a modern girl, full of life and vivacity, with haughty Spanish pride throbbing through her veins, who comes for the first time to live beneath the bright skies of Madrid and to be conquered by love.

"The Pretty Sister of Jose" will be the Grand's offering Monday and Tuesday.

Vitagraph's most stupendous production, "The Island of Regeneration," a classic from the pen of the celebrated Cyrus Townsend Brady, will be the program Wednesday and Thursday.

The leading role is delineated by that immortal screen and illuminary, Edith Storey, as famous, perhaps, as any other star of the films.

The scenes of the "Island of Regeneration" are laid in the tropics, the title is a poignantly sympathetic. It is a strong story of fiery passions, undying love, vivid portrayal. Undoubtedly one of the keenest emotional dramas ever written by the immortal Brady.

Friday and Saturday comes the eminent dramatic star, John Mason, one of the last of the important silent actors of the modern stage to be converted to the screen in "Jim the Penman."

This is one of the most notable characterizations of the present dramatic era.

The role is forcefully suggested by the vigorous art of Mr. Mason. The play reveals in an intensely dramatic manner the extremes to which a strong man who lives devotedly will go toward winning the woman of his heart. When she indicates her preference for a younger suitor, he applies a remarkable talent of personality and forges a broker while they were riding in a taxicab. Whether Violet is involved in the affair or not remains to be seen, but "You Can't Always Tell."

The renowned Princess Hassan will appear Saturday with John Mason and William Dowlan in "Under the Crescent," the latest production of Egyptian harem life, as seen by the princess.

Viola Allen arrived in Chicago May 15. She will begin work in the Essanay studios in "The White Sister," her well-known stage production.

PRINCESS HASSAN

She tells of her experience in an Egyptian harem in "The Purple Iris." First of the (Under the Crescent) series.

"The Purple Iris," featuring Princess Hassan, is the first of a series of two-reel pictures to be released by the Universal company, under the Gold Band series, called "Under the Crescent." This unique photo-play introduces her serene highness, the Princess Hassan.

The stories are woven around the personality and actual incidents in the life of Princess Hassan, who is credited with all sorts of experiences while living in Egypt. Nothing has been left undone to make the settings not only true to life, as seen by the princess herself, but as sumptuous and colossal as anything ever put on by a moving picture company.

It so happened that the princess had taken many scenes in Cairo and in the royal palace, with the kodak, which she was permitted to use because of her rank. When she left her harem cage and came to this country she was fortunate enough to be able to bring these pictures with her. These proved of invaluable assistance to Director Burton King in making his settings and in rendering them absolutely true to life.

Those who remembered Ola Humphrey when she was a girl in California, wondered what tragedy could be more mysterious and terrible than that which made a beautiful American girl whose stage ability had delighted thousands of admirers all over the world and whose voice was equally lushed by a living death, when she left this country for the free and buried herself in the seclusion of an Egyptian harem.

Ola Humphrey was attracted to the prince the moment of their first meeting, when she was appearing in the cafe at the Khedive opera house. He falls in love with the beautiful American actress, although his royal mother is irrevocably set upon his marrying Princess Carde. Then there is still another young woman who believes that she has very definite claims upon the prince.

Under the circumstances he finds a custom of his country, whereby the faces of the women are covered by veils, to be most convenient. A similarity in attire and a veil that conceals the features, enables him to marry the American girl and place attending the midnight ceremony believe the bride to be Princess Carde.

In the palace of the prince she found herself welcomed by a throng of women who had never come in close contact with a white woman, so that it was some time before they became friendly with her. These harem women have constituted a peculiar feminine court, and as anything ever put on by a moving picture company.

Princess Hassan found it difficult to adapt herself to the domestic life of an Oriental nobleman. She rebelled against the ways of the eastern autocrat. She grew tired of the life in the harem. So one day while she was visiting in Paris she escaped and flew to America.

In these wonderful pictures the gowns worn by the Princess Hassan are of the 'harem' type. She says that nothing is more simple and attractive than the Oriental garb. The costumes she wears trousers, not the little ones, but real 'breeches' to this particular costume they are of gold and violet brocade, full and baggy to the ankles. At the waist they are swathed with a blue sash to match the peacock colored coat, brocaded with gold with a superb border of green and gold.

These costumes and others of like magnificence are in the "Under the Crescent" series.

The picture will be shown Tuesday at the Savoy and next Saturday at the Alpha.

THE PARAMOUNT QUARTETTE

"THE LITTLEST REBEL" AT THE MONTGOMERY

Stirring War Drama by Edward Peple Booked for Three Days.

With Blanche Sweet in "The Captive" and the stirring war drama, "The Littlest Rebel," with other films of absorbing interest, the Montgomery theater adheres to its customary policy of showing the best pictures that can be procured. "The Littlest Rebel," by Edward Peple, is the attraction for Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday. This six-part photo-play masterpiece of thrilling interest depicts scenes of our picturesque and sunny southland made famous by the civil war. A story of such tremendous heart interest that grips and holds the attention until the final denouement is reached. This picturization of civil war happenings is a study for young and old.

Ed N. Lincoln essays the part of Herbert Carey, the leading male role, and Mimi Yvonne is Virgie, Carey's daughter.

The story of the play concerns little Virgie Carey, daughter of a confederate scout, who lives near Richmond, and a most wonderful child of the memorable war period. Her beauty, loveliness and childish beauty of this little daughter of the south blossoms forth in Edward Peple's most exquisite style of film-portraiture. She sees her mother pine away and die, she starves and suffers privations that make her mind mature by the shock and sorrows of war.

Lieutenant-Colonel Morrison and a number of his men are detailed to search the dignified home for the father. The home is burned and the child lives in a cabin among the negroes, only except for the hunted visits from her father, who provides her with food occasionally, to the best of his ability. Colonel Morrison and his horde surround the cabin. Virgie's father, wounded, is hiding in a loft with an order for immediate arrest. Virgie, child and her escort through the confederate lines to Richmond. Virgie, with her baby talk and adorable coyness, foils the "Yanks," but is outwitted by the gentleman colonel, who discovers the hiding place of the father.

Through the plea of the little girl, the colonel, with a new sense of sentimentalism governing the soldier, sunshine that is rebel with an additional pass through the federal lines.

Later in the city, a battle ensues, a stirring hand-to-hand encounter, the scene, where the scout saves the life of Colonel Morrison. They are both brought to headquarters, as prisoners, Carey as a spy and Morrison as a traitor, and sentenced to death. The littlest rebel, as Virgie is called, appears before the commanding general and pleads for the men's lives. Then the general becomes interested and investigates, and makes a personal investigation of the case. The result of Virgie's heroism is splendidly illustrated, and this war drama of extraordinary force is ended in a fitting climax.

Two Paramount dramas will be featured Thursday and Friday. Dustin Farnum in "Captain Courtesy" and Blanche Sweet in "The Captive." Jeanie MacPherson, co-author of "The Captive," with Cecil B. DeMille, displays one of the roles in the production. "The Captive" is the second of the Jesse L. Lasky productions for the season in which Blanche Sweet has starred. It is an original play of the Balkan wars. The inimitable and fascinating Blanche Sweet, who has been seen recently in purely American roles, will assume the character of a Montenegrin peasant woman, Sonya Martinovitch.

Bits of News.

"Honor Thy Son," by Victor De Villiers, is the touching title of a three-reel drama which has been produced by the Universal, which, Lawrence B. Marston is director. In it William Garwood and Vivian Merca read find ample opportunity to display their histrionic talents. Mr. Abdill is becoming acclimated to the new atmosphere and is wondering why he ever rooted for the "wild bull" west.

In order to handle the new production companies which are being formed by the Universal, which is now being built at the Coytesville, N. J., site, it will have every modern contrivance that has been invented to date, time or money is being spared to make this a model improvement.

As soon as "Jealousy Where Art Thou," by Raymond Schrock, scenario editor of the eastern Universal studios, has been completed, Ben Wilson and Dorothy Phillips will commence on "Souls in Pawn," by Margaret Hayes. Both of these stories are particularly well fitted to these accomplished and talented lives stars.

While waiting for the completion of the big plans for the production of the Broadway plays with Broadway stars by the Universal, which Lawrence Marston is to direct, the pioneer director took under his wing Vivian Prescott, Frances Nelson and Brinsley Shaw and the result is a corking good play, "A Vendetta" is the title and is from the gifted pen of Margaret Hayes.

Jacques Jaccard is preparing a cast for the first of his pictures since his return to the Universal company. The story is one which Mr. Jaccard wrote himself under the title, "Promises to Pay." Since Mr. Kerrigan is still in the hospital, no regular cast has been assigned as yet to Mr. Jaccard. It is generally understood, however, that he will step up a company of people about the studio who are not working and use them until such time as Mr. Kerrigan is again able to work. Lon Chaney, director of the Victor company, is about to start production on a one-reel story by Milton M. Moore, entitled "The Violin Maker." Vera Sisson, William Quinn, T. D. Crittenden and Mr. Chaney himself will appear in the principal roles.

Because of their desire to imbue their duel in the three-act "Broadway Favorites" feature, "When the World Sleeps," with realism, both Robert Walker and Henry Hallam bear marks of the fray. Walker was stabbed in the left shoulder, while Hallam sustained a wounded wrist. The weapons used were surgeon's lancets of a razor-like keenness. Fortunately, the wounds were trivial.

FOUR BIG FEATURES AT STRAND THEATER

The Strand theater offers for the coming week a program the equal of any that has ever been shown in Atlanta, embracing as it does three feature photo-dramas from the largest and most prominent companies in the world.

For Monday and Tuesday the Fox film corporation presents William Farnum, one of the highest salaried players in the film business, in The Plunderer," also on Wednesday and Thursday the Metro company will present Howard Estabrook in "Four Feathers." On Friday and Saturday Mutual Master pictures will be shown, Friday Mr. S. Hart in The Darkening Trail, and on Saturday Margarita Fisher in The Lonesome Heart.

The Fox picture shown Monday and Tuesday, "The Plunderer," was taken right here in the Empire state of Georgia. The entire company was brought from the east down to Dahlonega, Ga., in order to secure a setting suitable for the picture. Roy Norton, the brilliant young author of the story has written many good books, but none that has brought him the wealth and fame as this romance of the lure of yellow gold.

The facts in "The Plunderer" is the most thrilling bare-knuckled battle with the elements of terrific fury and its ferociousness. Farnum single-handed dizzies and bests a score of drink-mad and hate-crazed sweating miners. He toys with the enraged mineral giants like an amusement park, as with his bare knuckles, he hammers them into insensibility, avenging the murder of his aged friend, Gold Bells Parks. To get the full realism of the part, Farnum actually trained himself for eight weeks just as rigorously as if he had been getting ready for heavyweight championship. It is the most thrilling, breath-catching fist fight—fierce, terrible, that has ever been seen, smashing his foes, that not unnaturally, is the easiest job in which actors willing to face the Farnum fists.

In "Four Feathers," Wednesday and Thursday, Howard Estabrook will find an annual five-part production, just finished in the Ignata Art Film corporation, to which their chief director, L. Searle Dawley, has given months of time and energy, and a romantic story, full of martial interest, as many of the scenes are laid in Egypt, between the English and the Arabs, with whom they are fighting in Egypt. The picture has been directed by Howard Estabrook is the leading man, and playing opposite him is Miss Irene Fenwick.

William S. Hart, star of the four-part Mutual Masterpiece, "The Darkening Trail," is a master of virile, western types, has no equal but he aspires to and knows how to direct and characterize of that sort of character. Recently a subtlety and distinction have been apparent in Hart's characterizations. "Hart's performance of Yukon Jake in the Mutual Masterpiece, "The Darkening Trail," is alive with a depth of feeling that should make Mr. Hart one of the favorites of the motion picture world." The picture will be shown on Friday.

Margarita Fischer, well remembered as the creator of the part of Nal, the wonderful dancer in "The Goddess," the first Mutual Masterpiece, "The Quest" is again to the fore as the heroine of the latest of the Mutual Masterpictures, "The Lonesome Heart." Saturday's offering, "The Lonesome Heart" was produced in four parts at the Santa Barbara studios of the Mutual company under the direction of Harry Pollard. Mr. Pollard has succeeded in making this simple human story singularly appealing through a minute attention to detail. No fact that could add to a realistically complete result has been overlooked by this able director.

EXTRAORDINARY GOWNS FOR "THE SPENDTHRIFT"

George Kleine's "The Spendthrift," from the pen of Elmer Harris, a recent stage play, which is soon to be released, contains a series of scenes that will undoubtedly have a considerable appeal to the feminine contingent in every audience.

These are the scenes laid in the New York establishment of Lucile, Ltd., the well-known creator of sensational-ly celebrated modiste. These scenes were made under the direct supervision of Lady Duff-Gordon, the professional-ly celebrated modiste. These scenes were made with the direct co-operation of Lady Duff-Gordon, and the models who appear clad in several of Lucile's most bewitching creations were selected from the bevy of statuesque beauties permanently employed at the West Fifty-seventh establishment. Miss Hebe White appears in an unusually fetching dress and bonnet combination, Miss Yaha Grey in blue taffeta, Miss Lillian in a blue brocade evening creation and Miss Dolores in a dainty evening robe of coral chiffon.

ROBT. WARWICK IN NEW STELLAR FEATURE

Robert Warwick, who is the stellar feature of the World Film release, "The Face in the Moonlight," which is being produced by the World Film company, under the direction of Albert Capellani, is of the opinion that this picture will, from a purely pictorial standpoint, be the greatest picture ever produced in America. It is because of Mr. Capellani's exceptional ability in designing scenery, being unusually capable with regard to perfect production in one-reel stories additionally, he is a staunch student of French architecture, with the result that "The Face in the Moonlight," all of the scenes of which are laid in France about a century ago, is little less than a series of excellent bits of French classical architecture. Warwick finds the thoroughly provincial France on several occasions, and he believes that no better background for the screen has ever seen such glorious settings as will abound in "The Face in the Moonlight."

Hart Very Popular.

William S. Hart's popularity has reached into the remotest parts of Texas. This fact was brought visibly home to the noted actor of the Ince forces last week when he received a letter from a woman in the Lone Star state, offering him a valuable handsome silver bridle as a gift. "You have so impressed me by your work on the screen," the letter ran, "that I feel as though I want to show my appreciation in a concrete way. I have saw you in 'The Bargain' and 'On the Night Stage' and in all the two-reel pictures you have appeared in and in all of them you are the very personification of the true westerner as I know him. Please do not misconstrue my intention in asking you to accept a silver bridle from me. It will help me to think that I have in a measure repaid you for the entertainment you have given me by your work on the screen."

What, with "Billie Hart Movie clubs" and offers of silver bridles, the noted actor is becoming convinced that his work is being admired.

Rome Economizes.

Rome, Ga., May 28.—(Special.)—The city commissioners have again used the pruning knife on salaries. The salary of J. J. Cooley, clerk of the waterworks department, was reduced from $150 to $125 a month, and the engineer and firemen at the pumping station also had their pay reduced.

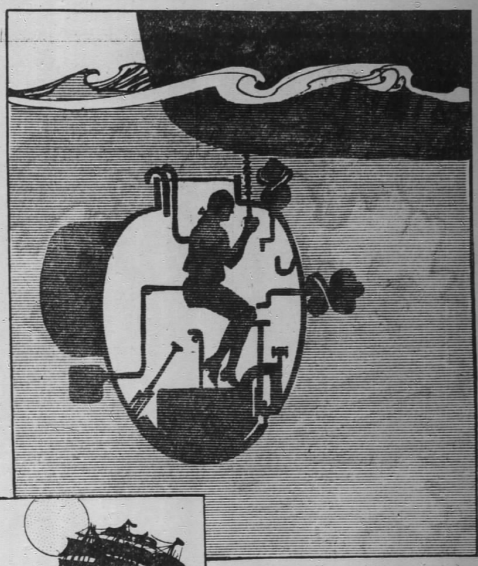
THE SUBMARINE

How Yale Freshman in Colonial Days Gave to World the First of Deadly "Water Bugs" That Have Revolutionized Naval Warfare



1771—Submarines Essentially the Same—1915

COMMENTING on the first practical "water bug" ever built, that of David Bushnell, a Yale freshman in 1771, Commander Barber of the United States navy said: "It seems to have been the most perfect thing of its kind that has ever been constructed before or since the time of Bushnell."

Sir William White, the noted constructor of the British Navy, said: "It cannot be claimed that any new principle of design has been discovered or applied since Bushnell. He showed the way to all his successors in the particulars of buoyancy, stability and control of the depth reached by submarines. Although alternative methods have been introduced and practically tested, in the end Bushnell's plans have in substance been found the best."

WHEN the Lusitania, pride of two continents, plunged to her doom off the rugged coast of Ireland a cry of horror and indignation was heard around the world. It voiced itself in the press and from the pulpit—it found echo in the shop and in the home. Truly, the god Mars had gone stark mad.

In Washington something besides the appalling loss of life and grave issues involved concerned the naval experts of our government. Beneath gold braid and military poise they are much like other men—emotional, sympathetic. But in times like these they must forget their feelings in the cold, analytical survey of science.

The sinking of the Lusitania, though an act to be deplored, was, nevertheless, another triumph for the submarine. And in this day of revolutionized warfare the submarine is of primary importance. Hence the burial of sentiment on the part of our naval experts as they weighed the facts and added them to the "Davy Jones locker" of information.

History of the Submarine.

The submarine: What is it? Who invented it? What has been the history of its evolution?

There are few in the civilized world today who cannot answer the first question. The majority could do so before the present great conflict. Those who could not learned the answer when the Aboukir, the Hogue and the Cressy, cruisers of Great Britain, were plunged to their doom in the North Sea. They learned that from the steel bowels of an invisible craft were buried the fishlike weapons that buried themselves in the armored vitals of the enemy.

But in whose fertile mind originated the first practical submarine? How speedily did the nations progress in improving on this first "water bug"? These questions, perhaps, cannot be answered so readily. It is a general impression in America that the submarine boat and its deadly companion, the torpedo, were born of twentieth century genius. But nothing could be further from the truth.

Submarine navigation, so far as recorded in history, was conceived during the famous siege of Syracuse in 212 B. C. Trained divers were employed, but they were unable to remain under water more than a few minutes. Centuries lapsed before we hear of anyone attempting to build a boat that would be invisible to an enemy. M. Delpeuch states that some English ships were destroyed in 1372 by fire carried under water. In 1620 Cornelius van Drebble, a Dutch natural philosopher, worked along this idea, constructing several boats which he made water-tight by greased leather stretched over the hull. By 1727 no less than fourteen types of submarines had been patented in England alone.

It was left to a young American, David Bushnell, to invent the first practical submarine, which he did in 1771, when a freshman at Yale. In principle it was essentially the same as the "water bugs" that prowl the seas today in search of prey. This may sound far-fetched, but it is a fact vouched for several years ago by Commander Barber of the United States navy, who carefully examined Bushnell's plans.

"It seems to have been the most perfect thing of its kind," said the commander, "that has ever been constructed before or since the time of Bushnell." To which was added the praise of John P. Holland, another American, whose brain helped to make the submarine an effective agent in war. Mr. Holland said that Bushnell's craft could give a good account of itself even in the highly developed science of present-day conflict.

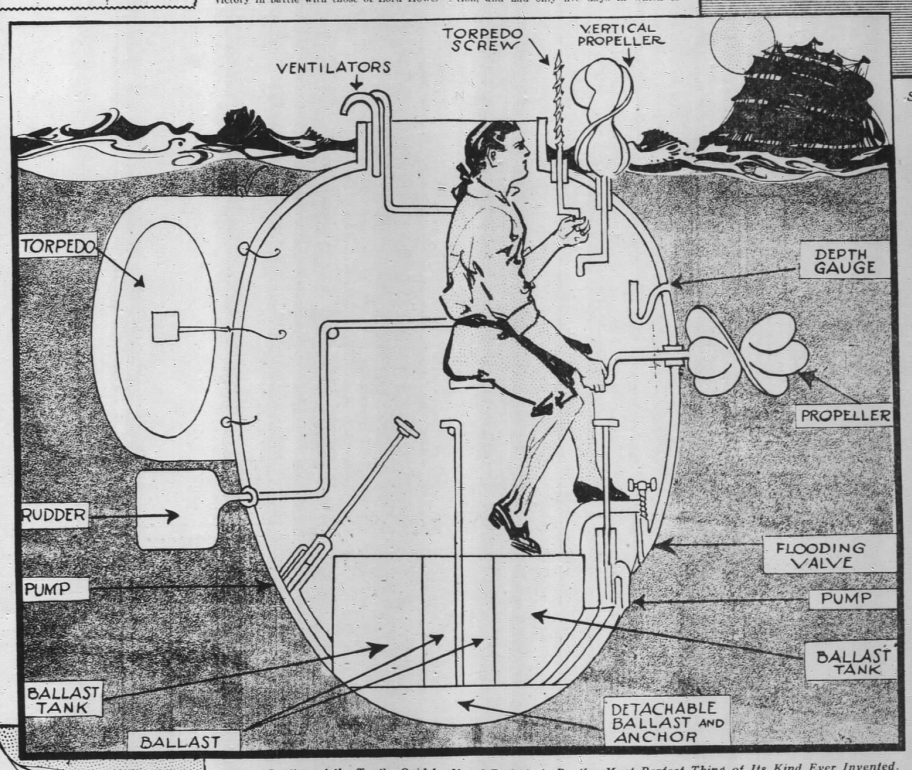
And as if this were not enough, Sir William White, the noted constructor of the British navy, said as recently as 1905: "It cannot be claimed that any new principle of design has been discovered or applied since Bushnell. He showed the way to all his successors in the particulars of buoyancy, stability and control of the depth reached by submarines. Although alternative methods have been introduced and practically tested, in the end Bushnell's plans have in substance been found the best."

Not only did Bushnell invent the submarine boat but the submarine mine as well. His professors laughted at his contention that gunpowder could be exploded under water. They even ridiculed him for advancing such a theory. But the student scientist took his professors and other learned gentlemen of "Doubting Thomas" tendencies out into New Haven harbor, where he produced such an explosion.

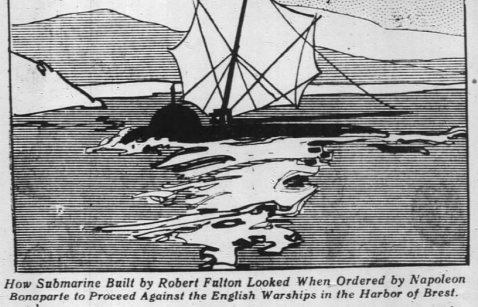
Soon after the opening of the revolutionary war Admiral Lord Howe began a blockade of New York harbor. The colonists were perturbed—and with cause. They realized that England controlled the situation for the time being, at least, and that if the hostile fleet could be destroyed the war would be ended—then and there. But how to destroy the fleet was a question. The colonies had no ships that would bring victory in battle with those of Lord Howe.

Bushnell was never a strong youth. While other boys of his home colony played games and improved their physique, he spent his time indoors, mapping out the many ingenious ideas that raced through his imaginative mind. So when the opportunity arose for him to demonstrate the practicability of his great scheme he confessed his inability to navigate the Turtle himself, because of insufficient strength.

Volunteers were called for to perform the feat of sinking the Eagle. The first to respond was Ezra Lee. He knew little, if anything, about this new sort of navigation, and had only five days in which to learn the workings of his craft, the Eagle, flagship of the British fleet, was picked as the first victim of Bushnell's genius.



Silhouette Cross-Section of the Turtle, the First Practical Submarine, Showing How Its Navigator Was Expected to Use the Torpedo Screw to Fasten the Deadly Explosive to a Ship's Hull. The Turtle Was Constructed in 1771.



How Submarine Built by Robert Fulton Looked When Ordered by Napoleon Bonaparte to Proceed Against the English Warships in the Harbor of Brest.

Cross-Section of the Turtle, Said by Naval Experts to Be the Most Perfect Thing of Its Kind Ever Invented.

The thoughts of some patriots turned to David Bushnell and his submarine mine. Granting that it was a wonderful invention, how, they asked, could it be placed under a ship? Bushnell readily gave them an answer: By means of a submarine boat. He had invented just such a craft for just such a purpose.

As Speedy as a Turtle.

Were one to see Bushnell's Turtle, the name bestowed on his queer-looking boat, alongside a modern "water bug" belonging to the powers, scarcely any resemblance would be noted. Instead of the whalelike lines that characterize these latter-day sea fighters, Bushnell's submarine was shaped something like a "round clam," its longest distance being placed vertically. This so as to accommodate a single operator in sitting posture.

The Turtle was submerged by letting water into a tank, and raised by allowing the water to drain from this same reservoir. The motive power was furnished by a wooden propeller placed in front, which the operator turned by means of a crank. It gave the boat a maximum speed of two miles an hour.

Foxfire wood, which emitted a phosphorescent light and at the same time did not exhaust any of the oxygen so precious to the operator, was the means of illumination. An ordinary rudder steered the vessel. Bushnell provided an air chamber in which the operator could remain for half an hour, and practical methods for gauging the depth and retaining the stability of his craft.

Bushnell completed his studies at Yale in 1775, but previous to that year the Turtle had made several successful voyages. One of the patriots, Israel Putnam, learning of this, sent for Bushnell and his submarine boat. After a brief conference, during which the young inventor explained the mechanism of the Turtle.

The failure to sink the British man-o'-war may be partly explained by this fact. Technically, say submarine experts, there was no reason why the Turtle should not have sent the Eagle to its doom.

Ezra Lee propelled the submarine to where the British flagship lay off Staten Island. Submerging the Turtle, he came up under the stern of the enemy. The submarine carried a single torpedo, held in place by a cable with a screw. Bushnell had made it possible for whoever navigated his boat to detach this screw and fasten it in the hull of the ship to be destroyed. Having done this, the Turtle was to leave. Within the torpedo was a time clock set for thirty minutes. After that time the explosion was due to occur.

The Greatest Problem.

But a problem confronted Ezra Lee. At the point under the hull of the Eagle where he had planned to place the torpedo a sheath of copper prevented him from screwing on his weapon of destruction. Though Lee did his best to overcome this difficulty, he worked in vain. As the light of morning began to filter through murky clouds he backed away, leaving his torpedo afloat. Thirty minutes later this exploded, sending huge columns of water high in the air not far from the Eagle.

It was a great disappointment to Bushnell's friends, who had forecast a complete success for the experiment. The name of the Turtle became a name to be laughed at and ridiculed. Bushnell, discouraged and sick at heart, the result of years of hard work vanished in a day, disappeared from his old haunts.

A quarter of a century elapsed before we again hear of the submarine being taken at all seriously. Napoleon Bonaparte, with practically all the powers leagued against him, had one great ambition—an invasion of England. The first step in this direction was to do away with the English navy, which just then was blockading the French coast.

Robert Fulton Appears.

One day, in the midst of his deliberations as to how he could land an army on the shores of England, Napoleon received a letter from Robert Fulton, who then was in Paris. "The sea which separates you from your enemy," it read, "gives him an immense advantage over you. I have it in my power to cause this obstacle which protects him to disappear."

Napoleon thought there might be something in the opinions of Fulton, so accordingly he appointed a commission to investigate. Several demonstrations of Fulton's boat were given in the harbor of Brest. His craft, though a development of Bushnell's idea, showed a considerable improvement over that of the latter. It resembled an ordinary sloop, its motive power being furnished by a jib and a sail. These were removed and laid lengthwise on the deck just before the boat descended.

The experiments of Fulton were successful. With three companions he sailed his craft 500 feet while twenty-five feet beneath the surface of the water. On one occasion the four men remained below four hours. A shallop placed at their disposal by the French admiralty was a mass of debris after the submarine had attacked her. Napoleon, impressed with the action of Fulton's boat, ordered him to set sail against the British fleet, just off Brest.

But the English in some way had been forewarned. They realized then, as naval experts realize now, that one defense against the submarine—and perhaps the best defense—is to run away. And run away they did. The ships of Britain absented themselves from the coast of France, and though Fulton watched and waited, he received no opportunity to prove the value of his invention.

Napoleon, angry, heaped coals of fire on the head of Fulton and dismissed him from the service. That he committed a grievous error—that he threw away his only chance of crushing England and saving his empire—has always been the assertion of French naval historians.

English Appreciated Its Worth.

But if France did not appreciate the worth of Fulton's invention England did. Even while the American was carrying on his experiments in the harbor of Brest they had invited him to London. In fact, several attempts were made to entice him. On the rejection of his plans by Napoleon Fulton forthwith made the trip across the channel, where William Pitt received him with open arms.

"If your boat is introduced into practice," said the prime minister, after examining Fulton's plans, "it will annihilate all military marines."

When Fulton entered Deal Harbor in his submarine and blew up a Danish brig of 200 tons Pitt was more confident than ever. He sent Fulton to Lord St. Vincent, the first lord of the admiralty, which angered that gentleman.

"What a fool Pitt is!" he thundered. "Why does he encourage a kind of warfare which is useless to those who are masters of the sea, and which, if it succeeds, will deprive them of this supremacy?"

Pitt knew this without being reminded of it by Lord St. Vincent. So did other officials of the government. Their intention was not to develop the submarine but to suppress it. They did not want it to fall into the hands of the enemy. Accordingly, they offered Fulton a fortune to forget about his invention and return to America. In a letter to Lord Granville Fulton waxed indignant. "Not for £20,000 a year," he wrote, "would I do what you suggest."

Fulton returned to America, having been turned down by England and France, and ceased experimenting with the submarine, turning his genius upon his steamboat.

Return of Submarine.

It was at Kiel, in 1850, that the submarine again came into prominence. A man named Bauer built a craft which he called the "Plongeur-Marin," but on a trial trip it was crushed by water pressure. In 1863 McClintock and Howgate constructed a semi-submarine hand-propelled boat for the purpose of an attack on the federal fleet, but it sank four times, each time drowning the entire crew of eight men.

The "Whale," now on exhibition in the Brooklyn navy yard, was built in 1864, and, by strange coincidence, one of her constructors bore the same name as the first inventor of a submarine—Bushnell. His full name was C. S. Bushnell. In conjunction with Augustus Rice he built the boat at Halstead, N. J. She is about twenty-nine feet long and has a depth of nine feet. Her sides are made of twelve-inch boiler plate.

THIS is the first of two pages describing the submarine from the earliest days of its experimental stages to its present state of efficiency in naval warfare. Next week's story will treat of the modern submarine.

BEHIND THE SCREENS

WITH BRIT CRAIG.

DEAR PATRONS:

It is with exceeding displeasure that we take our Remington upon our knee tonight to write to you with a spirit as listless as a bromo-seltzer when it has knocked off work and with an unfathomable vacuum where there was a wealth of ideas the day we recommended ourselves for this job.

When the spring fever germ runs up and bites you there isn't one chance in a thousand you'll recover. When your mind begins wandering over and beyond the Terminal station and you stand on the Forsyth street bridge envying the freight trains going east, it's time to see a doctor, not to write. Anyhow, here goes!

* * *

Idea No. 1—The Helen Sort.

We shall now proceed to eavesdrop the conversation of two village wiseacres who are discussing pro and con the advantages of marrying a girl of the Helen of Kalem sort.

The gentleman on the negative is arguing that it would be dissatisfying to link with a Hazardous Helen, who, like the historical Helen of Troy, is so audaciously bold that she would make life a misery with her havoc-wreaking dare-devilishness.

But the defender of the affirmative has his own views on the subject.

"You're all wrong. She'd be the easiest on earth to handle," he argues.

"But you wouldn't have to coax a Hazardous Helen."

"Then how?"

"Dare her!"

"You win."

Ambitious Lillie.

Lillie Leslie, the Vampire of the Lubin studios, has ambitions all her own. We quote from a recent interview:

"To any woman with the instinct of the actress strong in her, what can, therefore, be stronger in appeal than the role of the adventuress who is, by her very existence, super-dramatic."

"I love to play those parts. I love to slink into a room to find a big, strong man, a master of men, waiting there for me, and feel that he is in my power, and that with a smile I can twist him about my little finger, wreck him with a kiss, drive him to a frenzy with a granted caress—or to suicide with a caress withheld."

Perhaps if we had as much confidence in our typewriter, our idea-container, our salary, as lovely Lillie has in her finger, her kisses, her caresses, we'd be exceedingly ambitious, too.

Rosemary for Remembrance.

Sob sisters on the moving picture magazines say the name Rosemary is an apt one to bestow upon the lovely Miss Theby, because the flower, rosemary, is an emblem of fidelity, constancy and remembrance. They add that she is the personification of all these.

No wonder, then, that she's a star of the first magnitude.

Writers, artists, tear-wringers and idly curious who have interviewed her say they cannot help wondering at the fascination of the olive skinned little actress, so wholesome, simple, sweet and unaffected.

They say the simplicity of the "rosemary" radiates from her personality as sweetly as the perfume of the flower. Everybody, they say, falls in love with Rosemary.

She left home five years ago on the trail of fame, which, at that time, she had not picked up. Home was Boston and her first stop was New York. Louis and Otto Wenig were doing the same thing and will continue to do so as long as bright lights and musical comedies glow on Broadway.

Both had other girlish fame-seekers handicapped in the respect that she could afford a course of dramatic studies in the Sargent School of Acting. She studied assiduously and they say in the Horatio Alger books for a year, then started upon the customary weary round of the booking offices in search of a job.

Of course, she had rebuffs and footsores and every once in a while the orthodox suicidal intentions, but finally, just as the shoe of theatrical ambitions seemed sinking helplessly beyond the horizon of hopelessness, a kind benefactor took her over and introduced her to someone in the Vitagraph studio, who evidently felt the radiance the rosemary personifies, gave her a minor job with the "extras," and she lived to see her immortalized in celluloid.

Will Chaplin Survive?

There is a deluge of old Keystone comedy releases. It is possible to step into most any theater downtown and see a Charley Chaplin picture. Not only that, but imitators are traveling the streets in Chaplin garb and make-up, exploiting the benefits of patent medicines and painless dentistry. Vaudeville "artists" are busy copping all the available "rough stuff" in the Chaplin repertoire.

Will the eminent Chaplin, emperor of violent comedy and fad of a nation, survive the blow of too much popularity?

Cerise's Heart.

In advertising "The Heart of Cerise," Universal has this to say: "It is a powerful drama of love, replete with pathos, jealousy, hate, terror, sorrow and vengeance."

Is that all?

Always Thirsty.

Howard Estabrook's new vehicle is "Four Feathers." One feather less, and we'll promise to like it.

Ostermoor Model Spouses.

Since reading in the advertisement of "The Slim Princess," a bit of the private correspondence of George Ade, we have advised the Cook Tours to cancel all Turkish points on our grand tour of the universe this year's vacation.

"The Slim Princess," Ade writes, "was conceived a few years ago when I visited Turkish regions. At that time every young woman in America was trying to compress herself into a slender figure, but I learned that in the Mohammedan Orient the fat and roly poly maiden was still the acknowledged type of beauty."

That Clara Kimball Young, taking her press agent's word for it, is "insouciantly vivacious?"

That Anita Stewart is a chestnut blonde and only twenty-two?

That Yale Boss has just donned pants?

That Helen Case is compared to a shrinking violet?

That Mack Sennett goes to crime and sex for most of his Keystone comedy ideas?

That Herbert Prior is English by birth, but came across at an age early enough to escape conscription today?

Luck Not Always Favors Beauty.

Warren Kerrigan has a twin brother, an ugly twin, who looks just as disenchanting as the other twin looks handsome. The ugly twin says he's the luckiest of the pair. He says:

"The Lord gave Warren all the good lucks, but the women don't bother me.

"Oh, yes, I'm a lot luckier."

WHAT THEY SAY About F. X. Bushman

(Male.)

"Gee, but he's a big stiff to be so effeminate!"

"Aw, you don't see any watches on that guy's wrist—that sissy stuff ain't natural, fellow. I'll bet he's a regular guy."

"Anyhow, I wouldn't risk his wallop."

(Female.)

"So handsome!"

"And those eyes!"

"I wonder if he really isn't married."

"He must be terribly popular!"

Barring accidents, or should I say, barring bars, I will meet you again this time next week.

RUTH BLAIR APPEARS ON MUTUAL PROGRAM

Beautiful and graceful Ruth Blair, leading lady with the Pyramid company in pictures appearing on the United program, possesses exquisite charm, wears wonderful clothes and affects a daintiness of bearing that have caused her to be likened to the well-known Mrs. Vernon Castle ever since she came into prominence.

Miss Blair is essentially an artist, and it is the artist's eye to perfection and harmony in color, line and texture that she brings to the planning of the exquisite costumes in which she appears in pictures, or on the street, or at home. No lovely hue of sky, ocean, water, or flower which can be used in the designing and coloring of her garments escapes Miss Blair's eye, and immediately after a new conception of still possibilities has come to her, she hastens to her studio and paint box, and presences it for future use. She designs her own costumes, and creates her own styles, as well, drawing them and painting them so that her dressmakers will have no trouble in following her ideas.

Miss Blair will play opposite Edwin August, who is the star for the Pyramid-United Program pictures.

Ruth Roland.

Ruth Roland, who is being featured in the Pathe-Balboa "Who Pays?" series, has been on the stage for thirteen years and is only 22. Few of the screen favorites of the day can point to a record like that.

Miss Roland made her debut at the age of four as "Baby Ruth" on the Pacific coast, and was regarded as a phenomenon. When she was playing Little Lord Fauntleroy at the age of 6 in San Francisco, she attracted the attention of David Belasco, who did not hesitate to say that she was the best child actress he had ever seen.

Last December she received the offer of a year's contract with Balboa at a flattering salary, to star in the big "Who Pays?" series, about to be made for Pathe, and accepted. In this series she has found a fitting vehicle for her art, and her work has received universal praise. Gifted with a particularly expressive and mobile face it is very easy for her to convey her thought by her facial expression.

The dolls used by Myrtle Tannehill, the star of the legitimate stage who is featured in the "Broadway Favorites" production, "When the Mind Sleeps," are almost as old as she is. As a matter of fact, the dolls have been in Miss Tannehill's possession ever since she was an infant, and she regards them as her mascots.

Pretty Film Stars Will Be Seen at Atlanta Theaters This Week In Plays Which Will Have a General Appeal to "Movie" Patrons

ANSWERS TO MOVIE FANS

R. S.: The leading part in "Life's Shop Window" was played by Claire Whitney. She was at the Grand.

E. L. A.: James Cruze will shortly appear in another picture. Watch The Constitution for announcements. We don't know his religion. He is in the late twenties, and has been married for several years. The pictures he appears in are taken in different localities.

Janet, a Fan: Mary Pickford is married to Owen Moore. Rosemary Theby is married to Harry Meyers. The rest you mention are not married.

Adele: Grace Cunard, Francis Ford and Anna Little are not married. Herbert Rawlinson is in the early twenties. William Worthington is in the early thirties. Edward Solman is not at present in the same company as Cleo Madison. She lives at Universal City, Cal. Don't know her salary.

Alice: Sorry, but the film company representative here is unable to tell us who played the part you mention in "The Man on the Case." Address Howard Estabrook, care of the Pyreda Art Films, Los Angeles, Cal. No, he and Barbara Tennant are not married. Write to the question and answer department of the magazine.

Vergie R.: Elizabeth Burbridge was Molly in "The Gangsters and Their Girls" (Kay-Bee). Margaret Thompson was the pickpocket in the same. Rhea Mitchell in "The First Love's Best" (Kay-Bee). Eibhard Stanton in "Your Account Smith" (Kay-Bee). Fannie Midgley was her wife. Thelma Salter the little girl. Enid Markey was Grace in "Harold God of the Sea." Marcel Stafford was Eva. Harry Keenan was Bronson. Muriel Ostriche was Senorita and Boyd Marshall her lover in "The Little Senorita." Signora Giovanni Terribili in "Cleopatra."

Louise S.: Crane Wilbur is to play opposite Mary Charleston for the Lubin company.

Seaside: Antonio Moreno never posed under name of Ray Gallacher in Melies. Yes, there is some similarity. Ray Gallacher is with Universal. He was formerly with Melies.

Auburn lady: John Smiley and Justina Huff in "The House of Darkness." Hubby: Leo Delaney was Billy in "A Elopment at Home" (Vitagraph). Harold Lockwood was Robert, Belvleyene. William Worthington starts with Warren Kerrigan sometimes. "Baggage Coach Ahead" was an Edison.

Snapshots.

After her narrow escape from the flames in "Near Eternity," Helen Holmes, the heroine of the Hazards of Helen Railroad Series, intends to fireproof her clothes. Some one with a knowledge of chemistry informed the captivating Kalem star that by dipping her clothes in an ammonia phosphate solution, she would make them absolutely fire-proof. Miss Holmes experimented to the extent of dipping a handkerchief into this solution and then applying a match to the linen. The success of this experiment caused her to decide to fire-proof all the dresses she wears in motion pictures.

It is announced by the New York Motion Picture corporation that Billie Burke, the popular actress, who has appeared under the management of the late Charles Frohman for the past several years, has signed a contract to work in pictures and is now at the Kay Bee studios, in Los Angeles.

Keystone Notes.

Owen Moore appeared on one of the Keystone stages last week attired in the latest word in evening clothes just in time to receive a drenching. An overhead tank of water that was prepared for a comedy scene burst just as Mr. Moore walked beneath it and he got the whole force of the falling water. One dress suit was ruined and one temper slightly ruffled by the accident.

* * *

Mack Swain has a new fad. He found a swarm of bees in his yard recently and hastened into Los Angeles from Edendale, bought a hive, and managed to get the swarm safely housed. The insects went to work at once and "Ambrose" Swain is so pleased with their honey-making activities that he is contemplating the purchase of several more hives and the bees to fill them.

* * *

Ford Sterling, Frank Griffin and Roscoe Arbuckle were all making pictures at the beaches near Los Angeles when the severe storms that have been sweeping the coast started. They stayed with it and finished under great difficulties.

* * *

May Busch has received much favorable comment for her excellent work in a number of recent Keystone releases.

* * *

Mabel Normand, "Queen of the Movies" and feature comedienne with the Keystone Film company, was approached by a representative of the most powerful vaudeville organization in the United States last week and an offer of thirty weeks' engagement at an enormous salary was offered. Miss Normand was unable to accept as she is signed up on a contract with the Keystone company and receives a salary that is quite sufficient to make vaudeville temptations of little account to her. Miss Normand has been with the Keystone company since it made its first picture in 1912 and is as much a part of the Keystone as a lens is of a camera.

FARM LANDS.

GRAPE FRUIT and orange farm in Florida, situated in one of the best orange and truck counties in the state; lies on a beautiful lake about 4 miles from town; 80 acres in all, 20 acres fenced, 14 acres planted with 450 choice orange and grape fruit trees, 1 to 4 years old; good 5-room house, large porch, painted and in good condition; good barn and two wells water; land produces well, watermelons, velvet beans, sweet potatoes, natal grass and truck of all kinds. It is a splendid proposition and can be had for less than the raw land is worth, owing to the recent death of one of the owners and must be sold for division; titles perfect. We sold a place near this in January and party we sold to will not even put price on his purchase. If you want something good at a bargain write us today for price and particulars. Clark & Stewart, 629 Healey building.

16,000 ACRES in one body. Here is an opportunity to make a million dollars; $25,000 cash will handle the first payment; can make terms on balance ten years, 6 per cent; 80 per cent of this land is high, dry, suitable to cultivate; enough timber to pay for it. Don't take our word, go and see for yourself. It is located between two of the very best towns in southwest Georgia; railroad and public roads run through the tract; fine for subdivision or game reserve; 10-room house, waterworks, lights, 5 cottages, 12 tenant houses, several barns and other outhouses; large fish pond stocked with fish. Price $5.50 an acre. This is beyond any question of a doubt the biggest bargain ever offered in south Georgia, and it is a certainty that you can double your money in short time. Thos. W. Jackson-Burwell Co., 1018-19 Fourth Nat. Bank bldg.

345 ACRES, southwest Georgia. This is an ideal farm in every respect, dark, pebbly soil, with clay subsoil, level and very productive, on 135 acres in cultivation last year they made 50 bales of cotton, 700 bushels of corn, 300 bushels of oats, 150 bushels of peas, 500 bushels of sweet potatoes, 100 bushels of Irish potatoes, 450 bales of hay; is rented this year for 15 bales of cotton; splendid 7-room bungalow, painted inside and out, celled, 90 feet of wide veranda, two large barns, four tenant houses; all buildings are new, 2½ miles from county seat on main graded highway; price, $14,500; terms. If you are looking for a modern, up-to-date, money-making farm, it is before you. Thos. W. Jackson-Burwell Co., 1018-19 4th Nat'l Bank building.

REALIZE the possibilities of Burbank Spineless Cactus. Begin to get your profits now. Heaviest producing feed known. Spreading rapidly. Fine for dairy cows, cattle, hogs, chickens; insures your feed supply; makes poor land productive; makes good land earn more. Produces 40-125 tons per acre annually. A natural silage; green all year; ready to feed at any time. Can be left growing when not needed. First crop within 90 days; continually producing thereafter. I will supply planting stock on very easy terms, giving time for crops to pay. Can show you how profits of $300-$1,000 per acre can be made in first year. I averaged more during 1914. Be first to start in your section, where cactus will soon be widely planted. Arthur Vernon, Hearst Bldg., San Francisco, California.

Sports Clothes

A NOVEL hat for either sport or motor wear is this white felt with satin facing. For motor wear a billowy chiffon veil is snapped on and draped to suit the wearer.

THE "Piping Rock" riding habit to the right is one of the season's notable models. A combination of materials is used, the coat of diagonal serge combines well with the saddle skirt of broadcloth. A black and white banded sailor, smart stock and riding boots complete this smart outfit.

SPORTS suit of heavy, natural-color linen built on lines strongly suggesting the military, are modish. The jacket of the suit on the left shows four patch pockets, and is gathered in at the waistline to a narrow belt below which it flares into a peplum. The ball buttons of white enamel are an effective finish.

I Am Trying to Hand You Gold Dollars For Just Half Their Value. Will You Accept My Proposition?

GOLD DOLLARS will never be worth more than $1.00 each, but you can lay one down here and pick up two on the same spot. It's no sleight-of-hand trick, but a plain, practical business proposition. I want you to make money and I love to pile up profits for my friends. Here is what I am doing for you, and I have done it for others: Just go with me where I am offering those lots in the McLeod-McDowell property at $400, $450, $500, $550, $600, $650 and I will show you where you can make a fortune, large or small. Trust me for values and I will show you the best place to buy. I mean that I will aid you in selecting 1, 2, 3, 4, 5 or 10 lots upon which you are bound to make money as sure as the sun shines in Heaven.

THERE IS NOTHING ON EARTH to prevent you from doing just what I say: Make money—make good money—right here. It's your opportunity and my pleasure to present it to you. It will not and cannot last much longer. The necessity is upon us and we must meet pressing obligations. That's the only reason for selling this property at all.

LOCATION IS SUPERB: Grant Park section. McLeod, Atlanta, Rosedale, Marion, Confederate and Home avenues.

I can make easy terms if desired. Come and see me or talk with your agent.

KNOWLES LOW MAN OUT OF 92 GOLFERS

Clarence Knowles, with a low cross score of 82, won a trophy and set the pace for ninety-two golfers who took part in the 18-hole qualifying round of the Dickey cup tournament over the links of the Capital City club course at Brookhaven yesterday. Five flights were filled and match play now begins, with the finals a week from next Saturday.

The day was a success from every angle. The entry list was one of the largest that has ever started in a local club handicap tournament, the weather ideal and the course in excellent shape. Many compliments were paid Professional Scotty McKenzie and the members of the green committee for the results they have achieved despite the season's dry start. The greens were a pleasure to putt on and a thick matting of turf throughout the fair course permitted efficient iron play. The new nine holes, it was noticed, are also coming along nicely and will doubtless be opened up before long.

W. S. Hickey, with an 83, was second in the gross scoring and tied with E. R. Rivers and C. M. McGee for the low net score of 68.

The first round of match play must be completed by Wednesday, the second by Saturday, the semi-finals by the following Wednesday and the finals by the following Saturday. Handicaps will apply in all matches which will be over the 18-hole route with the exception of the finals, which will go 36 holes.

Pairings for match play follow, with the player's handicap appearing before his name and his net score in the qualifying round following:

PRESIDENT JEMISON GOES TO GAINESVILLE

To Effect Formal Transfer of Americus Franchise to Florida City.

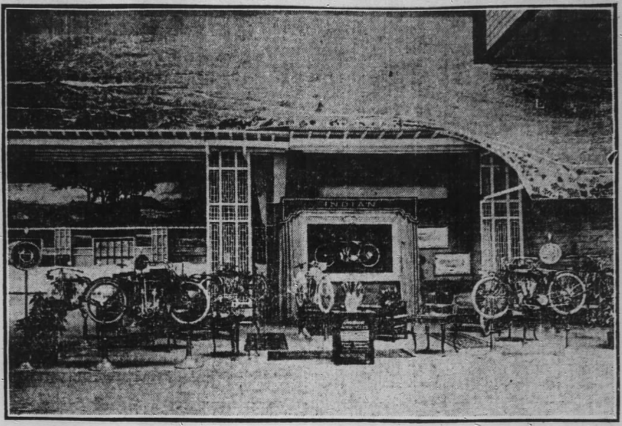
President Dick Jemison, of the Georgia State league, left last night for Gainesville, Fla., to spend today and Monday. While there, he will effect the formal transfer of the Americus franchise to the Florida city.

Since Americus surrendered the franchise to the league on April 15, President Jemison has been running the affairs of the club, while searching for some city anxious to get into professional baseball.

Manager Wagnon will take the team to Gainesville from Thomasville today and the Orphans as they have been known since May 15, will play their first game at Gainesville, in the Georgia State league on Monday with Brunswick as their opponents.

The pennant that the Americus team won last season, has also been turned over to Gainesville and will be raised at some future date in the season. The Gainesville club is planning on making several changes in the personnel of the team that they expect to put the club right back in the running.

Indian Exhibit at San Francisco Attracts Attention of Thousands



The Indian, "from start to finish, knocked down and complete," is displayed on miniature stage prepared by artists.

The Indian exhibit in the Transportation building at the San Francisco exposition is attracting admiring attention from the thousands who have so far made the trip across the country to the great fair and is sending many away converted to enthusiasm for motorcycles, who previously had no use for the machines. It represents months of patient work by artists and machinists in getting it ready and has already been judged one of the most effective in the long line of transportation utilities on view.

The background for the exhibit is a miniature stage, surrounded by a large hand-carved frame, covered with gold leaf and draped on both sides in pale green silk curtains. The back-drop is all in black and suspended in midair is a motorcycle which could not be more refined. Its color is that of ruby red wine. All parts are silver plated. Mufflers and magnetos are a brilliant blue. The saddle is of white patent leather.

Other models are a big two-speed, enameled red; a service single, red; a big two-speed and parcel car, canary yellow; a two-speed Little Twin, blue; a three-speed electrically equipped, with the Hendee Special Mag-Dynamo, with only three electrical wires leaving the dynamo. This interesting mechanism is enameled white. There is a big three-speed and side car, red; a 3 1-2 twin, three-speed, red; a speedway model, 7 horsepower, light gray; a black service single, three-speed and a big twin regular, red.

The show cases contain sections of all the different parts of the models. One case has a mag-dynamo in operation, keeping up a steady sparking, as well as lighting the head and tail lights that are mounted above the case. Another case, which is the most interesting of the exhibits, contains a working engine, which has been cut sectionally in all possible parts, showing every little movement, from the oiler—of which the entire mechanism can be seen—to the cams, cylinders and flywheels.

Another case has an engine cut in two, showing the small parts in detail, scattered about the engine; suggesting a sort of mechanical hen and her little chicks.

Another case has the three-speed, two-speed and neutral with a carburetor in half section. Still another case has the clutch parts, and an assembled clutch in section, all parts of which can be plainly seen. Another case contains the head and forks, in section.

On the floor are great beautiful rugs and comfy soft seats. Among the decorations, fine but inconspicuous, are two hand-painted pictures, one of the factory on State street in Springfield, the other of Hendeeville; both in hand-carved frames.

Catalogues are there—in English, French, Portuguese, Japanese and Spanish. It is understood that the exhibit cost $35,000.

BENZ AND PIERCE LEAD TWIRLERS

Cubs' and White Sox's Great Right-Handers Have Yet to Be Defeated This Season.

Benz, of the White Sox, and Pierce, of the Cubs, are the leading twirlers of the major leagues to date. Neither has lost a game this season.

BORROW WINS.

Captures Kentucky Handicap From a Classy Field.

Louisville, Ky., May 29.—L. S. Thompson's 7-year-old gelding, Borrow, carrying 126 pounds, won the Kentucky handicap at a mile and a quarter at Douglas Park here today over a heavy, holding track. Hodge was second and Prince Hermis third. Net value of the stake to the winner was $11,700. The time was 2:10 2-5. Jockey J. Notter rode Borrow. Thompson has leased the Harry Payne Whitney stables.

Borrow's advantage over W. J. Weber's Hodge was an open length and a half, and Hodge by a half length beat Lew Marion's Prince Hermis. The next two horses, Emerson Cochran and Short Grass, were heads behind. Royal II., six lengths away, led the other starters of a field of nine. Roamer, Andrew Miller's champion 3-year-old of last year and today's betting favorite, was eighth, more than twenty lengths back of the leaders.

At the start Roamer flashed to the fore and kept the lead for nearly a mile, until his impost of 127 pounds, top weight, began to tell on his efforts. Prince Hermis took up the lead, but he relinquished it when Borrow challenged.

Jockey Notter kept Borrow well up with the leaders during the early stages and when just about to turn into the stretch rushed through the field and retained his advantage to the end.

Behind Royal II. the other starters finished in order, Ringling twelve lengths; Roamer, ten lengths, and David Craig last.

Borrow is owned by Harry Payne Whitney, who recently leased his racing stable to L. S. Thompson.

The handicap is the second capital stake captured on Kentucky tracks this season by the Whitney stable. His filly Regret won the derby.

Eight Southern Records Are Broken in Meet Held at New Orleans

New Orleans, May 29.—Eight southern records were smashed and two others equaled in the senior events of the Southern Amateur Athletic Union Track and Field championship meet held at Tulane Stadium today. The Young Men's Gymnastic Club of New Orleans won the meet with a total of 35 points. Tulane was second with 24 points; St. Paul's College of Covington, third, with 15 points, and St. Paul's Athletic Association of Covington, fourth, with 14 points.

Others finished as follows: Eunice High school, 13; Independents, 12; Mississippi A. & M., 9; Baton Rouge High school, 7; Catholic Athletic association, New Orleans, 6; Covington college, 4; Birmingham Y. M. C. A., 3, and Lafayette, 2. With the exception of entrants from Birmingham Y. M. C. A., the contestants largely represented Mississippi and Lousiana schools and colleges.

The performance of Danna Jenkins, the Eunice High school lad, who has featured in recent southern athletic meets, upset expectations in the 440-yard dash when he defeated Donald Scott, Mississippi A. & M., southern intercollegiate champion. Jenkins ran the race in 50 seconds flat, equaling the former record.

Jenkins equaled another record when he won the 220-yard dash in 22 1-5 seconds.

Donald Scott, of Mississippi A & M., clipped six seconds off the half-mile record of 2:01 3-5, when he easily took that event in 1:55 3-5 seconds.

Will Lewis, of Baton Rouge High school, won the high hurdles race, setting a new mark of 15 3-5 seconds. The record was 16 2-5 seconds.

Four-fifths of a second was cut off the 220-yard low hurdles record by P. Johnston, of the New Orleans Y. M. G. C., his time being 25 1-2 seconds.

O. A. Smith, an unattached entry, captured the three-mile run in 16:24 1-5, beating Alex Norman, New Orleans Y. M. G. C., the former champion, and lowering Norman's record of 16:45 3-5.

In the running high jump, D. Griffin, New Orleans Y. M. G. C., cleared the bar at 6 feet 1-4 inch. The old record was 5 feet 10 inches.

The former record of 21 feet 9 1-2 inches for the running broad jump was broken by Oakes, of Tulane, who set a new mark at 22 feet 4 1-2 inches.

Boudreaux, of St. Paul's Athletic association, beat the former record of 40 feet 4 1-2 inches in the 10-pound shot put, with a throw of 43 feet 3 inches.

Barcello, unattached, threw the 16-pound hammer 122 feet 2 inches, breaking the former mark of 118 feet 11 inches.

GONE FROM HERE IS GREAT TYRUS

Georgia Peach Is Now Hitting at .419 Clip—Fournier, Chicago, Is Second and Joe Jackson Third.

Tyrus Raymond Cobb continues to crowd on full speed ahead in the race for the batting honors in the American league. In a week the Georgia Peach gained 19 points. A week ago he was hitting .400. Through last Wednesday's game he climbed to .419.

Cobb is off in front in three other departments. He has made more hits than any player, has scored more runs and stolen more bases. He seems destined at his present pace to break all existing records.

Fournier, of the White Sox, is in second position in batting, with Joe Jackson third. Here are the players who are hitting .270 or better, and who have participated in ten or more games through the games played Wednesday, May 26:

FOOTBALL OFFICIALS FOR BIG BATTLES

Philadelphia, Pa., May 29.—Officials for the more important football games next fall were chosen here last night at a meeting of the intercollegiate football rules committees' subcommittee on officials. Dr. James A. Babbitt, of Haverford college, presided, and men prominent in the gridiron affairs of all the leading colleges were present.

Tufts, of Brown, will referee, and Fultz, also of Brown, will umpire the Yale-Harvard game, while Dr. Williams, Pennsylvania, will be field judge and Morice, Pennsylvania, head linesman. At the Princeton-Harvard contest, Lanford, of Trinity, will referee; Williams, umpire; Pendleton, Bowdoin, will act as field judge and G. H. Barthart linesman. For the Yale-Princeton game Tufts will referee; Marshall, umpire, Morice will be field judge, and Pendleton, linesman.

In the Pennsylvania-Michigan game Langford, Fultz, Echersall and Holderness will be the officials, while in the Pennsylvania-Cornell game, on Thanksgiving day, the same officials as acted last year have again been chosen.

Tufts will referee both the Princeton-Dartmouth and Pennsylvania-Dartmouth contests. Hallahan will umpire the former game and Fultz the latter.

TRADE BALANCE IS NOW $900,000,000

In Business Circles Everything Except War Has Been Discounted—Powerful Interests Bulwarked for Any Emergency.

New York, May 29.—(Special.)—The stock market had another extremely dull week, as a result of the waiting attitude assumed by all interests until the reply to President Wilson's note to Germany has been received. The torpedoing of another American ship was heard of with great concern in the security markets, and there are many here who consider it, in view of the time when it happened, as of more consequence than any preceding event. While there was nothing like general selling following the report regarding the Nebraskan, an incipient upward movement in values was followed by a little weakness. It is reiterated in Wall street, however, that the market has long since discounted everything but a war, and that even war would not shake out enough stock to cause a big break in prices. This view is based upon the kind of buying which has been noted since the first heavy selling following the sinking of the Lusitania. This has been of a variety which suggests that large interests have bulwarked themselves for any kind of an attack on prices. It is so evident that many companies having large earnings which cannot be much affected by even a war, and which pay dividends are being classed with others which would suffer severely that the shares of the former at least, at recent low market prices, are being given not only the backing of security market traders, but of banks as well. There has also been some buying of such securities, these which even a war could not hurt much, for investment.

"War Stocks" See-saw.

The "war stocks" performed their usual weekly gyrations, moving rapidly up and down to the accompaniment of either rumors regarding orders or news or rumors regarding the international situation as affecting this country. Railroad shares and industrials not figuring in the war munitions trade were neglected during much of the week. The greatest loss in trade during the last week has been in bond trading, which had not been as dull as stocks during the preceding week or so. Bond sales since May 15 have been smaller than in any similar period so far in 1915.

Money Market Dull.

The money market was extremely dull during the last week, with borrowing demand small, and with lenders making little effort to place funds. Rates for call loans went below 1 1-2 per cent, while for as long as 60 days' time loans at barely above 2 per cent were recorded, with all rates at the lowest point of recent weeks.

The engagement of large sums of gold for importation to the United States before the end of a month, with probably at least $50,000,000 and possibly more than $100,000,000 is talked of in the foreign exchange market since the receipt of about $40,000,000 by the Bank of England from France, with much steadying effect on foreign exchange, as has large purchases and support of sterling exchange by a leading banking house here. It is reported that this house has made arrangements with the British treasury to support sterling exchange here.

Trade Balance Grows.

The trade balance in favor of the United States to the end of May is estimated at about $900,000,000 for the current fiscal year, with indications that it will pass the $1,000,000,000 mark before the end of the fiscal year, June 30. For the ten months to April 30 it was $851,358,319. Exports to Great Britain, France and Russia for the nine months to March 31 were $867,633,534, or $230,000,000 more than for the corresponding period last year; to Germany and Austria-Hungary they were $30,079,858, or over $275,000,000 less than last year; to European neutrals, $402,156,814, or $230,000,000 ahead of last year; decreases in all other exports were shown.

Increased Industry.

Reports from all sources continue to indicate that, even though hesitancy is being shown in security market circles because of the situation in regard to Germany, great progress toward prosperity is being made in general industry. This is especially true of the near, middle and far west. Between the Atlantic seaboard and Pacific coast states, all signs point to great expansion in industrial conditions as compared with those of six to eight months ago, while the large crop promise for the current year holds encouragement to the belief that, even though the war lasts, there will be greater activity for agricultural, industrial and transportation interests in the territory specified than has been seen in many years. New England and middle Atlantic states are progressing, but more slowly as they lack the direct impetus which large crops and high grain prices have given not only the grain country, but all states bordering on or near it. Recovery in the south has been good, when considereing the great blow dealt business there through the low prices prevailing for cotton. The Pacific coast states are in better conditon than during the first few months after the war started, but, as in the east, reports indicate that progress is slow. The increasing shipments of war materials will hasten improvement in conditions throughout the country, for it will bring larger and larger sums which will work into general circulation. Huge orders booked during the last six months are mostly still in process of preparation, with many of the companies which accepted them just about getting special machinery which had been installed in operation.

Government Finances.

Government finances are under continual discussion in banking circles, although there have been no developments in regard to meeting the deficit in the treasury this fiscal year. It is considered improbable that any action in regard to it will be taken before the regular session of congress next December. Talk of a bond issue by the government is considered premature in banking circles close to treasury department affairs.

Dividends and Interest.

Dividends and interest disbursements in June will be about $115,000,000, or about $5,000,000 less than for the corresponding month of 1914. The interest payments will be about $6,000,000 larger than last year, but dividends will be about $11,000,000 smaller, due to the discontinuation of payments by several companies, including the Steel corporation, since last June. The recent tendency of directors in resuming and increasing dividends indicates that before long monthly dividends will be near the same total as those of corresponding months in pre-war years.

Missouri Pacific Fate Doubtful.

The response of Missouri Pacific noteholders to the offer of the company to extend them for a year has been only fair. The notes are due June 1, and while a majority had been deposited early in the past week, it is uncertain as to whether or not the plan is a success. The $25,000,000 notes are dune June 1, and unless late deposits are heavy, there is a chance that the road will be thrown into receivership as no arrangements for paying the undeposited notes had been made, as far as is known. If receivership is avoided, the road will be reorganized without court aid.

Of the $100,000,000 New York Central bond issue of a few weeks ago, $92,000,000 were bought by stockholders of the road, the remaining $8,000,000 being disposed of by a syndicate of bankers. Suit has been brought by a man whose interest in the matter is not altogether clear to bankers to have the bond issue declared illegal. As much of the proceeds of the bond sale have already been used by the road for various purposes, a peculiar situation would arise if the issue should be declared illegal.

Pere Merquette to Sell.

In the absence of a reorganization plan, federal courts have ordered the sale of the Pere Marquette railway system, to satisfy claims of underlying bondholders. Total claims of all kinds are in excess of $100,000,000, but it is not believed that the road will bring more than $40,000,000, which will be only a little more than enough for those with underlying and preferred claims.

Plans for the reorganization of the Wabash-Pittsburg Terminal railway are being talked about, now that the Wabash railroad reorganization plan is being prepared for actual operation. To reorganize the Wabash-Pittsburg Terminal properties will require about $10,000,000 cash, which it is proposed will be raised by assessment on the bonds.

Pan-American Conference.

Various conferences in regard to South American trade, banking in the southern continent, etc., have been held during the last week. As far as can be ascertained, comparatively little has been accomplished in the last ten months in the way of supplanting European trade in South America, but this is believed to be largely due to lack of funds and purchasing power there, due mostly to the cutting off of banking connections with Europe, while banks in this country have not as yet made much progress in establishing monetary and exchange relations there.

Poor Demand for Petroleum.

In the petroleum industry the war was only one factor contributing to a sudden collapse of prices for crude oil and refined products, a more important one having been tremendous overproduction. In the last few months the industry has been noting considerable improvement, with oil prices advancing and with home and export demand increasing steadily. Mid-Continent oil, which sold for 30 cents per barrel at the wells as late as March 1, has been above 40 cents during the last week or so. Oil companies, especially those in the export trade, are reported to be preparing for the greatest demand for all petroleum products before another year has passed that has ever been seen. Although export demand is still below normal figures before the war for the industry as a whole, companies on Atlantic seaboard points have been making tremendous preparations in the way of new docks and terminals, new shipping, etc., as though looking for a great increase in demand in the next two or three months.

Copper Market Quiet.

The copper metal market has been quiet as a result of the present uncertanties. Lake copper has sold above 23 cents, with ammunition makers buying everything in sight, and with most companies sold ahead for all their production well into 1916. Electrolytic has been quiet at 19 cents, with sales by small dealers at less than that figure. Exports continue fair, while home demand has been small as far as new buying is concerned, though many producers have disposed of most of their current production, as well as that for some time ahead. The entrance of Italy into the war, while it means immediate increase in needs for war munitions and hence for copper, is not considered a bullish argument on the metal as this new arrival against the Germans will be an important factor in shortening the war, it is believed.

Steel Demand Good.

The steel market has shown highly satisfactory progress during the last week, and during the month of May, with the outlook for fair increases in unfilled tonnages this month. Export demand has increased slowly, but it is now nearing figures where it will be of great importance to steel manufacturers. Steel wire, steel for shrapnel and ordnance, for armor plate and other direct war use has been bought freely. Domestic needs for agricultural implement makers and railroads have been placed more freely recently. Prices are firmer, while operations are increasing, with the Steel corporation reported to be turning out steel at a rate near 80 per cent of capacity. Many important steel company executives have spoken most optimistically about the future prospects of the industry in recent months.

Wheat Tumbles.

The wheat market tumbled sharply following the "Nebraskan" incident, while the entrance of Italy into the war was considered a bearish influence. Reports of great damage to the maturing crop and of great overestimation of its size (one private estimate being of 600,000,000 bushels for winter wheat, against 800,000,000 in some estimates) were disregarded. Export buying was light prior to the break, but increased after it.

Cotton Depressed.

Trading in cotton was light, with the tone of the market easy as a whole. Cotton traders are mostly pessimistic regarding the prospects for good prices for the staple as long as the German-American situation remains strained.

RIGGS BANK OFFICIALS DENY BANK SPECULATED

Clerk of Lewis, Johnson & Co., Brokers, Claims Documentary Evidence to the Contrary.

New York, May 29.—(Special.)—On the very last day evidence was submitted in the sensational Riggs National bank case, two affidavits were filed, which are certain to have an important bearing on the final verdict. Up to the present time neither of those statements have found their way into print. One, which was duly sworn to before a notary public and signed by Charles Glover, William J. Flather and Henry H. Flather, president, vice president and cashier of the Riggs National, was in a reply to the charge that had been made the day the case was started, that the bank had engaged in stock market speculation, through the firm of Lewis, Johnson & Co. It read as follows:

Riggs Officers' Statement.

"Charles C. Glover, William J. Flather and Henry H. Flather, being first duly sworn, on oath, say that they are respectively the president, one of the vice presidents and the cashier of the Riggs National bank; that they have been connected with that institution since the first day of its organization as a national banking association; that the said bank never at any time bought or sold any stock whatever from or through the firm of Lewis, Johnson & Co.; that the Riggs National bank never at any time, from its organization to the present, ever made a short sale of stock to or through Lewis, Johnston & Co."

Within a few minutes after the foregoing definite and sweeping denial had been submitted and accepted as part of the evidence, the following affidavit, duly signed and seal, was produced and filed by the government, to the amazement of ex-Senator Bailey and the other lawyers representing the Riggs National bank:

Affidavit of Brokers' Bookkeeper.

"W. Morris Lammond, being duly sworn, says:

"I am now employed by the trustees of the bankrupt firm of Lewis, Johnson & Co., as bookkeeper. I entered the employ of the firm about twenty years ago, and remained continuously with the firm as bookkeeper during the last fifteen years of that period, up to the time of its failure, November 16, 1914. Since which time I have been in the employ of the trustees. During the two months, or thereabouts, that intervened between the failure of the firm and the appointment of the trustees, I was one of the receivers of the firm.

"I am and have been from the beginning familiar with the stock and bond transactions between the firm and the Riggs National bank, which appear upon the accounts in the books of Lewis, Johnson & Co. This account was opened January 2, 1906. It was closed on October 7, 1913. There are about 164 pages, containing the accounts of purchases and sales for the Riggs National bank in its name, each page showing on the debit and credit side approximately twenty transactions, more or less on each side of the account. I began the keeping of the stock ledgers early in November of 1908, from which time I kept and had charge of them continuously up to the failure.

Extensive Stock Transactions.

"During that period there were many thousands of purchases and sales of stocks and bonds by the firm of Lewis, Johnosn & Co., for the account of the Riggs National bank, including all manner of mining and other speculative stocks, some at less than $1 per share, purchased and sold for the account of the Riggs National bank, all of which were entered from day to day in the books of the firm and charged or credited upon this account with the bank. I am very familiar with the manner in which the business was transacted, which was as follows:

"The orders for the purchase or sale of stock would come day by day, and frequently many times during the day, by telephone, from the Riggs National bank to the office of Lewis, Johnson & Co. The order would be taken down over the telephone from the Riggs National bank by Mr. Pitt Cooke, who came with the firm in 1908 and remained until the time of his death, about January, 1914. The order thus taken would be inscribed upon a slip, a sample copy of which I hereto attach, marked 'A,' as part of this affidavit, as an illustration of the way in which these orders were taken for sales. The handwriting on the original slip is that of Mr. Cooke. The figures '11.20 a' on the right-hand side represents the time of the execution of the order. These figures were placed there by the telegraph operator. All the slips representing these orders taken down by Mr. Cooke are on file with the trustees in bankruptcy.

Notices Sent Riggs Bank.

"Immediately upon the execution of this order, and as to each order of purchase or sale for or on account of the Riggs National bank, as memorandum would be sent to the Riggs National bank, either by bearer or by mail. Accompanying, maked 'B' and made part of this affidavit, is a copy of the printed form on which the notice of the execution of the order was sent on the day on which it was executed.

"We have in the office of Lewis, Johnson & Co. a letter-press copy-book containing copies of all the notices thus sent to the Riggs National bank, addressed to the Riggs National bank as the purchaser or seller of the particular securities in question."

Detailed accounts are then given of specific transactions in General Electric, Union Pacific, and other stocks, with copies of checks paid to the Riggs National bank and indorsed by the Riggs National bank for settlement of same. Then comes the following, which was only one of several descriptions of short sales, the profits of which went to Flather:

Profits Go to Flather.

"On February 16, 1912, 100 shares of Union Pacific were sold at 165 1-4, copy of the 'seller' slip for which and of the notice to the Riggs National bank are attached hereto, marked, respectively, 'T' and 'U,' and made a part hereof, and on February 19, 1912, 100 shares of Union Pacific were purchased at 164 3-4, copy of the 'purchase' slips and of the notice to the Riggs National bank are attached hereto, marked, respectively, 'V' and 'W,' and made a part hereof; the check for the profit on this transaction was made to the order of H. H. Flather, a copy thereof marked 'X' is attached hereto and made a part hereof.

"There were many occasions on which the Riggs National bank would give an order to buy a given number of shares of a certain security and to sell the same number of shares the same day. On such occasions the bill would be rendered to the bank, showing the purchase and sale and a check given for the differences. In these instances the check would be made either payable to the order of the Riggs National bank or of H. H. Flather, when so instructed by the latter. I have a bundle of such checks in the office, all of which are paid.

"In two or three cases above enumerated on which checks were made to the order of H. H. Flather, at the request of the latter for short sales on account of the Riggs National bank confirmation notices of sales and of the covering purchase that were addressed and sent to the Riggs bank contained on the face of such notices the words 'Give to Mr. Cooke' or the words 'Give notice to Mr. Cooke.'"

General Trade Reports Indicate Improvement—Advices on Steel Industry Speak of Greater Activity.

New York, May 29.—In the face of a double holiday and strong intimations that Germany's reply to Washington's note in the matter of the Lusitania might be made public before the resumption of business on Tuesday, today's brief session on the stock exchange was altogether a superficial affair. Routine news here on the general trade situation, the leading dry goods interests professing to see further improvement. Advices touching upon the steel industry told of greater activity at leading centers of manufacture.

PROFESSIONAL VIEWS ON COTTON SITUATION

New York, May 29.—(Special.)—Liverpool was closed again in observance of the Whitsuntide holidays and our market was a very small affair, with little significance in the trade. There was no news as to the German note, except press dispatches to the effect that it would be published over the holiday, which had an even more restricting effect upon business.

The market has presented for several days a sold-out appearance, but any fresh buying is naturally lacking pending the receipt of this reply from Berlin.

Weather conditions were rather mixed. Further rains fell in the eastern belt, and while it was clear in the west, the possibility of more showers over Sunday was not liked. Liverpool will reopen on Monday, and New Orleans will also be open, and this market will be closed in observance of Memorial day.

HUBBARD BROS. & CO.

New York, May 29.—(Special.)—The local market is awaiting with patience Germany's reply to the American note, and in the meantime business has been reduced to minimum proportions. Favorable crop reports, and unfavorable developments in affairs abroad, have lost their power for the moment as depressing factors and consequently the feeling is gaining ground that anything of a constructive nature would stimulate buying.

Exports and demand for cotton generally continue in good volume, but the business is so well distributed in all markets as to affect prices very little.

Closed steady.

New York, May 29.—Business in the cotton market today was confined almost entirely to an interchange of call orders and the movement and the prices did not exceed five points with the close steady at 1 and 2 points net decline. In view of the holiday here Monday and the fact that New Orleans and Liverpool will be open this dullness was only natural and attracted little comment. The possibility that the German reply would be received on Sunday also tended to restrict operations and there was an entire absence of new commitments. There was some Wall street selling and an easier tone at New Orleans, part of which came from spot houses, so that final prices were off several points from best of the day.

Opening steady at 2 points decline to 1 point advance, the market gradually improved until at one time it was generally two to three points above the previous night. A little scattered covering explained this upturn, but general interest was light and the news did not offer any incentive to support the market. A forecast of sections was considered favorable. Fall River print cloth sales amounted to only 125,000 pieces for the week, or half the total a year ago, with curtailment 60,000 pieces against 115,000 last year.

New Orleans, May 29.—While the cotton market was quiet today it had a steady tone and showed one or two periods of strength, which, however, were not caused by fresh long buying, but by covering of short cotton, on the part of traders who either wanted their profits or wanted to even up over Sunday or until after the bureau report on condition. The close was one to three points down.

Around the opening the market was steady at an advance of one to three points, shorts furnishing the demand. There was little for sale and the advance was widened to three to five points. Late in the session the market became unsettled on good crop news and high private condition figures and the more active months were sent four to five points under yesterday's close, but toward the end there was a recovery. The market had no real selling power at any time, although sentiment was bearish. Bulls charged that it was badly oversold.

Private reports on condition ranged from 80.4 per cent to 81.2 and were considered bearish, but they did not stimulate offerings materially.

Spot cotton steady, unchanged. Sales on the spot, 2,250 bales; to arrive, 165; good ordinary, 6.99; strict good ordinary, 7.55; low middling, 8.18; strict low middling, 8.63; middling, 9.00; strict middling, 9.25; good middling, 9.57; strict good middling, 9.94.

New Orleans Designated Bona Fide Spot Market By the Government

Washington, May 29.—The New Orleans spot cotton market today was designated by Secretary Houston as a standard for settlement of differences over future contracts that may arise there through operation of the new cotton futures law. The department issued this statement:

"After careful investigation, the secretary of agriculture has designated New Orleans as a bona fide spot cotton market within the meaning and for the purpose of the United States cotton futures act. This designation becomes effective on June 1, 1915. After that date parties to future contracts made on the New Orleans cotton exchange will settle their differences in price, when cotton is delivered on contract, on the basis of the differences that prevail in actual commercial transactions in their own market. New Orleans is also designated as one of the ten markets whose average differences will furnish a basis of settlement for other future markets."

Holiday Observed Saturday.

New York, May 29.—(Special.)—No markets today in Liverpool cotton, New York sugar and New York coffee.

UNEVENTFUL FINISH FOR MAY WHEAT

All Grains Show Small Decline—Provisions Show Decided Strength With Rise of 22 1-2.

Chicago, May 29.—Some apprehension that the wind-up of trade in the May delivery of wheat would be accompanied by nerve racking changes of price turned out today to have been without much warrant. After sagging the greater part of the time, the market rallied sharply in the last half hour and closed unsettled at 1-8 to 2 1-2 under last night. Corn showed a net decline of 1-8@1-4 to 1-2; oats finished unchanged to 1 to 1-4 down, and provisions varying from a shade off to a rise of 22 1-2.

Corn reflected only to a moderate extent the weakness of wheat.

Evening up of trades in oats took place quietly. Crop reports were favorable on the whole.

Buying of lard on a generous scale by a big packing concern gave backbone to provisions. Miscellaneous holders, though, seemed disposed to realize on pork.

WEEKLY REVIEW ON COTTON GOODS MARKET

New York, May 29.—Cotton goods markets are holding quite steady, although the demand is generally light. The price recessions of the past few weeks in gray and brown goods have been no greater relatively than the decline in cotton. Colored goods are being advanced owing to the high cost and great scarcity of dyestuffs. Indigo blue prints and solid black prints have been advanced ¼ cent a yard to a basis of 4¼c and only stock orders are being taken by the largest factors. Indigo blue denims are held at 1c a yard higher and old prices apply only to goods dyed with other shades. Bleached cottons are quiet, but very steady and several of the leading brands are well sold ahead.

On wash fabrics the best business is reported in voile. Fine goods mills have taken larger forward orders than for several years past and they are generally well employed. Ready-to-wear manufacturers are using more cotton goods than ever before and are working later in the season on cotton goods than in any previous year. The separate skirt manufacturers are making more cotton skirts than in any previous season. Prices are somewhat irregular and are generally quoted as follows:

Print cloths, 28-inch, 64x64, 3¼c; 64x60, 3⅛c; 38½-inch, 64x64, 4⅛c; southern sheetings, standard, 6⅛c; denims, 9-ounce indigos, 14c; others, 13c; ticking, 8-ounce, 11½c; prints indigos, 5¼c; others, 5c; ginghams, staple, 6¼c; dress ginghams, 9¼c.

PROFESSIONAL ELEMENT HELD SWAY PAST WEEK

Italian Dash and Kaiser's Silence on Lusitania Incident Curb Business.

New York, May 29.—Germany's delay in answering this government's note anent the Lusitania incident and Italy's intervention in the war were the chief elements of interest in this week's dull and professional market. Trading proceeded cautiously with small daily totals, both as to stocks and bonds.

Operations were confined almost entirely to the professional element, which alternately espoused the bull and bear sides. In the main, however, prices showed small declines. War specialties suffered general reversals, speculation in these issues having spent its force for a time.

Coppers and allied shares were active and strong but fell back after announcement was made of increased dividend disbursements by several of the leading producing and selling companies. The miscellaneous group, including motors and petroleums, moved according to the impulses of pool manipulators.

Crop news was partly disconcerting, advices from certain western and southwestern sections indicating marked deterioration in winter wheat. Railroad returns for April were somewhat mixed, with net decreases on some of the leading systems. Steel production continues at its recent high rate, with further domestic equipment orders, but foreign demand remains moderate.

Foreign exchange became more normal, additional heavy imports from Canada and France conducing to that end. Domestic monetary conditions indicate greater ease, long time loans being negotiated at lower rates.

Country Produce.

NEGRO'S BODY FOUND BY RAILROAD TRACKS

The body of an unknown negro man was discovered early Saturday beside the tracks of the Southern railway near the trestle over the Chattahoochee river, on the Cobb county side of the river. From the mangled form of the body, the negro had evidently fallen from a passing train.

The Fulton county police were notified, and they, in turn, notified Sheriff Hicks, of Marietta, who is making an investigation of the killing.

BLACKS NEARLY ESCAPE FROM JAIL AT DAWSON

Dawson, Ga., May 29.—(Special.)—"Frog" Davis and Clyde Muckerson, two negroes sentenced last week to two years each for burglary, came near gaining their liberty this morning before day by the use of a piece of hoop iron and a cotton hook. They had removed several bricks when Jailer Thomas was awakened by the noise and thwarted their plans.

Rural Carriers of South.

Jackson, Ga., May 29.—(Special.)—The Sixth District Rural Letter Carriers' association will meet in annual session at the Hotel Wigwam, Indian Springs, Monday, May 31. Addresses of welcome will be delivered by Mayor W. E. Watkins and Honorable J. Threatt More, of Jackson, and Congressman J. W. Wise, of Fayetteville, has been invited to deliver the principal address of the day. There will probably be other talks.

PROHIBITION LEADERS MEET HERE ON JUNE 22

Anti-Saloon League Drawing Temperance Bill to Be Submitted to Legislature.

Arrangements are nearly completed for the state convention of prohibitionists in Atlanta, June 22—the day before the legislature convenes.

The Anti-Saloon league has been doing a vast amount of work the past several months. From three to five typewriters and stenographers are working early and late. The superintendent, G. W. Eichelberger, in addition to the regular work, has been studying the legislative problem.

A bill is being prepared which the legislature will be asked to pass. He did not disclose the features of the bill, except to say that it will be satisfactory to the true temperance people of the state. He says he is indebted to some good laymen for assistance in the strenuous weeks of work. So far as the speakership is concerned, he says no candidate has had enough votes pledged to elect him.

Dr. Eichelberger says the Anti-Saloon league, W. C. T. U. and other temperance forces are working together for the success of the state convention. Lunch and supper will be served at the Baptist Tabernacle. Addresses will be delivered by Dr. L. G. Hardeman, W. S. Witham, Mrs. T. E. Patterson and the chairman of the resolution committee, and a number of others, besides a large number of reports from every section of the state. Congressman E. Y. Webb, of North Carolina, will speak at night, and ex-Chief Justice Sam D. Weakley, of Alabama, will speak in the afternoon.

The sessions will be held at 10 a. m., 2:30 p. m. and 7:45 p. m. Mrs. A. B. Cunyus and a male quartet will sing.

Judge Tindall to Talk At Ad Men's Luncheon About Juvenile Court

Judge W. W. Tindall, of the Atlanta juvenile court, will be the honor guest and speaker at the noonday luncheon of the Ad Men's club, of Atlanta, next Thursday, June 3, at the Winecoff hotel, at 1 o'clock.

The invitation extended to Judge Tindall to tell the Ad Men about the work of the juvenile court is directly in line with the efforts of the club to align itself with and assist, wherever possible, all of the agencies of municipal uplift. It will be recalled that the Atlanta Ad Men recently took up the city school problem and expressed themselves in no uncertain terms with reference to the necessity for immediate improvement.

In addition to hearing from Judge Tindall, the Ad Men will discuss plans for the coming trip to Chicago, where they propose to send the best possible delegation to represent Atlanta at the convention of the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World. The Atlanta delegation will leave for Chicago on Saturday, June 19, at 4:55 p. m., via the Nashville, Chattanooga and St. Louis railroad, and expects now to occupy two special sleepers.

CHARTER AMENDED, STOCK INCREASED BY STONE COMPANY

The charter of the Atlantic Stone company, which owns extensive stone quarries and river rights on Broad river, in Elbert county, has been amended, changing the name to Atlantic Power and Properties company, and increasing the capital from $30,000 to $60,000, all paid in. Further increase of capital, to an amount not exceeding in the aggregate, $1,000,000, is permitted under the amended charter.

The scope of the company is considerably widened so as to include not only the operation of granite quarries, but the development of hydro-electric projects and similar enterprises. The same officers remain in charge, namely: W. G. Watson, president; William Hurd Hillyer, treasurer.

ROME STREET RAILWAY BUCKS AT BRIDGE COST

Rome, Ga., May 29.—(Special.)—The Rome Railway and Light company has filed a petition in United States district court here asking that the Floyd county commissioners be enjoined from attempting to make the street railway company pay one-third the cost of the new bridges to be built in Rome. The petition sets forth that to force the company to pay such an amount would be depriving it of its property without due process of law, and, therefore, would be a violation of the constitution of the United States. No date for hearing the petition has been set, nor has a temporary injunction been granted.

PECAN GROWERS MEET IN THOMASVILLE NEXT

Successful Meeting at Quincy, Fla.—This Year's Crop Will Be Biggest Ever Grown.

Thomasville, Ga., May 29.—(Special.) Thomasville will be the meeting place next year for the Georgia-Florida Pecan Growers' association, this having been decided upon by vote before the adjournment of the meeting of the association held in Quincy, Fla., this week. This city had been originally chosen as the permanent meeting place of the association, but owing to the fact that the Quincy people were so anxious to have it come there, Thomasville resigned in its favor at the meeting here last year. Owing to its convenient location as the center of the pecan belt, however, the members decided it was best to make this city again the meeting place.

Those attending the meeting in Quincy report it as being a very fine one and with many features of enjoyment and instruction to those interested in the pecan industry. The citizens of Quincy did all in their power for the entertainment of the visitors and they were afforded an opportunity to see the big tobacco fields of Gadsden county, the crop of which last year sold for $3,000,000.

The officers of the association elected to serve the coming year were: President, C. A. Simpson, Monticello, Fla.; vice president, William Bullard, Albany; secretary and treasurer, W. W. Bassett, Monticello, Fla.

An interesting feature of the meeting was that from reports made by members from all sections of the pecan belt it was shown that the pecan crop of 1915 will be the greatest ever known in the history of this industry, which has now become an established one for this and other sections. Arrangements being made for the marketing of the crop will render it also the most valuable from a monetary standpoint.

Vashti Commencement Shows Great Benefit Done for Needy Girls

Thomasville, Ga., May 29.—(Special.) The commencement exercises of the Vashti Industrial home held here Thursday and Friday were very interesting and showed what has been done for the girls who are the inmates of it, and their advancement along educational lines. This home is supported by the home mission board of the Southern Methodist church, and it takes in and cares for all girls of whatever denomination who are without means of support.

The industrial exhibit made by the pupils this year was exceptionally fine, especially along lines of domestic science. In their classes they are carried through the eighth grade and taught besides special lines of work that enable them to obtain situations on leaving the school at 18 years of age. There were more than a hundred girls sheltered by the home this year, and those that graduated will be provided with positions.

Commencement Sermons.

Thomasville, Ga., May 29.—(Special.) Thomasville people will be given the opportunity to listen to two commencement sermons tomorrow, one in the morning and the other in the evening. In the morning the baccalaureate sermon of the Thomasville high school will be preached in St. Thomas' Episcopal church by the rector, the Rev. W. H. Higgins, this preceding the commencement exercises of the school, which will be held next week. In the evening the Rev. Osgood F. Cook will preach the baccalaureate sermon for the Vashti home in the Methodist church, it being the closing feature of the commencement exercises of that institution.

LARGE SOUTHERN PLANTS TO GO UNDER HAMMER

Montgomery, Ala., May 29.—Property of the Tallassee Falls Manufacturing company, at Tallassee, Ala., is ordered sold, together with two other southern plants, at Columbia, S. C., and Baltimore, to satisfy first and second mortgages held by the Continental Trust company, of New York, for $13,000,000. The decree was made by Judge W. I. Grubb, of Birmingham, and filed in the federal court here. The decree is an ancillary order following one made by the United States court of Maryland against the property of the International Cotton mills, owners of the Tallassee Falls Manufacturing company.

The first thing is to select a property in Atlanta, the fastest growing city in the South, and banking and business center of the Southeast.

The next thing is "KEEPING OUT OF COURT."

"A second thing to remember in the case of real estate is to be certain that the title one receives is good and clear of all incumbrances. With ordinary town or city real estate the USUAL and SAFEST method is to have the title GUARANTEED by some guaranty or trust company that makes a business of guaranteeing titles." — Saturday Evening Post.

AQUATIC MEET AT "Y" PROVES BIG SUCCESS

G. H. Bonnell Was the Individual Star of the Meet, Scoring Three Firsts.

The young men's aquatic meet, held last night in the large pool at the Y. M. C. A. building, was an occasion of amusement as well as rare entertainment, it is not often that the people of Atlanta have the opportunity of witnessing such a meet, which is in itself an educative force, and some fail to realize that they are witnessing events and swimmers the like of which is hard to duplicate, and is seldom, if ever, excelled, except by professionals. The association has a bunch of record-holding men, and they were at their best last night.

Special mention should be made of the two water polo games and the 100 yard race. The former event was the most beautiful and spectacular of all, and the divers were given frequent and well-deserved applause by the audience.

The tub race was kept as a surprise, even to the contestants, until the time came. From then on there was a constant roar of laughter, and it was hard to tell whether Cubs or fellows were on top the most. Only two men were lucky enough to finish the race, the others spending their time in climbing in and falling out.

The winners in the events were as follows:

20-Yard Back Stroke—G. H. Bonnell, first; S. H. Hartney, second; C. E. Curtis, third.

40-Yard Breast Stroke—G. H. Bonnell, first; C. R. Jarvis, second; F. P. Margolin, third.

Plain and Fancy Diving—G. H. Bonnell, first; S. N. Hartney, second; H. O. Rogers, third.

50-Yard Swim—S. N. Hartney, first; G. H. Bonnell, second; G. D. Dunn, third.

Tub Race—Louis Anderson, first; G. D. Dunn, second.

CAPABLANCA DEFEATS 28 CHESS PLAYERS

Tampa, Fla., May 29.—Jose Capablanca, playing simultaneously twenty-nine of the state's best chess players, including Stephen Trabue, state champion, and Nestor Hernandez, the champion of the local club, here today defeated twenty-eight and drew in his game with G. H. McDonough.

Capablanca will be the guest of honor at a picnic arranged for tomorrow by 2,000 Tampa citizens and will play all comers in another simultaneous exhibition.

BRITAIN EXTENDS TIME FOR U. S. IMPORTERS

Washington, May 29.—Shipments of goods to American importers purchased in countries at war with Great Britain and paid for before March 1, will be permitted up to June 15, according to a statement issued tonight by the British embassy extending the time named in previous announcements fifteen days.

The embassy statements is as follows:

"The British embassy has issued a circular of instruction to the British consuls in the United States that American importers who claim to have paid for goods originating in countries at war with Great Britain to March 1 and whose claims have been admitted by the British government should be reminded that June 1, next, had been fixed as the date upon which the shipment of such goods from neutral ports must cease.

"Nevertheless in the case of those claims which are submitted through the unofficial agency of the foreign trade advisers of the state department and British railway shipments will be allowed up to June 15 next, provided that the proof of payment prior to March 1 is satisfactory. This extension of time is accepted solely on the ground of time required to submit evidence owing to a greater distance and difficulties of postal and telegraphic communication.

"After June 15 all cases will be dealt with under the procedure laid down by the British order in council of March 11, 1915."

Ex-Gov. McCullough Dead.

New York, May 29.—Former Governor John J. Griffith McCullough, of Vermont, died at his home here tonight, aged 79 years. He was a native of Delaware.

History of First Georgia Baseball and Football Teams; Some Famous Stars

By D. G. Bickers.

Athens, Ga., May 29.—(Special.)—Baseball as a game was first played in 1831 by the old Olympic Town ball club. It was not until 1845, however, that the first baseball club was regularly organized. This was the Knickerbocker Club of New York, and they played a form of baseball known as "town" ball.

The first representative college team was formed at Harvard in 1856. Tufts, then Yale, and then Princeton immediately followed suit, and games were played by teams representing these colleges.

This marks the beginning of intercollegiate baseball in the north and east. Since this time baseball has become a prominent feature in student activities in nearly every college and university in the nation.

First Baseball at Georgia.

Although today baseball plays such an important part in college life throughout the whole country, there are but few people who really know how, when and by whom baseball was introduced into the University of Georgia. Since Georgia has come to hold such a pre-eminent place in college baseball in the south, it is interesting to know something in regard to its introduction at this university.

Two men were instrumental in introducing baseball at the University of Georgia. One of them was Charles A. Collier, of Atlanta, who had learned the game in Petting Dohme's "Gate City club" of professionals play in Atlanta; the other is Colonel T. W. Rucker, of Athens, who had seen the game while at Princeton university, where he graduated in 1866.

For a time the game at the university was only local in its nature—i. e., no games were played except on the campus, and between teams representing the different classes. There was keen rivalry among the classes and much and great interest was manifested in the games. Usually a class game was played every week—generally on Saturday.

Very soon teams representing Demosthenian and Phi Kappa Literary societies were organized. This only served to increase the interest already aroused by the class games.

Baseball Became More and more popular at the university, and in the fall of 1867, J. H. Rucker organized the "Dixie club," of which he was made captain, and which was composed of the best players in college, regardless of what class they were in. This was Georgia's first representative or 'varsity team. Their first game with a foreign team was with Dohme's Gate City club. This game was played in Atlanta on Christmas eve day in 1867, and resulted in favor of the Gate City club.

Dixies v. Gate City.

The following August, during commencement week, the Gate City club played the Dixie club a return engagement in Athens. The game was played on the lot in front of the present home of Colonel Snelling, on Hull street. So great was the interest manifested in the game that the commencement exercises, which were to have been held in the chapel that afternoon, were suspended for lack of an audience. To the great amazement of the Gate City club, the Dixie club was victorious in this game by the score of 51 to 14.

The line-up of the Dixie club of 1868 was as follows:

J. H. Rucker, captain and pitcher, Washington Desaussure, pitcher.
Charles A. Collier, catcher.
D. B. (Jack) Winberley, first base.
Ed S. Hill, second base.
Silas Atkinson, shortstop.
T. W. Rucker and ——Jones, third base.
Peter Stubbs, right field.
William H. Fish, center field.
Asbury H. Hodgson, left field.
Of the men, only J. H. Rucker, Jack Wimberley, T. W. Rucker, Silas Atkinson and William H. Fish are still living.

Many of the men who took a prominent part in baseball when it was first introduced at the university have since risen to eminence throughout the whole country. Some of them are: Judge Emory S. Speer, of the United States court; Henry W. Grady, one of the south's greatest orators and journalists; Chief Justice William H. Fish, of the supreme court of Georgia; Charles A. Collier, who was twice mayor of Atlanta, and a commissioner to the world's peace convention; Asbury H. Hodgson, who was a prominent financier of Athens and a leader in great affairs; Washington Dessau, one of the most brilliant lawyers Georgia has ever produced; Benjamin H. Hill, who has won eminence as an able and impartial judge; Colonel T. W. Rucker, of Athens, who is one of the ablest lawyers in Georgia, and Captain J. H. Rucker, who was the first mayor of Athens, who has served in his city council for fourteen years, and who is the present postmaster of Athens.

For some time after the first varsity team was organized, games were played with teams from nearby towns, or with teams composed of men in town who had left the college.

But the first game ever played with another college was played with a team representing the Georgia Military institute, at Penfield, Ga., where Mercer was then located. The game was won by Georgia by the score of 61 to 59.(?)

A thing of interest to Athens people in regard to this game is the fact that Judge George C. Thomas, of this city, played second base for Mercer in this game—the first intercollegiate baseball game ever played in the south.

First Football Game.

For several years prior to 1890 interest in intercollegiate athletics at the University of Georgia had lagged considerably, this being due in a large measure to lack of support and encouragement on the part of the faculty.

In the fall of 1890 Dr. Charles Herty came to the university as professor of chemistry. He was a great lover of athletics and he soon organized the student body into an athletic association, the object of which was to promote interest and proficiency in all branches of athletics.

For the first year after Dr. Herty came to the university track and baseball were the only athletic sports inaugured. In the fall of 1891 a football team was organized. This team had no professional coach, and all the outside assistance the members got was from a set of rules.

Mercer's Opponent.

By their tireless energy and consistent work they were enabled to round themselves into a real football team. On January 20, 1892, this team played a team representing Mercer university. This game played in Athens and was won by Georgia, by the score of 50 to 0.

The personnel of this team was as follows:

Center—E. W. Frey.
Guards—George Shackleford and E. P. Howell, Jr.
Tackles—R. B. Nally and A. O. Halsey.
Ends—L. D. Fricks and J. R. Lane, manager.
Halfbacks—F. J. Herty, captain, and J. C. Kimball.
Quarterback—W. H. Gramling.
Fullback—H. C. Brown.

About a month after the Mercer game, a game was played with Auburn in Atlanta. This game was won by Auburn, 10 to 0.

The Mercer game mentioned above was the beginning of intercollegiate football at the University of Georgia. Ever since that time Georgia has put out teams that have almost invariably taken a high ranking among the teams of southern universities and colleges.

JURY LOCKED ON CASE OF THE TEN DEPUTIES

New Brunswick, N. J., May 29.—At a late hour tonight the jury trying the ten deputies charged with the murder of a Roosevelt chemical plant striker last January, still was out. They had retired at 4:30 this afternoon.

Counsel for the defense alluding to the testimony of Edward Conlin, the 14-year-old boy who was the chief witness for the prosecution, declared that he evidently had been coached. Conlin identified nine of the ten deputies who had shot into the crowd of strikers.

Attorney General Westcott in final argument for the state demanded a verdict of first degree murder. "When the infamous practice of hiring roaming men as strike breakers is stopped," he said, "strikes will be bloodless and harmless."

In his charge, Judge Bergen said there was no evidence to warrant a first degree verdict. He directed the acquittal of John Smith, one of the defendants, who had not been identified.

Shortly before midnight the jury was locked up for the night.

BOLL WEEVIL REPORTED IN ALABAMA COUNTIES

Montgomery, Ala., May 29.—Authentic reports from counties along the western tier of Alabama say the appearance of the boll weevil in the young plants have caused planters to plow under the new cotton and, replant with corn. The weevil is reported in large numbers in various counties and the abandonment of acreage now planted in cotton to corn and other products will materially reduce the acreage and cotton production in this state.

MORE MONEY IS URGED FOR RETIRED PASTORS

Akron, Ohio, May 29.—Trustees of the pastors' fund for superannuated pastors at the convention at the general synod of the Lutheran church here today recommended the maximum sum paid to retired pastors be materially increased. A figure will be set and approved next week. The present maximum is $250 per year. The trustees told delegates that a larger sum was justified for retired ministers because of the high cost of living.

Cotton Yields to Foodstuffs; "Seeing Georgia" Tourists Find Big Change on Journey

By Ned McIntosh.

The cotton crop in Georgia is already cut, at least insofar as this year's production is concerned. The future tense is no longer applicable.

Seein' is believin'.

The motorists who took the now famous seeing Georgia swing around the state, promoted by the Georgia Chamber of Commerce, saw with their own eyes that this year's production of cotton plantings is materially less than in years gone, and that there is production of foodstuffs such as Georgia has not raised in years and years.

Commissioner of Agriculture J. D. Price, who was a member of the touring party, is of the opinion that the cut in cotton production in Georgia will be not less than 20 per cent, if, indeed, it is not all of 25 per cent.

Fields of Grain.

South Georgia presents a remarkable sight to those accustomed to the days of cotton as shown in that section of the state. As one sees the reaping machines whirring their way across fields of grain that seem to seek the horizon for their distant boundary, it takes no great stretch of the imagination to persuade oneself that he is in the middle of harvesting wheat in the progress in south Georgia, and the tourists saw hundreds of fields where the reapers were at work, or where the grain had already been shocked.

In the place of the fields of cotton also many an acre stretches away in oats, rye or corn.

While alfalfa has not yet attained a great foothold in south Georgia, there are here and there numerous fields of proportions indicating that raising alfalfa is no longer an experiment in Georgia.

There is also an increase in potatoes and peanuts.

Cattle Raising Prospers.

More cattle and hogs are being raised. This, from evidences that fares along the route of the tourists, seems to be particularly true of hogs. The Animal Industry fair, at Quitman, which has already been fully told of, was, of course, a revelation to every one who saw it.

The tourists saw the work which is being done at the state experiment station, at Experiment. The robust perfection of the various products upon which the experts at the station are working suggests possibilities of Georgia's soil yet unthought by the layman. Owing to the shortness of time available for the tourists to spend at the station it was not possible for the tourists to get any comprehensive idea of the work. But here is a spot in Georgia well worth exploring.

Another highly interesting agricultural demonstration—for it was nothing short of that—which the tourists saw was the farm of J. S. Byrom, near Vienna. Mr. Byrom takes particular interest in scientific and diversified farming, and there is probably no privately owned farm in the state which is a better exponent of what the Georgia farmer may accomplish in this direction. Everything from the plant he serves his guest's julep to the meat and grain sells in the market is raised on his farm. "And the result of all this is," he says, "that if a wall was built around my plantation I, at least, could not communicate with the outside world. I could not be starved out in a hundred years."

Unique Meal.

Mr. Byrom has the distinction of having served to members of the Georgia Chamber of Commerce a banquet, of which the menu was made up entirely from his own farm products.

Although the Georgia peach was somewhat in evidence in Cordele, most of the tourists got their first try at this season's fruit when they arrived on Wednesday at the George H. Sappey farm, at Massey's Lane, where each tourist was given a basket of red and juicy peaches just pulled from the tree. And when all is said and done for the rest of Georgia's products, it takes the blush of the Georgia peach to produce the smile that won't come off!

EXECUTIVE STRENGTH VS. DETAIL SLAVERY

The masters of industry have accomplished their results by executive work with a full knowledge of detail.

Systematic accounting has played a great part in these successes, because it has enabled these masters to know detail without actually doing the work.

A qualified Certified Public Accountant will so systematize your business that you will find you time for the consideration of weighty problems, and at once guard you against the results of imperfect accounts.
